Nixon works from bed while doctors battle pneumonia

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon's viral pneumonia caused him continuing chest pain Friday, but his doctors said he was resting easier and that they found no signs that the disease was spreading as he sought to fulfill essential duties from a hospital bed.

Nixon, first confined to the special presidential suite at the Navy Hospital in this Washington suburb late Thursday night, was described by one of his physicians as "moderately ill" and it was thought he would not be released for at least a week.

The doctors attending him told reporters at a news briefing that they still were unable to determine exactly what type of virus was affecting one-third to one-half of his right lung. But they said they were sure he was not suffering from "bacterial" pneumonia, which causes the lungs to fill with fluid and often proved fatal many years ago.

Through the day, Nixon received a few visitors — including his wife, who appeared somewhat upset later — and was given periodic treatment consisting of antibiotic and pain-killer pills along with therapy to help relieve any labored breathing.

Ontario attorney runs for lieutenant-governor

WASHINGTON — Terry Goggin, an Ontario attorney who last year lost a bid for elective office in the 38th Congressional District primary, disclosed Thursday his intentions to run for lieutenant governor in the 1974 California Democratic primary.

Goggin, 31, currently serves as an administrative assistant to Rep. George E. Brown Jr., D-38th Dist., the man who threw the roadblock into his first-every try at elective office.

Goggin also serves as legal counsel to the energy subcommittee of the House Science and Astronautics Committee.

He said he plans to run a "people-to-people" campaign, stressing direct contact with voters and focusing on consumer and environmental issues.

Presently, Goggin's only apparent rival in the primary is State Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-29th Dist.

Goggin said he had received favorable reaction to his candidacy from various businessmen, labor officials and political figures in the state.

Construction of Alaskan oil pipeline seen in Senate vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate rejected Friday a proposal to delay construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline pending an eight-month study of an alternate Canadian route.

On a 61-29 vote, it turned down an amendment by Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and Birch Bayh, D-Ind., that was offered as a substitute to a measure that would grant a right-of-way for construction of a 789-mile, $3.5-billion Alaskan pipeline.

A final vote on the pipeline bill has been scheduled for Tuesday.

Even though the Senate rejected sole dependence on a Canadian pipeline, the pending bill — virtually certain to be passed by a wide margin — calls for negotiations with Canada for a second pipeline through that country.

Mondale and Bayh contended their amendment would not delay delivery of oil from Alaska and that a Canadian pipeline would deliver it to where it was most needed, the U.S. Midwest.

The Midwest senators said construction of the Alaskan pipeline to the port of Valdez where the oil would be shipped by taker to refineries in California and Washington state, would leave the Midwest dependent on uncertain oil imports from the Middle East.

Crime's bribes of IRS, bankers

Mob front man names banks used to convert stolen securities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A confessed former front man for Mafia ganglords told Senate investigators Friday he once bribed Internal Revenue Service (IRS) agents and bank officials to aid in an international stolen securities racket.

Gerald M. Zelmanowitz, 36, whose government-provided false identity was destroyed a month ago, offered the names of financial firms and individuals in a tense hearing before the Senate permanent investigating subcommittee. A government witness in the 1970 convictions of reputed Mafia chiefain Angelo DeCarlo, he testified before the committee under personal immunity from prosecution.

He said he could not have funneled millions of dollars of Mafia money and stolen securities through international stock transactions without the bribes and the "ineptitude" of officials of some brokerage firms and banks.

In a 29-page statement, Zelmanowitz said he used certain IRS forms to provide legitimate cover for the stolen securities. He said the forms allowed the racketeers to avoid paying an 18 per cent "Interest Equalization Tax."

The forms, which were needed to create a record of prior American ownership for some securities, were obtained from IRS agents with "sums ranging from $500 per week to as high as $1,000 per week over periods of time extending into months," he said.

Zelmanowitz said bank officials sometimes unwitting and sometimes deliberately misused another IRS form, 3625, which also certified prior American ownership.

"Managers, vice presidents and general officers of these banks have, from time to time, been induced by me, both through their ineptitude and lack of desire to ask for proof of identification regarding the 3625 forms," Zelmanowitz said.

"And, in other instances, actual bribes with small sums of $50 and $100 could induce a bank vice president to guarantee, in blank, any name you so desire to place upon these certificates."

Zelmanowitz said not all representatives of U.S. brokerage firms were involved in "criminal aspects" of his operations. But, he said, they "closed their eyes to the fact that we would engage in a criminal activity."

He said representatives of Hayden-Stone, Bache & Co., Eastman-Dillon Union Securities, Carl Marx and Sterling Grace, with the help of Chase Manhattan Bank and First National City Bank, assisted in creating the fraudulent form 3625 and 432 "without which we could not have traded."

Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., whose investigation is aimed in part at President Nixon's commutation of DeCarlo's 12-year sentence after two years, prohibited photographs of Zelmanowitz because of a "problem of safety of his life."

Zelmanowitz was provided by the Justice Department with a new official identity as a California clothing manufacturer after his testimony against DeCarlo, but he recently was exposed. Referring to DeCarlo, he noted: "He is free and I am hiding."

Attorney General Elliot Richardson said recently that DeCarlo was freed because he is suffering from incurable cancer. But Jackson said the administration had "bypassed normal procedures and safeguards" in providing clemency for DeCarlo.

Zelmanowitz said stolen securities covered by the misused certificates went through a huge "laundering machine" of brokerage firms and banks of Switzerland, Belgium and other countries.

"I myself have created foreign bank accounts for people such as Joseph Colombo, Angelo DeCarlo, Joseph Polvorino, Daniel Cecere and others," he said.

Zelmanowitz said he gained standing in European finance circles through introductions by Harold Stone, former senior partner of Stone-Ackerman, a Wall Street brokerage firm. He said the Societe Financiere Mirells S. A. in Geneva made available "vast sums" of money to him and other members of organized crime "to help us in our transactions."

Lon Chaney Jr. is dead

GENTLE MONSTER

Lon Chaney Jr., who once said he thought of good things as he made films that frightened millions, is dead. He is seen here with Bela Lugosi, left, in the 1956 thriller, "The Black Sleep." Chaney died Thursday in his home.

Actor passed Thursday, but death untold

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Lon Chaney Jr., who adopted his father's name and his career as a character actor to portray such horror movie creatures as the Wolfman and Frankenstein's Monster, is dead at the age of 67.

The husky actor, who also played such sympathetic roles as the childlike "Lennie" in "Of Mice and Men," died at his home here Thursday afternoon.

He had played in lesser known films in recent years. His father, who died in 1930, was a giant of the silent screen era known as "the man of a thousand faces" for his ability to rearrange his face in each role.

Friends said Chaney wished no publicity of his death, which was not revealed until Friday. Patsy Chaney, his wife of 36 years, would not specify the cause or disclose funeral plans.

Chaney suffered from a variety of illnesses in recent years, including gout and liver ailents. He recently underwent acupuncture treatments to relieve pain and was hospitalized for cataracts and beriberi last April. 8

Born Creighton Chaney in Oklahoma City, he turned to acting when his father died and deliberately tried to follow in his footsteps. He appeared as 'The Wolfman," Frankenstein's Monster, the Hunchback of Notre Dame and a host of other terrifying creatures.

"I tried to look and think like him when I did the part," he once said in an interview. "You see, dad never thought bad thoughts when he did those parts. He thought about good or sad things."

Even though he played many monster parts which were meant to scare the wits out of people, he always felt they had less violence in them than some other movies.

"The old monster things were not as bad as cops and robbers or cowboy and Indian shows on television," he once said. "Ife you check, you'll see that a lot more people get killed in those shows than in horror pictures.

"Those films just had scares. It was what you thought was going to happen that kept you on the edge of a seat. We usually got rid of the monster before he could do very much harm."

Justice Dep't. provided poor 'cover' to witness

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A month ago "Paul Maris" was the head of the San Francisco garment manufacturing firm, Paul Maris Co., and believed his criminal past as front man for a stolen securities racket was safely behind him.

Before the Senate permanent investigating subcommittee Friday, the same man — now penniless and in fear of his life —appeared under his real name, Gerald Martin Zelmanowitz, who as a government witness had helped convict Mafia "Captain" Angelo DeCarlo in 1970.

Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., had called on Zelmanowitz for testimony that would help stamp out the massive international transactions in securities stolen from vaults of U.S. banks and brokerage firms.

But Zelmanowitz also gave his embittered account of how his cover—"relocation," as the Justice Department calls it— was breached because the Department had failed to provide backup support.

When "Maris" got involved in litigation with the Creative Capital Corp. over financing for Maris' firm, he said, a private detective hired by Creative Capital found that:

— School records showed there had been no student such as Maris at schools the Justice Department cover credentials showed Maris was supposed to have attended.

—Military records failed to show Maris had the military career matching the Army record that the Justice Department had created for him as part of his cover.

"There was absolutely no backup of these records of any kind," Zelmanowitz testified.

Peron cleared to run for president in new balloting

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Juan D. Peron's return to power in Argentina cleared its last barrier Friday with the resignation of President Hector J. Campora, paving the way for new elections. In a nationwide television address, Peron declared, "If God gives me health and permits me, I must spend my last efforts of my life fulfilling my mission that belongs to me."

Peron, 77, whose return to the presidency through new elections would appear certain, said, "At this point in my life I cannot have any other aspiration than that of being useful to my country. It is a tremendous sacrifice because the years do not pass in vain."

By submitting his resignation to the congress, which voted to accept it Friday evening, Campora set the stage constitutionally for Peron to move back into the Pink House presidential palace. He administered a dictatorial regime from there for 10 years until the armed forces ousted him in 1955 and thereafter blocked his return.

Campora, 64, a former dentist and protege of Peron, took office 49 days ago after leading a Peronist victory in elections that ended seven years of military rule. Peron had personally selected his longtime associate as presidential candidate, and Campora campaigned under a slogan of "Campora in government, Peron in power."

In a 13-minute address from his suburban Vicente Lopez home, Peron said "Dr. Campora told me that if he got to be president, he would immediately bring up the unconstitutionality of the elections, that he would resign and that he would submit his decision to congress."

Gypsies unwillingly become part of jet set -- until U.S. lets them stay

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four young Polish gypsies who have been shuttled across the Atlantic five times since Sunday in a bizarre game of international rejection Friday got a long weekend of freedom until their fate is decided by the U.S. Immigration Service.

The four, including a couple with a four-year-old daughter, arrived here Sunday on their first Atlantic flight carrying stolen West German passports.

What followed was a trans-Atlantic one-upmanship match between West German, Italian and U.S. immigration authorities to keep the gypsies out.

The four, now without papers after their stolen passports were confiscated, were granted a temporary haven in the United States and released on bond by the Immigration Service.

Their attorney, Charles Spar, indicated they would seek admission to the United States. He said the four, Jan Hornjak, 24, his wife, Helen, 23; their daughter, Agatha, 4, and Mrs. Hornjak's brother, Robert Kolompar, 19, had relatives in the New York area.

"They are Ukranian gypsies from Poland," Spar said. "They feel very much put down by Poland."

He said relatives had put up two $1,500 bonds to free Hornjak and Kolompar. Mrs. Hornjak and the child were freed on their own recognizance. The hearing was scheduled for July 17 at Manhattan's Immigration Court.

The tangled situation began Sunday when the quartet arrived at New York's Kennedy International Airport from Milan, Italy, on a Trans World Airlines flight en route to Mexico. A check of their passports turned up the fact they were among 600 recently stolen in West Germany.

Authorities turned the group back to TWA for return to Milan. Because flights to Milan were booked up, TWA flew them to Frankfurt, Germany, for a transfer flight.

Frankfurt authorities, however, confiscated the stolen passports and placed them on the next TWA flight back to New York. When they arrived in New York Monday, immigration authorities ordered them returned to Milan.

At Milan, Italian authorities refused to accept them on grounds they had no papers with which to enter Italy.

The 15,000-mile odyssey ended Thursday afternoon when the four arrived in New York for the third time and Immigration authorities decided to detain them and try to clear up the case.

"We'll give them a hearing," said Maurice Kiley, deputy district director of the Immigration Service. "If they're bona-fide refugees, they'll have a fair chance of staying here."

Polich-Benedict construction is halted by state

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Department of Transportation Friday ordered a halt to state highway construction projects involving Polich-Benedict Constructors because of alleged unsafe working conditions.

The department also asked the state Division of Industrial Safety to immediately investigate the safety programs on the Polich-Benedict projects.

Chief Deputy Director Howard C. Ullrich said the action was taken after an accident on the San Bernardino Freeway in Covina in which one of the firm's employes died and three others were injured.

Ullrich said the company previously was the contractor on a job on Route 210 near Pasadena in which a falsework collapse took the lives of six of the company's employes.

He said work on the projects will be resumed "only after each job is cleared by the Division of Industrial Safety."

Nixon in praise of rights, restraints

NEW YORK (UPI) — Against a background of one of the most crucial tests of strength between Congress and the Presidency in U.S. history, an essay written almost 10 years ago by President Nixon on the importance of a careful balance of power between the three branches of government was revealed Friday.

The essay, written a year after Nixon lost the California gubernatorial race, was presented upon his admission to practice law in New York state Dec. 6, 1963.

It was released for publication by Lowell Wadmond, the chairman of the Character Committee of the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court in New York City. The release came as Sen. Sam J. Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, predicted that Congress would subpoena scandal-related White House documents if Nixon persists in his refusal to open them for inspection.

Nixon's essay:

"The principles underlying the Government of the United States are decentralization of power, separation of power and maintaining a balance between freedom and order.

"Above all else, the framers of the Consititution were fearful of the concentration of power in either individuals or government. The genius of their solution in this respect is that they were able to maintain a very definite but delicate balance between the Federal Government and the state government, on the one hand, and between the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the Federal Government, on the other hand.

"By contrast, in the British system, the Parliament is supreme. In the present French system the primary power resides in the executive, and in some older civilizations the judges were predominant. Throughout American history there have been times when one or the other branches of Government would seem to have gained a dominant position, but the pendulum has always swung back and the balance over the long haul maintained.

"The concept of decentralization of power is maintained by what we call the Federal system. But the principle is much broader in practice. Putting it most simply, the American ideal is that private or individual enterprise should be allowed and encouraged to undertake all functions which it is capable to perform. Only when private enterprise cannot or will not do what needs to be done should government step in. When government action is required, it should be undertaken if possible by that unit of government closest to the people. For example, the progression should be from local, to state, to Federal Government in that order. In other words, the Federal Government should step in only when the function to be performed is too big for the state or local government to undertake.

"The result of these somewhat complex constitutional formulas is greater protection and respect for the rights of the individual citizen. These rights are guaranteed by the Constitution, not only by the first ten Amendments, which specifically refer to them, but even more by the system itself, which is the most effective safeguard against arbitrary power ever devised by man.

"Yet the genius of the Founding Fathers is further demonstrated by the fact that while freedom for the individual was their primary objective they recognized that uncontrolled freedom for some would lead to the arnachy which would destroy freedom for all. Maintaining the delicate balance between freedom and order is, in my view, the greatest achievement of the America, Africa and Asia which have tried to cop your system. lance is the basic reason for the failure of regimes in Latin America Africa and Asia which have tried to copy our system. They invariably go to one extreme or the other — too much emphasis on the freedom of men to do anything they please or too much emphasis on controlling the excesses of freedom. Each of these approaches leads inevitably to dictatorship either of the right or of the left, a tragedy which America will be able to avoid by continued dedication to the fundamental principles of our Constitution."

Killers silence solon charged in heroin smuggling

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Maryland legislator James A. "Turk" Scott Jr. was ambushed and slain early Friday in what highly-placed police sources said was a professional "contract job" apparently aimed at silencing any information he might give authorities on the east coast heroin smuggling racket.

Scott, 48-year-old black member of the Maryland House of Delegates, was found lying in a pool of blood in the basement garage of his plush Baltimore apartment building. He was killed by shotgun and pistol fire and his throat was cut. He was scheduled to face trial in five weeks on charges of heroin smuggling.

"It was a professional contract job" the police sources said. "The garage telephones were cut and a closed circuit television camera was put out of commission. It was probably somebody in New York who got scared."

The Baltimore News American quoted another source who said Scott was considering making a deal with federal prosecutors to offer information on some of the top narcotics figures along the east coast in return for lesser charges against himself.

Scott was scheduled to go on trial Aug. 20 in Richmond, Va., on charges of conspiring to transport $10 million worth of raw heroin from New York to Baltimore. He was indicted April 2 by a special U.S. grand jury investigating narcotics trafficking.

"They knew Scott could nail them. Turk had contacts with the top dope figures in Philadelphia and New York and they know what's going on in the case," the paper quoted one source.

U.S. Attorney George Beall said he fully expected Scott to go to trial next month and maintain his innocence with no indication that he might plead guilty or turn state's evidence.

Scott was found by a tenant at 1:45 a.m., lying on his back, his arms above his head and one hand clutching the keys to his still warm 1973 Cadillac which he apparently parked just before the slaying.

French a-test expected today if weather holds

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — Weather stations reported good climatic conditions in the South Pacific Friday, fueling expectations that France's first nuclear test of 1973 might come today — Bastille Day.

Scientists have stressed that perfect weather is essential to guard against radioactive fallout from the atmospheric explosion drifting toward inhabited areas.

In Paris, the organizations "Peace Media" and "Frenchmen Against the Bomb" announced that a further group of protesters had joined the New Zealand frigate Otago and the international peace ship Fri in the danger zone round the test site, Mururoa Atoll, 720 miles southeast of this Polonesian capital.

A statement said French Gen. Paris de Bollardiere and his companions, Jean-Marie Muller, Brice Lalonde and the Rev. Jean Toulat, "arrived in the Mururoa nuclear zone on a boat on which they sailed for the Cook Islands 11 days ago.

"They have confirmed by radio their intention to remain in the zone to prevent the tests," it said.

The statement said another protest ship, the Spirit of Peace, would leave for the area next week.

France declared a 72-mile zone around Mururoa Atoll off limits to ships and aircraft as of midnight Tuesday. In the past, explosions have usually come within three days of the ban.

A Defense Ministry spokesman in Wellington, New Zealand, said Friday the country's most modern frigate, Canterbury, will leave Auckland today to take over from the Otago, which is inside the prohibited area.

Fraser M. Colman, New Zealand's immigration minister who has been aboard the Otago, will transfer to the Canterbury when it arrives, the spokesman said.

In the meantime, the Voice of Prophecy Radio in Glendale, Calif., quoted the Pitcairn Island radio officer, Tom Christian, as saying the yacht Fri was just outside the 12-mile Mururoa territorial limit.

In Copenhagen Friday, Danish Foreign Minister K.B. Andersen said France's plans to go ahead with its tests "constitute an expression of a continued armament race."

Montclair man loses a leg after freak mishap

LOS ANGELES — A Montclair man who suffered severe electrical shock, while attempting to turn off the ignition switch of a truck which had been backed against an overhanging high-voltage line, was listed in satisfactory condition here Friday night following surgery to amputate his right leg.

Officials at County-USC Medical Center said the surgery was the result of "very deep third degree burns on the right foot" which Roscoe W. Rash had suffered in the freak accident while on vacation in Clovis, N.M., June 24.

Rash will also require several skin grafts on his left arm, according to hospital officials.

The accident occurred when Rash, his brother-in-law Dub Harvey, and another man were in the process of placing a bed on a winch truck at a wrecking yard. According to witnesses, Harvey backed the truck against the power line. Rash leaned into the cab of the vehicle to turn off the ignition switch, and was knocked unconscious by the electrical shock.

Rash was taken to Clovis Memorial Hospital immediately following the accient, and later transferred to Bernalillo County Medical Center in Albuquerque where he stayed for two weeks. He was flown here Monday.

Mailer admits flaw in book

MM's suicide is linked with RFK

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor Peter Lawford said Friday suggestions in Norman Mailer's new biography of Marilyn Monroe that the actress had been having a "flirtation" with Robert F. Kennedy and quarreled with him the night of her death were "absolute drivel."

Lawford, who was a close friend of Miss Monroe and the late New York senator's brother-in-law, called Mailer's highly publicized book "vomit." He said Kennedy was on the East Coast the night of Miss Monroe's suicide in California.

Mailer wrote that Kennedy and Miss Monroe probably were not having an affair, but a flirtation . . . He would call her when he came to stay at Peter Lawford's House. She would come to see him.

Mailer, in an interview taped for televised broadcast Friday night, said he had "no time to go out and interview people" for the book, and wrote it because he "needed the money very badly." Mailer never met Miss Monroe.

The book, "Marilyn," presents various versions of what happened the night before Miss Monroe was found dead of an overdose of sleeping pills in her Hollywood home Aug. 5, 1962. Mailer said he could not vouch for any of them, but they all suggested that Kennedy and the actress had a quarrel.

Such reports have circulated — and have been denied—since Miss Monroe's death.

Mailer said one version was that Kennedy attended a dinner party at Miss Monroe's house the night before her death.

Mailer said this account, which he attributed to "a reporter" who would not allow his name to be used, "offers a quiet party at Marilyn's house which is attended by Peter Lawford, Bobby, Pat Newcomb (Miss Monroe's publicity agent) and Mrs. (Eunice) Murray (her housekeeper).

"After dinner, the others want to go on to Lawford's place on the beach, but Marilyn wishes to stay where she is and then wants Bobby to stay with her. He refuses and leaves. A little later Marilyn begins to call and keeps phoning him."

Another version, Mailer said, was that Miss Monroe attended a dinner party at Lawford's beach house in Malibu with Warren Beatty and Natalie Wood.

"One way or another, she seems to have had some disagreement with Kennedy. Whatever the dimension of her quarrel, it was apparently sufficient to start taking pills," Mailer said.

"I really can't comment on that because it's absolute drivel," Lawford said. He said Kennedy was at his family's compound at Hyannis, Mass. or "somewhere" else in the East at the time of the actress' death. He said Miss Monroe did not know Kennedy at the time Lawford had his beach house in 1954, and Beatty and Miss Wood had never been in it.

Lawford said he had not read Mailer's book and did not intend to. "I'm not going to pay the $19 or whatever it costs," he said. "It makes me want to throw up. It's vomit."

In an interview for broadcast Friday night on CBS-TV's "60 Minutes," Mrs. Murray also denied any party with Kennedy.

"It isn't true," the housekeeper said. "That's all. I mean it just it isn't true."

Man, wife, 4 boys held in thefts

INDUSTRY — Sheriff's deputies Friday arrested a West Covina man, his wife and four juvenile boys whom they link to several recent robberies and burglaries in the Rowland Heights area.

Billy Lopez, 23, and Karen Lopez, 18, 3242 Point Cedar Ave., were booked on suspicion of robbery and burglary. The juveniles, 14 to 17, were similarly charged.

Deputies said the investigation linked the couple and the juveniles to robberies of a 7-11 Market in West Covina, a Jack-in-the-Box drive-through 18950 Colima Road, Rowland Heights and the burglary of several residences and Rincon Elementary School, West Covina.

Investigators said most of the loot was recovered plus a pellet rifle believed used in the holdups.

Not guilty, three family members tell Pomona court

POMONA — Three members of a family pleaded innocent Friday when they were arraigned in Pomona Municipal Court on charges resulting from a dispute with police over a parking ticket.

Lenetta Flournoy, 26, 2163 Laurel Ave., La Verne Renee Flournoy, 22, 1804 S. White Ave., and Vernon Windell Flournoy, 23 pleaded innocent to charges of battery, resisting arrest and disturbing the peace. Judge Robert C. Gustaveson scheduled a pretrial hearing Aug. 9.

Police said the trouble broke out when an officer tried to cite Lenetta Flournoy for parking on the wrong side of White Avenue in front of Mrs. La Verne Flournoy's home. They claimed that several officers had to be sent there to assist the first officers. The Flournoys ultimately were arrested.

No hoax, Getty's mother believes

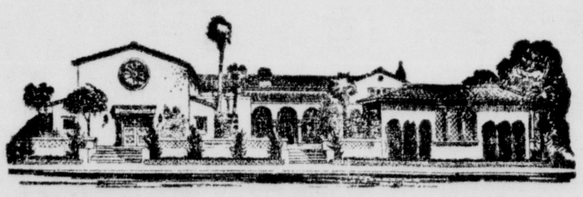

ROME (UPI) — The mother of J. Paul Getty III said Friday she did "not think it was a hoax" when anonymous callers told her her missing teen-age son—the grandson of the oil-rich billionaire—had been kidnaped.

Police launched a nationwide search for the youth and said they were treating the telephone call "seriously," although they did not rule out the possibility of a hoax.

"We are working on a 360-degree range," a police spokesman said. "There are no angles."

Chino chooses new director of recreation

CHINO — Jack Anderson of Placentia has been appointed the Chino Recreation Association's first full-time recreation director.

He begins work here July 25, and will succeed Frank Elder who had served as part time director. Elder recently retired as both director and Chino High School's basketball coach.

His selection was approved this week by the City Council and the Chino school board.

Anderson is presently employed as Placentia's recreation superintendent. He went to that city three years ago as recreation supervisor. He previously served in the U. S. Navy as a special services officer.

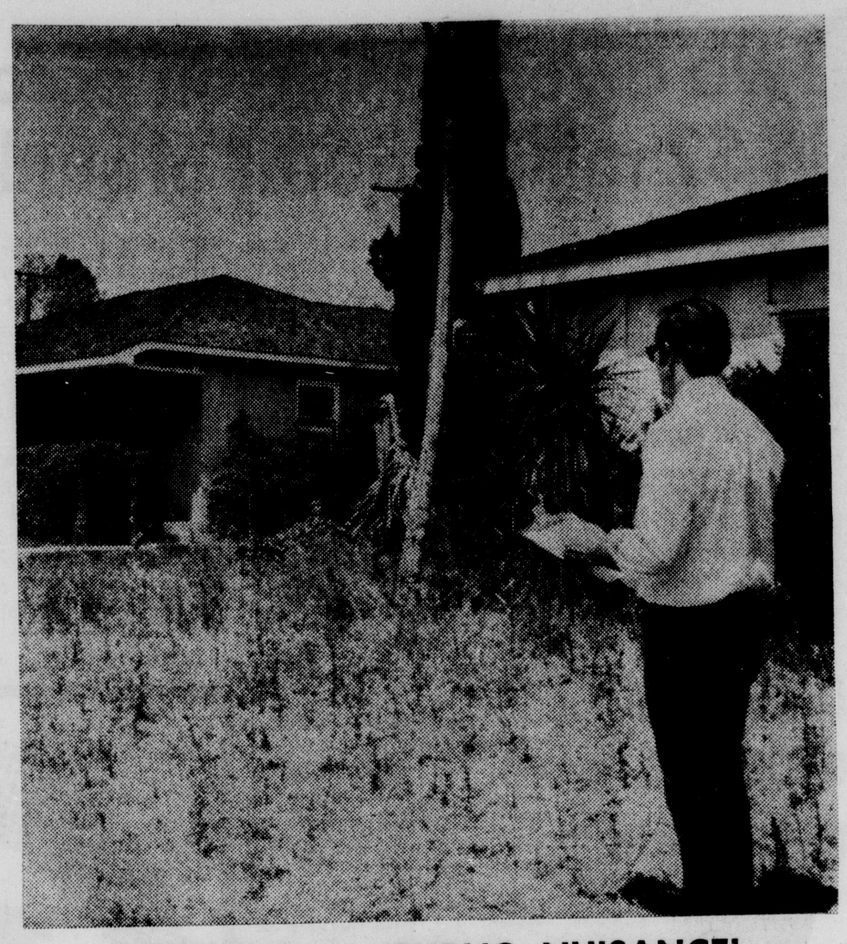

The director received his master's degree from California Lutheran College in Thousand Oaks and is working on a degree in public administration at Cal State Fullerton.

In his new position, Anderson will lead a staff of two full time employes and about 90 part-time recreation supervisors.

The year-around program involves about 5,000 persons, ranging from tiny tots to senior citizens. Activities include Little League, tumbling, track events, tennis instruction, dancing and youth centers.

He will have an annual budget of about $84,000, with funds coming from both the city and school district. The program includes all the school district, which extends past city boundaries.

Anderson and his wife, Judi, have a son, 2.

CHECKING A 'PUBLIC NUISANCE'

Claremont Director of Parks and Recreation Fred Hawkins checks out an empty house at 626 Geneva Ave., Claremont, which the City Council Tuesday night declared a public nuisance because of a weed-covered lawn and dead trees.

Claremont City Council declares 14 houses to be 'public nuisances'

CLAREMONT — Fourteen houses, 10 of them in Southwest Claremont and nine of them boarded up, have been declared as public nuisances by the City Council.

City Planning Director Sharon Hightower told the council Tuesday night that she had not yet contacted the Federal Housing Administration which is responsible for 12, but she said that she would write a letter.

City Manager Keith Mulrooney said that the council would receive at its next meeting a list of 12 more houses where weeds abound, and where abandoned, discarded or unused objects are scattered over the property.

Watching Pomona

Mrs. Hightower said that she was watching to see what success the city of Pomona was having its correspondence with the FHA over 350 boarded-up houses.

Councilman Gene Block who lives on the same street as one of the problem houses — Aurora Drive — suggested writing to Congressman Jerry Pettis about the situation.

He said that the house at 579 Aurora Drive has been empty more than a year, but that the FHA has just put up signs on the property.

He complained that the house has become a gathering place for teen-agers, and that debris has been collecting on the property.

Mrs. Hightower noted that the FHA has contracts with firms to maintain the houses, and that the water has been turned on at seven.

The council viewed color pictures of all 14 houses before adopting a resolution declaring that the abandoned objects or weeds at the houses at 579 Aurora Drive, 702 Arrow Hwy., 310 Carlton Ave., 530 Calreton Place, 569 and 626 Geneva Ave., 606 and 478 S. Mountain Ave., 110 Princeton Ave., 615 W. San Jose Ave., 728 Vassar St., 417 Cucamonga Ave., 420 West Point Drive, and 310 Annapolis Drive constitute a public nuisance.

No one spoke from the audience during the public hearing.

Engineering pact

In other action, the council approved an agreement with the city of Pomona wherein Pomona agrees to pay Claremont 65 per cent of the cost for engineering and fees of a landscape architect who will draw plans or lands caring, an irrigation system, and street lights on Arrow Highway between Orange Grove Avenue and Indian Hill Boulevard.

In another matter, Mayor Craig McManigal suggested that the city reduce its utility services as suggested by President Nixon during the energy crisis.

Mulrooney reported that he has not had his office lights on for two weeks.

McManigal also noted that employes must not drive city vehicles more than 55 miles an hour.

Councilwoman Bertye Smith asked if copies of city papers could be made of recyclable Xerox paper.

McManigal suggested that all city correspondence paper should be recyclable, and asked about cloth towels in the restrooms instead of paper towels.

Peace Council will see slides at Monday meet

CLAREMONT — Jill Rodewald, who works in the Santa Monica office of Medical Aid to Indochina, will show slides at a meeting of the Community Council for Peace Monday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Gordon, 1440 Tulane Road.

Miss Rodewald will report on her recent experiences in Southeast Asia when she and six others delivered medical supplies for Cambodia to the Cambodian ambassador in Hanoi. The supplies included 5,000 worth of blood plasma.

The talk will follow a potluck supper that will begin at 6 p.m. The meeting is free and open to the pubic. Everyone is requested to bring table service and a dish to share feeding three times the number of his or her party.

City government program for students 'successful'

LA VERNE — Under a new city government internship program, nine cities in the Pomona Valley became actively involved in the education of La Verne College students.

Under the supervision of the history and government department, 18 senior students, during May interterm, worked closely with city officials in surrounding communities and became acquainted with the "actual operations of local government," Andria Fletcher, assistant professor of government and director of the program,said.

"Now we find, at the close of the first month of operation, that our program can be termed a great success. Students and city administrators are enthusiastic in their praise, and many are asking that the program be continued on a 12-month basis" she said.

Mrs. Fletcher explained that interns interviewed more than 700 youths and assigned many to local businesses in San Dimas, thereby assisting the city to implement its Youth Employment Service.

In West Covina, where four interns worked and studied full time, the overall success of the intern program prompted the City Council to grant $1,000 to supplement the interns' salaries.

The City of La Verne also has given its upport, and city officials indicate that the program brought into government offices "most capable and efficient" workers, Mrs.Fletcher added.

The internship program begun last spring, allows students to receive credit toward their degrees while working off campus in the program. Only upper classmen and those who have a background in fields related to public service or an interest in pursuing those fields may enroll.

Marshall elementary parents will give views on proposed transfers

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

CHINO — Parents of about 100 pupils assigned to Marshall Elementary School will be polled regarding their children being transferred to either Glenmeade or the Gird schools.

Supt. Royce Lapp said the transfers will be needed because of an "overloading" in the northwest part of the school district.

The children proposed to be transferred reside on Ninth, 10th and 11th streets between Riverside Drive and Chino Avenue. That area was transferred from the El Rancho School attendance area several years ago to prevent double sessions.

Space at Glenmeade

"We do have available space at the Glenmeade and Gird schools," Lapp told the school board. He recommended those students being bused to Marshall be transferred to either of these schools.

A transfer to Glenmeade would require students to be on school buses 45 minutes a day. The busing cost would be $5,782.

Should they go to Gird schools, only a portion of the pupils would reside outside the "walking area," he added. They would be on buses 15 minutes a day, with the cost estimated at $1,932.

"The ethnic balance is one thing causing us not to konsider Gird," said Lapp. Transferring these students to Glenmeade would bring that school closer to the district's ethnic balance of 27 per cent.

Balance increases

The move to Gird would increase the balance of students with Latin surnames from 44 to 46 per cent, he explained.

There are programs available at Gird that would counter balance the ethnic balance at Glenmeade, Lapp added.

The superintendent said he would send out letters tt parents explaining the alternatives and include postcards where they can indicate their preference.

Lapp also proposed scheduling a public meeting next week where parents can ask questions. The time and date will be determined later.

In board discussion, trustee Augustine Tapia told of his concern of children attending their neighborhood schools.

Neighborhood school.

"We should make every attempt to get the children into their school. Their neighborhood school is really El Rancho," he added. "This is where they should go."

Trustee Pete Vander Poel suggested that if El Rancho school gets into the year-around program "then we can get them back there."

In other school boundary shifts, the school board approved transferring the Country Meadows Mobile Home Park in the Whispering Lakes area from El Rancho to Walnut elementary school, and an area bounded by Park Avenue and Riverside Drive, and 10th and 12th streets from group two to group three in the year-around scheduling program at Walnut and Magnolia schools. These latter children would attend a later session.

Child care centers backed in new residential tracts

POMONA — Placing child care centers in residential tracts has won the support of city planners.

The Pomona Planning Commission this week requested a resolution to be prepared endorsing the concept of encouraging child care centers being included in private developments. Members made special reference to the Shadow Hills development on the Phillips Ranch.

"There is a great deal of work being done in state and national levels in this area," said Planner E. J. Gaulding.

"Thre is a real need for this and it can be done by private developers. I would rather see it be done by individuals rather than come under government control."

Planner Clyde Stephens, however, was opposed to adoption of a resolution. "I am in agreement with the concept. I do not believe government should get involved in this at this time," he added.

"I would like to see the applicant work with the developer." Stephens noted there are many mothers working—either by choice or necessity—and their children should receive proper care. "But I feel that government is too involved in personal lives as it is."

The planners acted on a request by Mrs. Jessie Haver Butler of La Verne who asked the commission to support a resolution urging the Phillips Ranch builders to develop a child care center in their new development.

Speakers for the Pomona Valley Chapter, National Organization for Women (NOW), had appeared before the commissioners two weeks ago in support of child care centers.

They reported these benefit both children in their personal development and builders in selling homes to families.

Planners voted 5-1 for the resolution. They asked the city staff to prepare one and present it at the next meeting.

A woman in the audience asked what effect such a resolution would have when builders bring in their plans for a residential development.

"This will show that the Planning Commission is in favor of the concept and is hopeful that developers will go along with such child care centers," said Bart Vlietstra, chairman.

Sanford Sorensen, city planner, said such a resolution will assist the planning staff in working with developers. "It will make developers aware the Planning Commission would like to see these included.

"This gives the staff an official policy and guidelines in discussions with developers," he added.

Two letters supporting Mrs. Butler's request were received by commission members.

"In view of the fact that I believe child care facilities are vastly important to all working mothers and in light of current federal cutbacks, I would like to lend my endorsement to this project," wrote Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-15th Dist.

Mrs. Fong, of Alameda County, is chairman of both the Committee on Employment and Public Employes and the Select Committee on Agriculture, Foods and Nutrition.

William G. Knife, field representative for the State Department of Education, wrote that children's center programs and facilities have expanded during the past few years.

"A large number of public agencies, including school districts and a sizeable number of cities, housing developers and private industries recognize the needs and provide for many programs.

"I would say that both public and private agencies have found it important to meet these needs, as well as finding it good business," he added.

All-year school program starting in Claremont

CLAREMONT — The year-round school program has started at Oakmont Elementary School.

Two groups, totaling 51 students, began July 2, and two more groups will start July 19 and 23, with 50 having registered for these sessions so far.

For new families in the Oakmont area, several options are available. They may start their children either July 19 or 23 or wait until regular school opening in September. The school has 356 students.

The July 23 group has three-week vacations in October, January and late March. The July 19 group gets three-week vacations in late October, late January, and April.

A copy of the master schedule of five groups, including the traditional track, may be obtained by calling the school.

Another feature of the year-round operation is the intersession, or a program similar to summer school, which goes on at school whenever students are on vacation.

Parents should register their children for intersession.

The first intersession, July 30 through Aug. 31, is open to students living anywhere in Claremont.

More information on year-round school or intersession may be obtained by phoning 624-9041, extension 210.

Planners elect Mrs. Douglas to chairman post

CLAREMONT — Mrs. Enid Douglass, director of th oral history program at the Claremont Graduate School, has been elected chairman of the Claremont Planning Commission for the next year.

Mrs. Douglass succeeds James Norris Jr. in the post. She is not the first woman Planning Commission chairman — Julie Monson served in that capacity for the 1970-71 year.

Mrs. Douglass said that she felt that Norris had done an "excellent job" the past year as chairman. As to her being elected to the post, she commented, "Any member of the commission is equally qualified to swing the gavel."

She said that no person on the commission has any distinction over another, that all are talented.

Mrs. Douglass was appointed to the commission in April 1970 to fill an unexpired term, and was reappointed to a four-year term in July 1972.

MRS. ENID DOUGLASS

Before joining the commission, Mrs. Douglass was active in community government, and served on various advisory committees.

During the 1960s she served on a park bonds committee, a capital improvements committee, and a hospital committee which studied the question of whether the community could support a hospital.

More recently she served on a seven-member residential unit development committee, and noted she was the only woman on the citizens group.

Now as a commissioner, she sits on the other side of the table from the developers who were members of the committee, but don't like the ordinance the city adopted in 1972.

She is married to Malcolm P. Douglass, professor of education at the Claremont Graduate School. The Douglasses moved to Claremont in 1954 and live at 1195 Berkeley Ave.

Other commissioners elected to posts for the 1973-74 fiscal year are William McLaughlin, vice-chairman; and Charles Farritor, secretary.

Two shots fired at security guard

SAN DIMAS — Security Guard Norman L. Harrison, 47, told sheriff's deputies that an intruder fired two shots at him in a residential construction site here.

Harrison, of Valinda, said he approached a car parked at the site shortly before midnight when he saw the man exit one of the houses. He said that when he yelled, the man turned and fired two shots at him before he fled in the car. The incident occurred at the end of Paseo Anacapa north of Loma Vista Drive.

2 men with revolver rob service station

VALINDA — Two men, one with a revolver, robbed C & J Self Service gas station at 17903 E. Valley Blvd., Thursday night, sheriff's deputies said. Dennis Ortega, 19, said one man showed a gun after the pair drove in and warned him not to move. Then they scooped up cash from Ortega's desk and drove away.

$370,000 is granted for autism research

CLAREMONT — Claremont Men's College professor Laura Schreibman is one of three California psychologists selected to share a $370,000 grant to work with autistic children.

Miss Schreibman will be working with youngsters from the Claremont area on campus, assisted by senior students from the college and the Claremont Graduate School.

The National Institute of Mental Health grant will allow Miss Schreibman, Dr. Ivar Lovaas of UCLA and Dr. Robert Koegel of UC Santa Barbara to expand a program applying various new eductional and psychological techniques to children under 30 months of age who show severe social isolation.

"We are now trying to select 10 or 12 children in the Claremont area who can qualify for our program," Miss Schreibman said. "These children may be described as living in a shell, emotionally isolated, extremely inward. They are also behind in the acquisition of language, self-help skills, play, etc. As they grow older, they could be diagnosed as autistic."

The children Miss Schreibman is seeking would manifest several characteristics. These could include indifference to other people, refusal of affection, failure to notice peers, repetitive motor activities such as rocking or jumping, flapping of arms, and excessive tantrums. Many of the children being sought for the CMC program will behave as though they are deaf or blind, even though they are not.

The program at CMC involves the application of behavior therapy techniques to these children. The specific goals of the treatment project center on instructing the mother on how to better cope with her child, such as helping him to overcome severely disruptive behaviors and teach him toilet training, dressing, feeding, and other self-help skills. The mother will also learn how to teach her child better communicative skills, such as beginning speech.

Children selected for the program will come to the CMC campus for three or four one-hour sessions weekly. The parents will be brought into the program from the beginning and will work with the children under the supervision of Miss Schreibman.

Many of the children selected for the program will be referred by agencies or family doctors. However, parents who feel their child qualfies should contact Miss Schreibman at 626-8511, Ext. 2835.

Midwest governors shun action on local fuel and energy crisis

RAPID CITY, S.D. (UPI) — Governors of midwest states have backed away from hard decisions on what the government should do about the fuel and power problems troubling their areas.

The annual conference of midwestern governors, which wound up Wednesday, was preoccupied through its four-day course with the energy crisis and the need in the Midwest to get enough fuel to keep agricultural machinery going.

But the governors, in final action, torpedoed a resolution by Gov. Arthur Link of North Dakota endorsing pending legislation to establish a nationwide power grid system to provide wholesale electric power at what Link called "reasonable rates and with the least impact on the environment."

Their reasons were much the same as for an earlier turndown of the resolution of Wisconsin's Gov. Patrick Lucey backing a pipeline to bring Alaskan oil across Canada to midwest terminals.

The governors said they felt they simply did not know enough about the problems and possible solutions to take positive action this year.

Link said of the energy grid plan that it would provide "an interstate highway system for electric power to regions that need it most."

Lucey said the governors voting against him may have had "other considerations."

But Gov. Daniel Walker of Illinois told Link "I'm troubled by this resolution because I haven't done my homework." Gov. Richard Kneip of South Dakota said "I just dont have enough knowledge to know where this legislation is taking us."

Walker and Kneip said they were concerned about possible "nationalization of part or all of the national grid system" under the federal government's control.

"I would guess many people would be against the federal government moving into another area of ownership," Walker said. He had Link's proposals referred to a committee of the National Governors Conference.

Link also failed to push through a resolution asking the governors to oppose federal legislation on state taxation of interstate businesses unless the law would help the state enforce their tax laws.

The governors approved a Link resolution supporting an additional $150,000 congressional appropriation to the Army Corps of Engineers for a study on hydro-electric generating capacity for Missouri River dams.

Also approved was a resolution from Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota urging the federal government to relax its "tight restriction" on soybean exports. Anderson said the restrictions might cost the midwestern states as much as $2.1 billion if the policy was allowed to stand.

Get the job-- positively

Senate okays bill allowing gold owning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate overwhelmingly adopted legislation reecntly allowing Americans to own gold.

The legislation, offered by Sen. Peger H. Dominick, R-Colo., and approved on a 69-21 vote, would allow U.S. citizens to purchase, hold, sell or deal in gold beginning Jan. 1, 1975, or earlier—if President Nixon decrees that it would not have an adverse impact on the U.S. international monetary position.

It was the second time this year that the Senate has approved such a measure.

The Senate and House added similar amendments to the gold devaluation bill but it is locked in conference because of a controversy over an anti-impoundment amendment.

The new amendment was attached to a bill providing for the minting of special quarters, half-dollars and dollars to commemorate the bicentennial of the revolution in 1976. The bill passed by voice vote.

Two divers to live on ocean bottom in $2 million quest of sunken liner

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ever since the liner Andrea Doria plunged to the bottom of the Atlantic after a collision off the coast of Rhode Island, it "has been called the Mt. Everest for professional divers," Donald Rodocker, a former Navy aquanaut, said Wednesday.

That's one reason Rodocker and Christopher Delucchi, another ex-frogman, plan to spend 10 days living in a steel chamber on the ocean bottom in an ambitious attempt to recover $2 million worth of cash and valuables from the wreck.

Rodocker, 27 and DeLucchi, 22, were to leave today for New York. Their underwater home, nicknamed "mother," left Wednesday.

The chamber will allow them to use "saturation diving" techniques they helped develop in the Navy, said DeLucchi, of San Diego, who set the world's record of 945 feet for open sea saturation diving last year while he was an instructor at the Navy's deep diving school.

"Divers who used the Scuba free diving method were hindered by decompression time limitations," he said. "Divers could work for only about 20 minutes before returning to the surface via decompression waiting periods at various depth intervals."

Because of the pressurized gasses they must breathe at such depths, divers risk getting the bends—painful and sometimes fatal bubbles of nitrogen blocking blood vessels—if they do not ascend slowly, exhaling the gases from their systems.

DeLucchi and Rodocker plan to get around that problem by living in "mother," which will be moored to the wrecked ship, and setting out each day for an 8 hour work period. They will have to decompress only once, when they finally surface.

Their goals include the recovery of $1.1 million in cash, which was reportedly in the liner's four safes when it went down in 1956, bronze propellers worth $35,000 each, a $250,000 silver plaque, a 10,000 anchor, the silver and Chrysler "idea car," a Rollschina settings, a 100,000 Royce, a Mercedes and art works sealed in marine shipping containers.

However, said DeLucchi, "it's the adventure, that's what we're mainly after. For all these years, the Andrea Doria has been called the Mt. Everest for professional divers. After all, the tax man will get most of the money."

The Andrea Doria collided with the Stockholm, a freighter, about 45 miles south of Nantucket, R.I., on July 25, 1956. The Swedish ships bow knifed into the Italian passenger liner's side, opening a gash 40 feet wide at the top and running down through seven of the Andrea Doria's 11 decks. Fifty-four persons died and 1,661 were rescued.

The ship now lies on its side under 240 feet of water. There have been numerous attempts to conduct salvage operations. The divers who made them reported the waters in the area have dangerous sharks, the hulk is covered with growths, and the interior of the ship is a jumble of floating furniture, carpets and other objects.

"Mother" is 12 feet long and about 5 feet in diameter. It is equipped with lights, bunks, water, food, power and links to the surface that include closed circuit television.

It was designed and built by DeLucchi, Rodocker and the 10 men of their support team, many of them also former Navy diving technicians.

The support team will be aboard the 83-foot-Narragansett, a salvage and research vessel. If the umbilical lines to the underwater habitat are severed, the chamber can operate independently for about 96 hours, DeLucchi said.

They plan to begin their descent next Wednesday, DeLucchi said, because "there are only about two weeks in July when this stormy area of the Atlantic is relatively calm. It was imperative we make the dive this month or wait until next year."

Default of $400,000 is to be paid

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The Nevada Supreme Court has upheld a $400,000 judgment against a Texas financier in connection with a race track venture south of Reno.

The court said recently that Clyde E. Skeen of Dallas, former president of LTV Inc., must make good the $400,000 promissory note, plus pay 9 per cent interest and attorneys fees to the Valley Bank of Nevada.

The Reno Race Park Inc., got a $400,000 loan from the bank with Skeen guaranteeing the promissory note. Skeen, according to his attorney, A.D. Demetras of Reno, was given the majority of the stock in the company, in return for taking care of the mortgage.

When the bank note was not paid, a suit was filed. Before the trial, Skeen failed to show up at a hearing to give his deposition. District Judge John W. Barrett of Reno granted a summary judgment for the bank.

Skeen appealed, contending it was "an unduly harsh sanction and constituted an abuse of discretion."

But Justice Cameron Batjer wrote in the unanimous opinion, "default judgment will be upheld where the normal adversary process has been halted due to an unresponsive party, because diligent parties are entitled to be protected against interminable delay and uncertainty as to their legal rights."

Reno Race Park Inc. has had a franchise from the state Racing Commission to build a track about 20 miles south of Reno for two years. But Demetras said that financing has not yet been developed so there has been no construction.

Planners deny request for condominium

CLAREMONT — The Planning Commission unanimously has rejected a request for a conditional use permit to build 20 condominium units at Seventh Street and Yale Avenue.

Every resident who attended the commission's hearing on the request felt the development was not correct for the Historical Claremont District.

The request had come in to the city asking for 20 apartment units, but Charles Smith, representing H. B. W. Enterprises, told the commission that the development would be 20 two-story units of a Mediterranean-Spanish motif of "first-line construction."

When the architectural Commission did a schematic review of the proposed development last fall, residents protested the project.

The commission felt that the proposal for units in groups of four, four, four and eight, and inparticular, the garage top open space, would have an adverse effect on the existing neighborhood.

Chairman James Norris said that a different layout or approach might be acceptable and he did not object to the density.

"It is a question of working in something that is compatible with the neighborhood," he said.

A.P. teachers in S. America

AZUSA — A team of four educational specialists from Azusa Pacific College are currently in South America conducting a series of training conferences for teachers and administrators in Christian schools.

The project, named Operation Impact, consists of a two-week continent-wide school administrators conference and three consecutive week-long regional teachers conferences.

Leading the college team is Dr. Leo T. Phearman, a reading specialist and professor of education. Other members include Dr. Larry Birch, chairman of the department of education; Dr. John Carlson, assistant dean of graduate studies; and Ron Cline, dean of students.

The administrators conference is being conducted at a Wycliffe Bible Translators Center some 150 miles from Botoga, Columbia. Regional conferences, focusing on reading and counseling, will be conducted in Brazil, Bolivia and Ecuador.

Pastor 3rd generation minister

WALNUT — The Rev. Bob Shuler III, a third generation minister in the United Methodist Church, is the new pastor of the United Methodist Church in Walnut.

Mr. Shuler's grandfather, the Rev. Bob Shuler, served the Trinity Methodist Church in Los Angeles for 33 years before his retirement. He died in 1965. His father, the Rev. Bob Shuler II, served the Santa Ana Methodist Church during most of his pastoral career.

The new Walnut pastor said he decided to enter the ministry when he was in junior high school. He said he felt a sense of tradition "but that's not what brought me into the ministry."

He was born in Los Angeles and was raised in that area. He graduated from Taylor University, Upland, Ind., and Asbury Seminary, Asbury, Ky. He was ordained as a Methodist elder in 1972.

His new assignment will be his first as senior pastor. He previously served as associate pastor at the Anaheim Methodist Church.

His family includes his wife, Elaine, and one daughter, Jene, 2½.

Mr. Shuler will preach Sunday at the 10:30 a.m. worship service on the theme "Our Friends the Church."

The reception is part of a continuing effort to familiarize the public with the new $3.5-million optometric research and training facility here.

Soap issue cleansed in judge's ruling

Ring around collar of state law yields to cold power of Congress

By M. GENE MEARNS

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — His eyes on Madison Avenue and his mind on the soap section of the corner grocery store, Judge John R. Brown, the chief justice of 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, set a standard Thursday for puns in a legal decision.

The case involved Dade County, Fla., which passed a law requiring extra labels on detergent boxes showing product ingredients by weight. The court told Dade County it could not pass such a law and Judge Brown wrote a concurring opinion. He said:

"As soap, now displaced by after day detergents in the front of Madison Avenue, I add these few comments in the style of that street to indicate my full agreement with the opinion of the court and to keep the legal waters clear and phosphate free.

"As Proctor of this dispute" and ... "the decision represents a Gamble since we risk a Cascade of criticism from an increasing Tide of ecologyminded citizens.

"Yet, a contrary decision would most likely have precipitated a Niagara of complaints.

"Inspired by the legendary valor of Ajax, who withstood Hector's lance, we have Boldly chosen the course of uniformity.

"And having done so, we are Cheered by the thought ..."

Brown said Congress "of course has the Cold Power to preempt ... for it is Crystal Clear that the state law must yield."

The chief justice said Congress' soap regulatory law "is only the Head and Shoulders" while, "with some Joy, the court finds there is such a clause."

But Brown warned that "If we Dash to the heart of the question ... this unequivocal congressional Saluo was directed at such already existing regulations.

"Indeed, Congress intended to wield its Arm and Hammer to Wisk away such local regulations and further, to preclude the growing Trend towards this proliferation of individual community supervision."

He concluded: —

"It is as plain as Mr. Clean the proper action is that the Dade County ordinance must be superseded, as all comes out in the wash."

Outdoor service, ice cream social slated

CLAREMONT — Nancy Thurn will lead the 8:30 a.m. outdoor service Sunday at the Presbyterian Church. She will be assisted by Phyllis Crombie and Charles Mabry.

Dr. James Angell will speak at the 10 a.m. worship service on the topic "He Shall Be Like a Tree."

Members of the Sanctuary Choir will sponsor an ice cream social on the church grounds Sunday at 4 p.m. Hot dogs and ice cream with toppings will be featured.

Entertainment will be provided by two barbership quartets, a children's musical comedy group and players from a local production of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Fourm"; and the Claremont Chamber Youth Chorale. The entertainment program will be presented at two performances at 5:30 and 6:30 p.m.

The church will sponsor a family interest and skills series on Monday nights at 7 at the church during the summer. The object of the series is to have interesting programs which will help members gain new skills.

Some of the programs offered will include instruction in automotive maintenance, fiber and fabrics for those interested in arts and crafts, stretch and sew and a computer demonstration.

Child care will be provided and there is no charge for participation in the series.

18 arrested in protests at White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eighteen persons have been arrested at the White House since last Friday for protesting the continued bombing of Cambodia.

Two more protesters were arrested Thursday when they knelt to pray during a tour of the executive mansion.

The Secret Service said only one of the demonstrators would identify himself. He gave his name as Edward Guinan, 37, a Roman Catholic priest from Washington, D.C. The other was identified by a spokeswoman for the Community for Creative Nonviolence as Mitchell Snyder, 28, also of Washington.

The 18 demonstrators have been charged with unlawful entry after they refused to leave the mansion.

Legislator against aid to N. Viets

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn, D-S.C., said Thursday he was against providing financial aid to North Vietnam and also opposed amnesty for deserters and draft dodgers.

"I am not for amnesty for those who spit on our nation in a time of peril," Dorn told the 54th annual state convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. "Nor am I for rewarding with financial aid a country that killed 50,000 of our boys. If the Communist North Vietnamese had stayed home we would not have had a war. I am not for rewarding them financially for committing acts of terror and agression."

Dorn, chairman of the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs, said he was in favor of maintaining U.S. Forces in Europe and a strong defense position.

He said withdrawal of American armed forces from Europe would be "a green light for the dictator nations of Eastern Europe."

I, Olion Costlow hereby state that I am buying the stock & equipment (less scope) from Bill Green's Shell Service as of July 5th, 1973. This ad will serve as a notice to that effect.

Skulduggery in Olduvai Gorge

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

It was recently Leaked to the press that the fossil skull of a an 2.9 million years old had turned up—or been turned up—on the shores of Lake Rudolf in Kenya. I'll say senior citizen.

Dozens of scientists sift these rich mines of paleontology under Richard Leakery, 29-year-old director of the Kenya National Museum and son of the late famed paleontologist, Dr. Louis S.B. Leakey.

I do not wish to get embroiled in a theological controversy with Garden of Eden-ites, but Leakey's legions claim that Man as We Know Him (and Wish We Didn't) thrived in this equatorial quagmire lo, these many millions of years ago. It depends on what you mean by "thrived." Also "Man."

This is the great thing about fossil head-hunters—they not only have to piece together a jigsaw puzzle of jaw bones and lower tibias, but once having established some sort of character, they have to decide if it has enough of the required characteristics to earn the name of man, or Man. Like, a generation gap.

Thus the fragments that have been called australopithecus are almost Man-like, but most scientists term him (or them) a hominid—he almost made it to Man-hood but he flunked his finals. Leakey Sr. denied this and claimed the austral-whatever-it-is he found in the Olduvai Gorge was First Man. Hurray for Leakey!

However, a word of caution. In my college days I played football against a couple of these australoppthecuses,and to call them human is a mockery on science as well as modern football. (I still get knee twinges on rainy days.)

The australopithecus had teeth larger than modern man, walked on all fours and had a brain of 500 cubic centimeters, about the size of a modern gorilla. It's a perfect description of the blind date I had at junior prom. If Leakey could only have seen her doing the Big Apple!

Paleontologists, anthropoligists, geologists and others who have brains greater than 500 cubic centimeters, are convinced that the hominid, or near-man, is extinct and has been so for a couple of million years, but I'm not so sure. My experiences on the gridiron and ballroom floor in the daze of my youth are constantly being reinforced by my social contacts today.

That hairy-legged waitress that spilled hot soup down my neck the other day—a perfect hominid. That traffic court judge who fined me $51 for absolutely sauntering down Garey—if that isn't an austrolopithecus I'll eat my hat—with my tusk-like canines and incisors. No over-worked and under-payed pawn of Industrial America would bet that his boss wasn't a refugee from the Olduvai Gorge.

Put the skull fragments together however you will, test them with the potassium-argon method, call them what you will. Primitive man is still with us.

U.S. firms abroad face terrorist risk

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American business executive caught in a terrorist kidnaping abroad must depend on his company for his safety. He can hope for little help from his own government.

Terrorist kidnapings have added new dimensions to policy-making for U.S. firms operating in foreign countries: how to insure executive safety and hof — or whether — to give in to ransom demands.

Ford Motor Co. turned over $1 million in extortion money to insure the safety of its employes in Buenos Aires. Eastman Kodak and First National Bank of Boston acquiesced to terrorist demands in Argentina. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. paid a reported $3 million for the safe return, on July 6, of John R. Thompson, the company's president in Argentina.

About $12 million has been paid so far this year in similar corporate ransoms.

The question is one facing more and more companies with operations in high-risk foreign locations. It is one they face alone, according to Business International Corp.

Llewellyn Clague, senior editor of the New York-based research firm, said the company surveyed 20 major U.S. firms to determine what protective measures were being taken or considered to guarantee the safety of management in foreign-based countries.

The thorniest problem faced by these companies is U.S. State Department policy, according to Clague. The State Department, he said, will not put pressure on foreign governments to yield to ransom demands for kidnaped Americans, even if they are U.S. government officials. As for business executives abroad, the department leaves the matter strictly up to local authorities.

The State Department "unofficially chastised" Eastman Kodak for meeting terrorists' demands to free one of their kidnaped executives in Argentina, Clague said.

In recent years, some U.S. companies with foreign operations have countered Washington's policy of leaving matters up to local governments by approaching these governments directly for help, Claque said.

In some cases companies are just now hammering out countermeasures to a ransom threat. Others would not reveal any strategy on the theory minimal publicity would discourage terrorists from taking advantage of widely-publicized ransom payment procedures, Clague said. One company said "praying a lot" still was its official position.

Although the U.S. government has frowned on the payment of large ransom sums to airline hijackers, ransom insurance is available through Lloyds of London and American International Underwriters, Clague said. Premiums for such insurance have skyrocketed in recent months, according to insurance sources, who said $120,000 per $1 million of ransom covering the top five executives in a company now is common.

N.Y.'s tallest hotel will be built in Times Square

NEW YORK UPI) — A $150-million, 54-story hotel that will be the New York City's largest will be built in Times Square, the heart of the city, Mayor John Lindsay announced this week. The scheduled completion date in 1977.

Lindsay said the hotel "ties together perfectly with the concurrent construction of our new convention center and passenger ship terminal on the Hudson River.

"These three pieces will be the keys to the renaissance of Times Square and Manhattan's midwestside," he said.

The hotel will have two parallel major wings and between them, a central skylit atrium with glass enclosed elevator cars.

It will provide 35 stories for 2,020 hotel rooms with other floors for such things as a 1,050-seat theatre, ballrooms, an exhibition hall, an enclosed sidewalk cafe and a revolving restaurant on the top floor.

Seven stories will be used for shops. The registration lobby will be on the 13th floor.

The hotel will be owned by Portman Properties, an Atlanta real estate development firm and Peter J. Sharp of New York City.

It was designed by John Portman who fashioned it after other hotels he designed in Atlanta, Chicago and San Francisco.

Western International Hotels, a United Airlines subsidiary, will operate it. Western International, based in Seattle, operates 55 hotels in 12 countries.

It is estimated the world's oil reserves will last about 100 years.

Bridge

The time for real thought

By Oswald & James Jacoby

His two-club opening was artificial as was North's two-heart response. The final six-club contract was a good one, but chances looked slim indeed after West opened the 10 of diamonds.

John decided that West wasn't leading from the king, but it wouldn't do him any good to hold back dummy's queen so he played it. East produced the king and John won with the ace.

Opening lead—♦10

He cashed the ace and king of trumps. East dropped the six of spades.

John took his spade ace; led a club to dummy while East let go of a low diamond. Then he ruffed dummy's last spade; cashed his ace of hearts; led a heart to dummy's king and noted the fall of the 10 from West.

It was now time for some real thought. John came to the conclusion East had started with exactly eight red cards so that West had started with four of that color.

Hence, West was now holding just one red card which would be either the jack of hearts or a diamond. In that case there was no reason for John not to play a heart and finesse his nine.

If West produced the jack he would have to give John a ruff and discard for the same down one that would result if John rose with the queen.

John played the nine. When it held he cashed the queen and played a low diamond. West produced the nine.

East could not afford to overtake and West had to give John a ruff, discard and the slam.

Haldeman says he didn't know about cover-up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former White House aide H.R. Haldeman has told Senate investigators he neither participated in nor knew anything about the effort to cover up the Watergate scandal, the New York Times said Friday.

The statement by Haldeman, Nixon's closest aide, contradicts testimony given the Senate Watergate Committee by both ex-White House counsel John W. Dean III and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, who both said Haldeman participated in the coverup.

The Times, quoting a 20-page text of the testimony Haldeman made in an interview with the staff of the Watergate committee May 4, reported that Haldeman said he did not know of any cover-up until March of this year.

Eagle, Tomcat at sea in beautiful Navy ship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Has the Pentagon called off the Great Flyoff between the Eagle and the Tomcat?

A Congressional source insists Deputy Defense Secretary William Clements so notified the House Armed Services Committee.

The Defense Department says it isn't so and the plan to engage the two fighters in head-to-head competition is proceeding apace.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., says it doesn't make any difference: his committee has cut off the money for the super bowl of the air.

The question is what kind of plane the Navy will put on its aircraft carriers for the defense of the fleet in the 1980s.

The F14 Tomcat, being built by the Grumman Aircraft Corp., was originally assigned that role. But its cost has soared so high—$20 million apiece, making it the most expensive fighter ever built— that Clements started looking for alternatives.

As acting secretary, before James R. Schlesinger took over the department, he decided to limit the buy of F14s to 313 planes, less than half what the Navy wants. Before any more are produced, he said, the F14 would be stripped down to its essentials and subjected to competitive flight tests with a stripped-down version of a fighter that is being designed for the Air Force by McDonnell-Douglas, the F15 Eagle.

Critics of the plan claim that all it will do is add several hundred million dollars more the cost of the Navy fighter program.

Thursday, as the House Armed Services Committee completed action on a $21.4 billion weapons procurement bill, a reliable source said the committee had been advised that the fly-off had been canceled.

But the Pentagon quickly issued a statement claiming the plan "remains in effect" and "planning for the competition between the F14 and the F15 is proceeding according to the announced schedule."

The congressional source insisted that he had heard Frank M. Slatinshek, chief counsel to the committee, announce Clements' decision during the closed-door meeting.

Hebert said all he knows is that he had lunch with Clements at the Pentagon a few days ago and the deputy secretary said he would not press for the fly-off because of Congressional opposition.

Told of the Pentagon's claim that the fly-off lives, Hebert said: "It might be in effect on paper, but there is no money for it."

He said the committee removed $36 million from the appropriations bill that had been earmarked for test models of the F14 and F15.

U.S. heroin addiction at 'turnabout point'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's chief drug abuse prevention official said Thursday heroin addiction is nearing the "point of turnabout" in the United States.

Dr. Robert L. DuPont, who became director of the White House Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention last month, also said federal programs will concentrate now on getting addicts to go to treatment facilities.

DuPont said the number of U.S. addicts has dropped significantly in recent years. He said there were between 500,000 and 600,000 in the late 1960s and that the number today is probably between 200,000 and 300,000.

"We can now look forward with cautious optimism to the nation's heroin epidemic approaching the point of turnabout," DuPont said. "Our goal is a return to approximately the situation in the 1960s prior to the addiction epidemic years of 1964-1971."

The estimated number of addicts in the early 1960s was 50,000.

DuPont said government drug abuse prevention officials will "no longer wait passively for individuals dependent on heroin to come to treatment centers."

"Rather, we will actively reach out to penetrate the addiction underground and urge heroin abusers to become patients in our varied types of care," he said. He said the drive would be known as "Operation Out Reach."

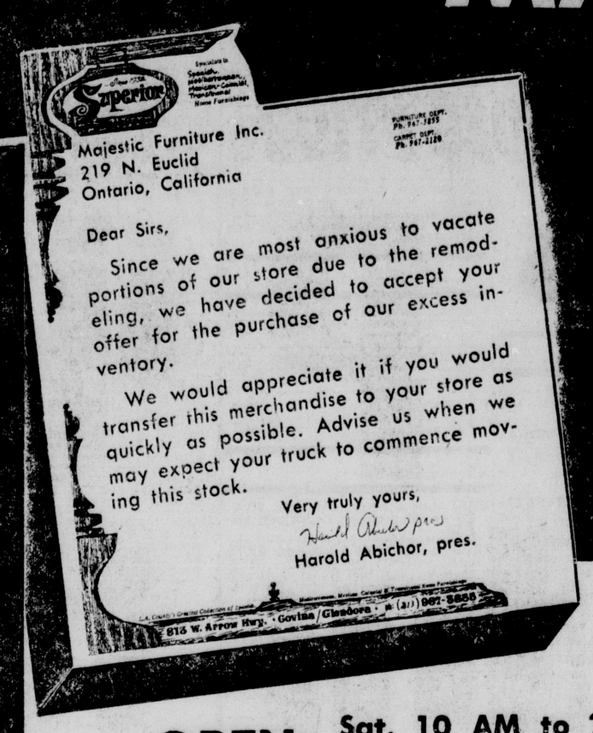

DuPont cited a decline in narcotics-related deaths this year in Cook County (Chicago), Ill.; New York City; the District of Columbia where he formerly headed drug treatment programs; and San Francisco County, Calif., as an indicator of a nationwide slowdown in heroin addiction. Other indicators are a reduction in hepatitis cases traceable to the use of contaminated heroin injection needles and official crime statistics in cities where treatment is available, DuPont said.

DuPont's predecessor, Dr. Jerome Jaffe, said in a report to President Nixon, which was released Thursday, that federally financed treatment facilities have increased so dramatically in the last two years that some cities like New York now have greater treatment capacity than they have patients.

S.F. city employes lose raise

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Proposed pay raises of 17 to 24 per cent for 335 of the city's stationary engineers have been ordered reduced to 4 per cent by the Civil Service Commission.

A commission spokesman said Monday the engineers were "miscellaneous" city employes and not eligible to receive the city's lucrative "crafts pay."

If the original pay raises had been approved by the board of supervisors, it would have cost city taxpayers $600,000.

City attorney Thomas O'Connor said he had some legal doubts about the validity of the unprecedented averaging system used to qualify the engineers for the larger salary boost.

James Wurm, assistant director of the Civil Service Commission, said it was determined that the two highest wage rates used in averaging the 17-24 per cent pay hikes were invalid.

F111 strikes mountain; crew ejects

ZION NATIONAL PARK, Utah (UPI) — An F111A jet fighter-bomber crashed into the side of a mountain while on a training mission Wednesday. Two Air Force majors aboard parachuted out and were not hurt. It was the 38th of the swing-wing planes to go down since they began operations.

The plane, out of Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., narrowly missed the Zion National Park headquarters and Zion Park Lodge when it slammed into Deer Trap Mountain.

Chief Park Ranger Bruce Gardner said, "We thought it was one of our famous thundershowers" when the plane went down about 200 feet above park service headquarters. "The whole lodge began to shake and veryone ran like hell because of the noise. We thought maybe the mountain was coming down."

Of the 37 earlier crashes of the plane, several were during combat missions in Southeast Asia.

What's your reason for not buying a home NOW?

TROUBLED OVER HIGH INTEREST RATES

It is true interest rates have risen, but they do seem to have stabilized in the past several months. And while the rates may seem high, they are not climbing as rapidly as are labor and material costs. An increase or a decrease of ½ percent in interest rates only amounts to 30c per month per $1000 on a 25 year loan. Is it really wise to deny yourself the security, pleasure and pride of home ownership on the vague hope of interest rates going down, thus saving you only $3 or $4 a month? The value of your home will increase at a much faster rate than can be gained by any lowering of interest rates. NOW is a good time to buy!

WONDER WHERE TO BEGIN LOOKING?

Worry no more . . . most folks have found that the best place to shop for that new or lived-in home is in the Classified Real Estate columns of the Progress-Bulletin. It's here (and only here) that each day you'll find the very latest offerings of homes 'for sale' . . . advertised by the area's leading real estate firms and builders. Check the want ads today—and every day—to find the home that satisfies all your needs.

YES NOW IS A GOOD TIME

John, Garvey spark Dodgers to 5-0 win

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — If the Los Angeles Dodgers continue their merry march to a National League West pennant, they can attribute much of their success to their domination of the east.

Compared to a so-so 26-22 record against their Western foes, the Dodgers are a smashing 31-12 against the East.

The latest victim was the Chicago Cubs, the leaders of the East, as Tommy John pitched a five-hit shutout Friday night for a 5-0 win before 49,058 paid customers on the first game of Helmet Weekend.

Hot hitting Steve Garvey provided the offense by smashing a three-run homer off of Chicago ace Ferguson Jenkins in the third inning.

John, who walked only one batter and didn't record a strikeout, kept the Cubs off balance with his mixture of pitches and increasing the Dodgers' staff mark to 20 consecutive scoreless innings. He threw only 104 pitches, 61 of them strikes.

It's obvious it's going to be tough catching the Dodgers as long as their solid pitching holds up.

John is proving a big plus. The lefthander is 9-4 for the campaign after winning seven of his last nine decisions.

"I didn't think I was going to last more than two or three innings," John said after his impressive victory. "I was wild when warming up and didn't have good stuff and it carried over into the game.

"Sometimes, I missed the plate by one or two feet," John laughed "I thought the big play was when the Cubs had two runners on in the sixth inning and Beckert hit that liner to Lopes, who turned it into a doubleplay. That gave me renewed life." As it turned out, it was quite an anniversary present John presented to his wife Sally.

Chicago got only three runners as far as second base all night.

Glenn Beckert hit a one-out double in the first inning for the first threat but was left stranded as John was easily able to retire Billy Williams and Jose Cardenal.

The Cubs put together two singles in both the sixth and seventh innings but John finished strong by retiring the final seven batters.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers had no trouble taking care of Jenkins, who is seeking his seventh consecutive 20-win campaign. The Canadian righthander is 9-7 for the year and is not showing his usual zip, relying instead on junk pitches.

The Dodgers were able to pound out seven hits and drew five walks in Jenkins five innings on the mound but were unable to do anything in the final three innings against relievers Larry Gura and Jack Aker.

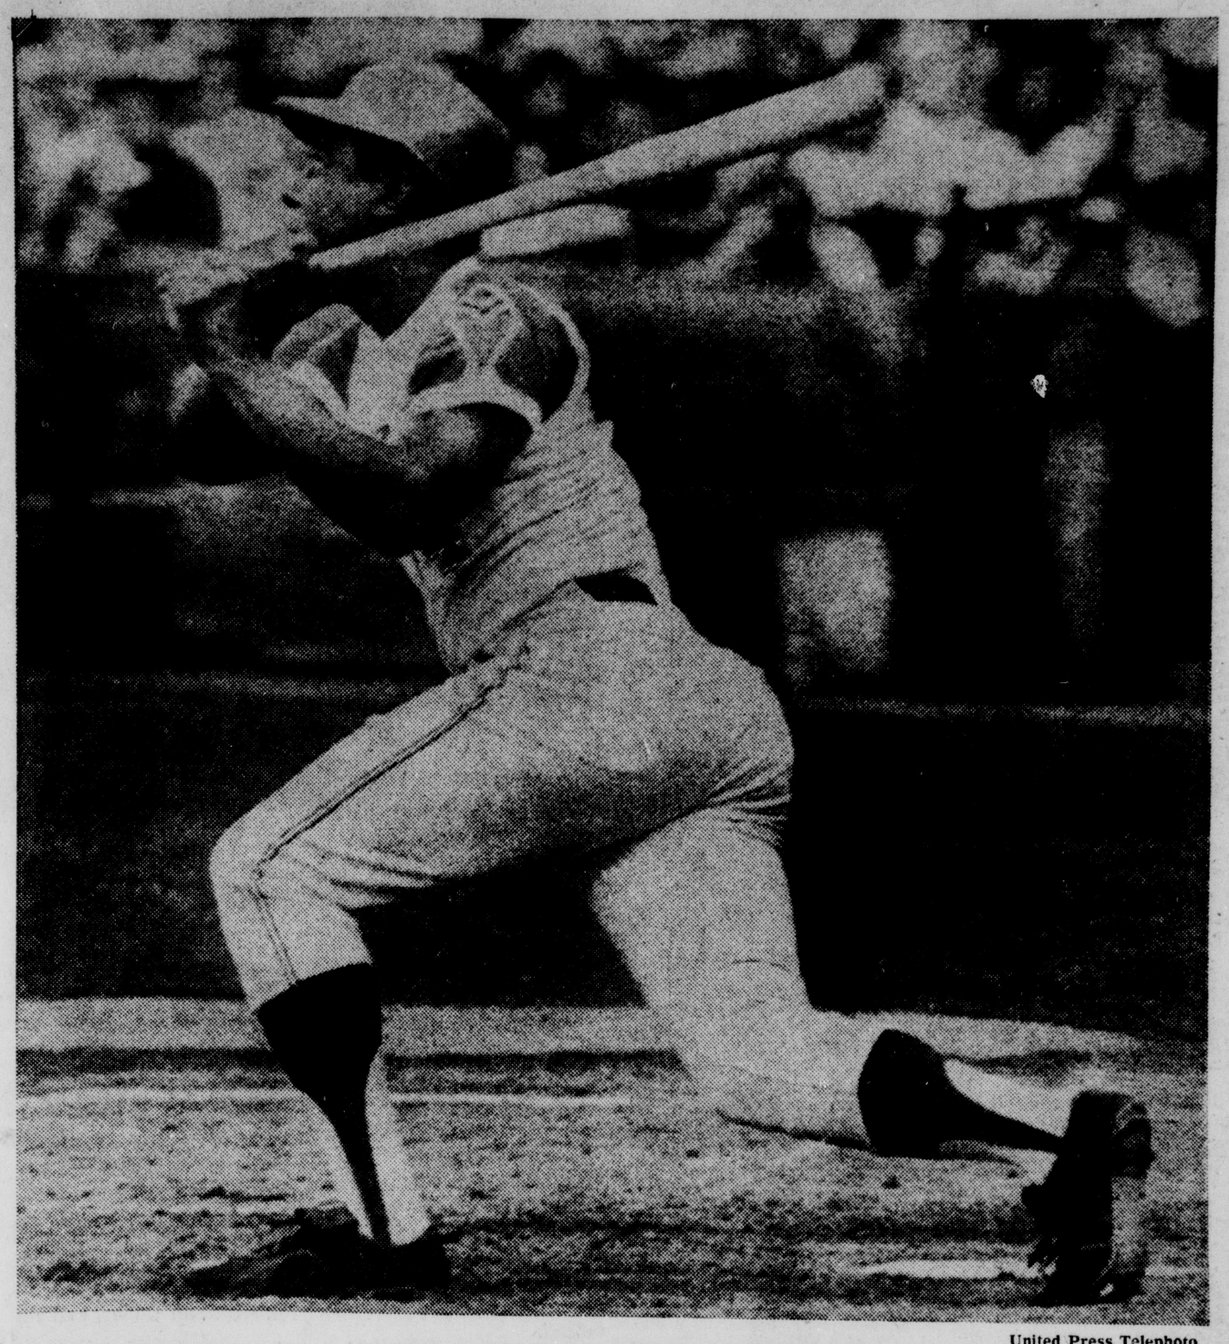

Davey Lopes and Bill Buckner started the four-run uprising in the third inning with back-to-back singles, ending up at second and third bases on a bit of daring base running on Williams.

Davis ripped a single in the fourth inning to score Lopes for the Dodgers' fifth run to give John more insurance then he needed.

Dodger Notes: Al Downing (6-4), who hasn't pitched for over a week, will face Burt Hooten (8-7) in this evening's 7 p.m. game. Claude Osteen (10-5) will face Rick Reuschel (10-5) in Sunday's 2 p.m. contest, the finale of the homstand.

. . . .More helmets will be distributed today and Sunday to all youngsters 14 and under. The three games should draw over 140,000 fans. . . The Dodgers have announced another promotional night, a T-shirt night on September 8th when the San Diego Padres are in town. . . Davis has hit safely in seven games in a row with three runs, one double, two homers and eight RBI's during this span. He has hit safely in 12 of the past 13 games to lead the majors in hits with 117.

BAD HENRY ADDS ANOTHER

Hank Aaron displays his famous home run stroke in the fifth inning of Friday's Atlanta-Montreal clash. 'Bad' Henry hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning, his 24th of the season and 697th of his career. Aaron is now 18 round-trippers short of surpassing Ruth's all-time mark of 714.

Weiskopf holds slim Open lead

TROON, Scotland (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf stood in the drenching rain on the 18th green today and held his breath.

Johnny Miller was addressing a 20-foot putt which, if he made it, would leave the pair tied for the lead after three rounds of the British Open golf championship. Miller, the reigning U.S. Open champion, sent the putt true to the cup, but the ball ringed the hole and came out, giving Miller a bogey five and Weiskopf a one stroke lead at 206 for his 37-74--71 today.

Miller, who had torn Troon apart with a 32 for the first nine, faltered coming in, while Weiskopf had to rally from a near fatal 37 on the front nine. The Columbus, Ohio, hero, winner of over $100,000 in the last seven weeks, had had opening rounds of 68 and 67, but began his third round by bogeying the first and third holes, and then took a horrendous six on the par four ninth.

Coming home, however, Weiskopf regained his form and after a birdie on the 13th pulled even on the 15th when Miller bogeyed.

That set the stage for the drama of the 18th.

Miller's 69 was the low round of the day and was matched by a couple of Britons, including Peter Oosterhuis who led the Masters after three rounds, but Miller faded on the killer back nine as the windswept 7,064 yard Troon course began to exact its revenge.

A couple of British Ryder Cup players, Neil Coles and Brian Barnes, also thrust themselves into contention in fourth place with 213s, while young Lanny Wadkins was fifth on 214, one stroke ahead of Nicklaus and Christy O'Connor of Ireland.

Weiskopf started badly by bogeying the first hole. He got a bird at the second but ran into further trouble with another bogey at the third at which stage he was tied with Miller and Yancey at seven under par.

The 6-4 Columbus, Ohio swinger got his swing under control and now birdied three of the next four holes to regain a share of the lead with Miller, who was on a birdie barrage with four on the first eight holes, but a double bogey on the ninth allowed Miller to turn for home with a two stroke lead.

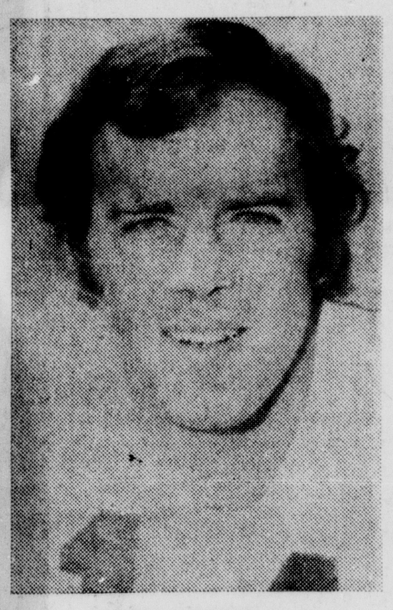

Miller was four under for the day to turn in 32, against the 37 of Weiskopf and Yancey's 34, which left the latter two in a tie for second place.

The battle was really on when Weiskopf and Miller each birdied the par five 11th, and when Weiskopf birdied the 13th he was within one stroke of regaining the lead.

Weiskopf made par for the remaining five holes as Miller bogeyed the 15th and 18th to surrender the lead.

Yancey had appearred in good shape when he birdied the 10th to stand nine under but he made four bogeys in the last eight holes to drop out of contention.

Nicklaus, who had an in-and-outward half of 37, blew away his chances with a trio of bogeys between the 12th and 14th.

Morton skips Dallas camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — Craig Morton, who has waged an eight-year battle against first Don Meredith and then Roger Staubach to become the No. 1 quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys, walked out of training camp Friday and asked to be traded.

Morton told Cowboy General Manager Tex Schramm he was willing to quit football if the Cbwboys could not negotiate a trade.

"I'm still hopeful that Craig will change his mind," said Schramm. "He did ask me to pursue the possibility of a trade, but if this does not prove feasible, he indicated he was prepared to go into private business."

Morton's current contract has one more year to run, but he was attempting to renegotiate the pact on the basis of his performance last year during which he stepped in for the injured Staubach and helped lead the Cowboys into the playoffs for the seventh consecutive year.

Rams sign safety from Arizona St.

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams signed Wayne Bradley, a safetyman from Arizona State, Friday.

Bradley, 6-2 and 170 pounds, was a seven-foot high-jumper on the Sun Devils track team. The 22-year-old athlete was a free agent.

The Rams waived another player, Charles Duke, a cornerback from Northeastern Oklahoma.

The rookies who reported to camp last Sunday will scrimmage Saturday against the Dallas Cowboy rookies at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Ram Coach Chuck Knox worked 11 offensive starters against 11 defensive men Friday on plays learned during the week at the training camp at Cal State Fullerton.

On three home runs

Detroit rips Angels, 8-2

DETROIT (UPI) — Frank Howard, Tony Taylor and Rich Reese homered in support of Mickey Lolich Friday night to power the Detroit Tigers to an 8-2 victory over the California Angels.

Lolich raised his record to 9-8 despite giving up five walks and seven hits, including a two-run homer to Frank Robinson. The homer was the 535th of Robinson's career, putting him in sixth place on the all-time home run list. Robinson is now one home run behind Mickey Mantle and one ahead of Jimmy Foxx.

Robinson's 13th home run of the season came after two out in the seventh after Winston Llenas had singled and cut a 4-0 Detroit lead in half.

But Howard gave Lolich a safe working margin again in the bottom of the seventh by hitting his third home run of the season, a mammoth drive into the upper deck in leftcenter nearly 400 feet away from the plate. Howard had singled in the first inning after loser Clyde Wright, 7-12, had walked Tony Taylor and Al Kaline with one out to drive in the first Detroit run.

Taylor hit his third home run of the season in the fifth inning off Wright. Detroit picked up another run in the sixth when Aurelio Rodriguez singled and came all the way home on Ed Brinkman's double to leftcenter.

Kaline looped a single to right in the third and scored after Howard walked when Bill Freehan singled to center.

Taylor doubled home another run in the eighth and Reese also added a two-run homer in the inning.

American League roundup

Murcer rips three again

Bobby Murcer hit three homers for the second time in his career and drove in all five runs Friday night to give the New York Yankees a 5-0 victory over tht Kansas City Royals behind the six-hit pitching of Mel Stottlemyre.

Murcer's first homer came in the first inning following one-out singles by Matty Alou and Roy White. The other two blasts, which gave him a total of 18 on the season and 65 RBI's, came in the sixth and eighth innings.

Stottlemyre turned in his second straight shutout and third of the season as he pitched out of trouble in the first, seventh and eighth innings to raise his season record to 12-7.

In other American League action, Chicago nipped Baltimore, 3-2, Texas downed Boston, 4-1, Detroit stopped California, 8-2, Cleveland routed Minnesota, 11-2, and Oakland trounced Milwaukee, 13-4.

Eddie Leon capped a three-run ninth inning with a two-out run-scoring single as Chicago beat Baltimore.

The last-minute heroics saved Wilbur Wood from defeat and presented him with his 17th win of the season. Carlos May singled in the first White Sox run and Ken Henderson doubled in the second before Leon sliced his game-winning hit with the bases loaded.

Jim Fregosi, acquired only two days ago from the New York Mets, clubbed a homer and two singles in his first game in the American League since 1971 to lead Texas to victory over Boston.

Fregosi, arriving from New York earlier in the day, singled in the third and fourth, hit his first homer of the year to leftfield with the bases empty in the sixth and drove in another run with an eighth inning sacrifice fly. Jeff Burroughs cracked his 12th homer in the fourth for Texas' other run.

The Cleveland Indians, aided by 10 walks, scored four runs in the fourth inning and added five in the ninth inning to defeat Minnesota.

They scored a single run in the first and four more runs in the fourth inning on just two hits. Cleveland added five more in the ninth. Chris Chambliss drove in one run with a double, another scored on a sacrifice fly by Jack Brohamer and singles by Buddy Bell and Hendrick produced the other runs.

Gene Tenace cracked a grand slam homer in the five-run eighth inning and Ray Fosse drove in four runs with a two-run homer and a two-run double as Oakland beat Milwaukee.

Pirate star's plane unsafe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal investigators reported Friday that the DC7 that crashed and killed baseball star Roberto Clemente and four others was overloaded when one engine failed and another lacked full power on takeoff.

The crash of the four-engine airliner into the Caribbean Sea occurred Dec. 31 shortly after it took off from San Juan, P.R., with a load of relief supplies for victims of the Nicaraguan earthquake.

The National Transportation Safety Board, in reporting on its investigation of the crash, said an eyewitness said he told Clemente, star outfielder for the Pittsburgh Pirates, that the plane was improperly loaded and unsafe.

But the witness, the board said, quoted Clemente as saying "he didn't know anything about this and presumed the plane was being properly loaded.

The report said:

—The DC7 was carrying 4,193 pounds in excess weight on takeoff.

—One engine failed because of damage suffered in an earlier taxiing accident.

—Another engine failed to develop full power because of "excessive wear."

—The plane had not been flown "in approximately four months" prior to its last takeoff.

Stars Himes, Nelson bathe in humbleness

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Staff Writer

AZUSA — Ron Himes and Jeff Nelson were confirmed members of prep sports' upper echelon long before their nominations to the East All-Star squad for the San Gabriel Valley Game Thursday at Citrus College.

To use the cliche, they were in a class by themselves, but it was a class determined by more than raw athletic ability.

Himes and Nelson are refreshing in their humbleness.

Neither is what sportswriters term "a good interview," for the simple reason that neither is eager to talk about himself. The conversation usually gets around to how others have contributed to their lives and careers, and the support their teammates give them.

The parallels between their prep careers are striking.

Both made their marks in football and basketball, but the greatest honor they share is almost an intangible.

Both men came to new schools, Himes to Walnut and Nelson to San Dimas, at a time when neither school ccould boast much of an athletic tradition. Walnut spent two years struggling along in football before Himes, and Nelson was there as a sophomore when San Dimas opened its doors three years ago.

Himes leaves behind him a winning tradition as firmly implanted as any school in the Valley, while Nelson's heroics carried the Saints to the semi-finals of the CIF basketball playoffs.

Each, in his own way, became the first superstar to graduate from his respective school, the first legend schools could build pride around.

Along with their 27 All-Star teammates the two will be making their last local appearance in uniform Thursday. Thereafter, Himes will pilot football teams for Stanford, while Nelson heads for Wyoming U.

A trip to the East practice sessions at Citrus College reveals that success has spoiled neither.

It's an honor for me to be the first athlete from San Dimas to play in such an event," Nelson quietly says.

Though he's representing San Dimas, Nelson will be dedicating his efforts strictly to the East. "I'll be playing for the East. In order to win you have to play for your team, not for yourself."

The best part about playing with a variety of players?

"It's finding out the attitudes of others," Jeff says thoughtfully. "It's finding out how people from other schools and backgrounds are different from you."

Himes is as approachable as ever.

"An interview? O.K., if don't mind talking to a boring person," he says while awaiting his turn for team pictures.

Few share Ron's opinion of himself as a conversationalist.

There is no problem getting such a diverse group of players motivated, according to Himes. "Pride" is his one word answer to what drives the East.

"We know each other pretty well now. We're a bunch of individuals, but we're getting to know each other."

The East got clobbered last year, but Himes claims that really doesn't mean anything one way or the other. "If we'd have won by the same score, I'd be just as excited. Of course, if I would have played in that game, it might be different. But I don't think you need a score to get up for a game."

Himes looks upon the All-Star as not only an honor, but a good game to warm up for his freshman year at Stanford. "It's fun starting over agin. I'd have to do something to get in shape anyway."

If Ron makes it at Stanford, it will be in a prominent position again. He's set on the quarterback job.

"I've trained and prepared for it for a long time. I wouldn't want to change now."

In more ways than one, nobody else wants him to change either.

Atlanta unloads 21 hits

By United Press International

Norm Miller and pitcher Carl Morton each belted home runs to pace a 21-hit attack and power the Atlanta Braves to a 15-6 second game win Friday night after the Montreal Expos had won the opener 11-7 on a seven-run sixth inning rally that featured a grand slam homer by Bob Bailey.

Hank Aaron, who sat out the second game, hit a three-run homer in the opener for Atlanta. It marked no. 697 for Aaron, leaving him just 17 short of Babe Ruth's mark of 714.

The Braves jumped on Ernie McAnally, 6-4, with six straight hits in the second inning of the second game, including Miller's three-run homer and a two-run shot by Morton with none out.

A two-run triple by Mike Lum in the fourth extended his hitting streak to 18 straight games and Lum also singled home two runs during a six-run eighth.

Bailey's second grand slam of the month and 18th homer of the year and a two-run pinch blast by Jim Lyttle erased a 7-1 Braves lead in the sixth inning of the first game. Montreal's Ken Singleton had a homer in the opener.

Elsewhere in National League games Cincinnati beat New York 2-1 then lost 7-5, Philadelphia nipped Houston 5-3, Los Angeles blanked Chicago 5-0, St. Louis nipped San Diego 5-3 and San Francisco beat Pittsburgh 5-2.

Wayne Garrett started a four-run first inning with a double and singled in two runs in the eighth inning as the Mets edged Cincinnati after the Reds won the opener on Jack Billingham's two-hitter.

Ray Sadecki, making only his second start of the season, allowed three runs and seven hits in 6 2-3 innings to pick up his first victory in the second game.

In the opener, Billingham matched his career high for victories as he boosted his record to 13-5. He stopped the Mets except in the fourth inning when Garrett singled and Jones doubled for the only Met run of the game.

The Reds scored twice in the third inning off Seaver including Joe Morgan's 12th homer. Seaver, who allowed six hits in seven innings, is now 9-5. It was his first decision since June 24th.

Del Unser blasted a three run homer, Bill Robinson and Denny Doyle each hit one as the Phillies beat Houston. Wayne Twitchell, going the route, posted his seventh victory in 10 decisions while Don Wilson was charged with his 10th loss in 16 decisions.

Luis Melendez doubled in Ted Simmons from second base to break a 3-3 tie in the ninth inning and Mike Tyson followed with a triple as St. Louis defeated the Padres.

Rick Wise, 11-4, won his eighth game in his last 10 decisions while rookie Frank Snook, recalled earlier in the day from Alexandria of the Texas League, was the loser. Johnny Grubb's fifth homer of the season tied the score in the eighth. Willie McCovey, who had been restricted from five games last week for not hitting, drove in four runs with his 15th homer and a triple and Tom Bradley pitched a four-hitter in leading the Giants to a victory over the Pirates.

Solo homers by Richie Hebner and Al Oliver staked Pittsburgh starter Dock Ellis to a 2-0 lead, but the Giants scored three runs in the sixth, two of them coming on McCovey's homer. McCovey went into the game with a .244 batting average.

Astros' Dierker off disabled list

HOUSTON (UPI) — The Houston Astros Friday placed pitcher Larry Dierker on the active roster. Dierker, the only 20 game winner in Astro history, had been on the disabled list since June 21 with a sore shoulder.

The Astros optioned relief pitcher Jim York to Denver of the American Association to open the room on the roster for Dierker. York had a 3-4 record with a 4.68 ERA in 39 games.

McCleod traded to WHA Blades

CHICAGO (UPI) — Chicago Cougar goalie Jimmy McLeod was traded Friday to the New York Golden Blades of the World Hockey Association for an undisclosed future draft choice and an undisclosed amount of money.

Jacques Demers, the Cougars' director of player personnel, announced the trade. He said it was a "tough decision" because McLeod, 36, "was our most valuable player in our first season."

Demers said Cam Newton, 23, who jumped from Pittsburgh in the National Hockey League, was expected to be the Cougars' goalie.

Spare Moments

After 19 tournaments on the 1973 Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) tour, Munster, Indiana's Don McCune has compiled some impressive statistics:

—Five tournament victories, the earliest a pro bowler has won this many and more than double the total of two, which McCune had captured in his previous seven years on the circuit.

—Earnings, so far, of $54,540 to easily top the list of 1973 money winners. McCune's best season before netted the crewcut righthander only $33,000. And there are still 14 tourneys left in the season.

Despite not making the finals this week in Tucson, Ariz., McCune has already made himself the runaway leader for Bowler of the Year laurels, an honor most people had conceded to Don Johnson before the year began.

It seems that the secret to McCune's success has something to do with a substance called MEK, methyl ethyl ketone, available at any paint store for about $10 for five gallons.

Word got out in Portland, three weeks ago, that McCune had been soaking his plastic shelled Brunswick Crown Jewel bowling balls in something which softened the outer shell to such an extent that you were able to put your finger in the shell, making an indentation, and then watch it pop back up, like a sponge.

The effect of this soaking makes the ball hook sharply right before striking the pins, curiously something that the pros were trying to get away from just a few years back.

But now, with the amount of oil they face each week, many would like a little more finishing power at the end, and this soaking of the balls apparently gives the desired result. And at least it has worked for McCune, who has been applying this soaking process for a little over a year.

After word leaked out in Portland, several other people tried this technique for the next week's tourney in Fresno. One of the new converts was Woodland Hills' Dale Glenn. Dale, who hadn't made the finals all year, led the qualifying at Fresno and in the first round of finals Sunday night, rolled 2003 for the eight games, an average of 250.

McCune finally wound up winning the title with Glenn winding up third, his best PBA performance ever. But Dale might have established himself as the most influential person in the PBA as after watching him bowl, nearly everyone went out to soak a ball or two for last week's Redwood City tourney, which McCune also won, and 19 of the 24 finalists were using soaked balls.

The soaking process is very simple. The first thing required is the purchase of big bucket and some MEK, acetone or other hot solvent. Then soak the ball, drilled or undrilled, for around an hour. If the ball is new, and then soaked, the drill bit might waver upon drilling, so usually the process goes drill, plug, redrill.

A word of warning to the average bowler before rushing out to buy out the local paint store of MEK. This new idea in bowling is really only effective on oily conditions, something the average bowler never sees in Southern California.

Now that everyone on the tour is using the soaked ball, what will this do to McCune's hot streak? Probably nothing. He now has the confidence and, as seen in Redwood City where everyone was a "soaker," McCune can more than handle his own. In fact he captured that event despite winning just 13 of the 24 head-to-head matches. He was 200 pins ahead scratch of runner-up Earl Anthony.

So who is going to be hurt most by the new soaking. One person, and by his own admission, is Don Johnson.

Although not many people know it, Johnson admits that he is not an accurate bowler. "Over the past few years, with the way conditions have been I have had a two or three board area to play with, giving me a natural advantage over the other people," Johnson explained in Redwood City.

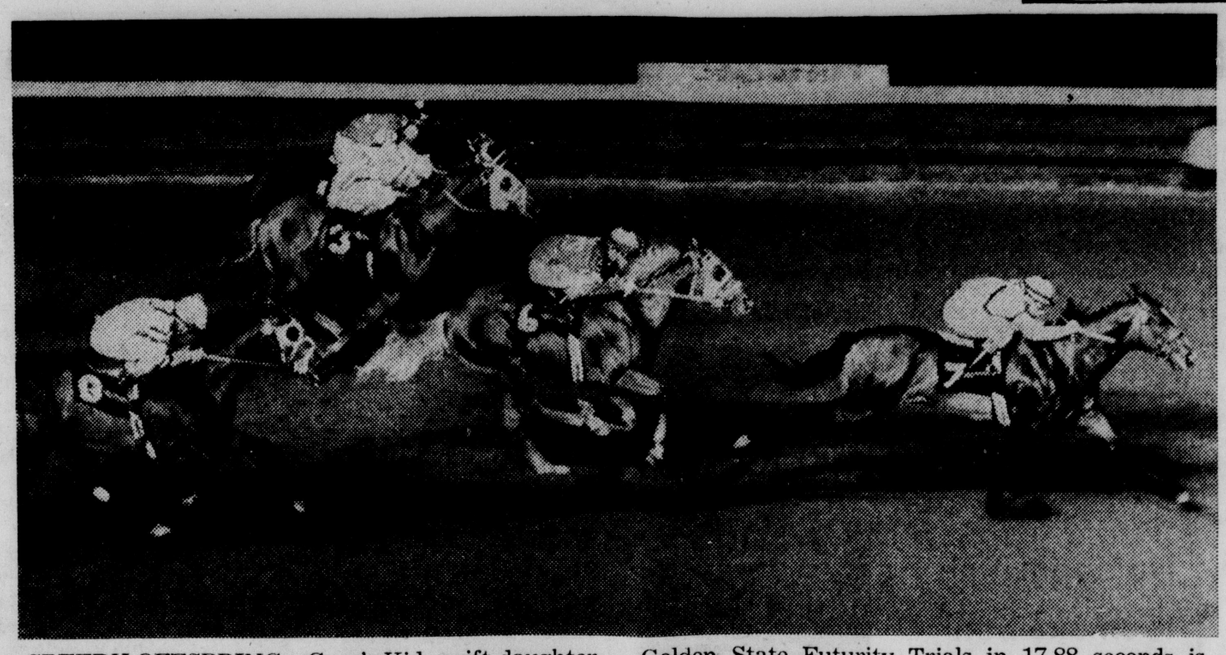

"My armswing is such that I can't hit a single board like most of the other guys can. So now that they have come up with the soaked balls, it gives them a few more boards to play with and now they have the same advantage that I was able to enjoy for the past two seasons."

So bowling, at least professionally speaking, is undergoing changes. It is all legal, by the way, as ABC rules make no specifications on the hardness of the outer shell of a ball.

But will this be the long termed anwser to success on the tour? Most pros think not.

"Sure," said Jay Robinson, SoCal Bowler of the Year in 1972, "this might be the immediate answer, but the PBA knows so much about lane maintenance that they could set up a condition for whoever they wanted to win. So after the scores get too high, and the same guys start dominating, the shot will probably change."

And then it will be a race to see who can discover the new advantage creating secret.

Pony-Colt vs. Sr. Division-Big League

Baseball programs clash

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — It was almost three years ago when the Pomona Baseball Commission Executive Committee introduced a Master Plan which would replace the Pony and Colt League programs in Pomona with Senior Division Little League and Big League programs.

And now those two new divisions have grown so popular in the valley that they're are starting to cut into the larger organizations of Connie Mack and American Legion.

After only one year of existence, the Big League teams in Pomona have expanded from two teams to four, and when San Dimas and Diamond Bar were added a new league was formed.

At that pace it would seem as though the Senior Division for 13-15 year olds and the Big League for 16 through 18 year olds could quite possibly be the programs to watch in future summers.

"It's been a big difference," commented Little League District 20 administrator Dick McCormick from Diamond Bar. "We've gotten a lot more boys involved."

The idea for developing the Big League and Senior Division programs was not to wash out the Pony and Colt Leagues. But since those two previous organizations were running into some financial problems, the baseball board decided to make the move toward something a little more fiancially sound.

"The Big League and Senior Division programs have a bettter chance of succeeding in a strong Little League area," McCormick pointed out. "The Little League has its organization behind the programs."

The beginning of these two new divisions didn't first start in Pomona.

"Big League had started around other parts of the country and then Pomona got wind of it," explained Pomona Parks and Recreation Director Phil La Pierre.

"Personally, I think it's the best thing for youth baseball," added La Pierre. "At one time there were 11 different youth baseball organizations in town. Now they've just got four Little League divisions (minors, majors, senior division and big league), plus Connie Mack and American Legion."

La Pierre went on to discuss why the Colt and Pony Leagues were forced to fold after Senior Division and Big League came on the scene.

"Pony League was suffering financially, but the Colt League was doing pretty well," he said. "But when Big League was developed, it cut into the Colt League program because it offered baseball to the same age group.

"It was first designed to let the Colt League play for one more season even after the other two divisions were put into effect, but it just couldn't get up enough interest to stay on."

The Big League was also one of the causes which forced the Pomona Connie Mack Kings to fold this season. The program offered summer competition to the same age group as did Connie Mack, and for some reason the Big League won the battle for talent.

But both McCormick and La Pierre don't agree that the Big League will conflict with American Legion for a few years.

"At present time, it (Big League) probably would not effect American Legion very much if at all," stated McCormick. "The American Legion has 25 to 30 years of history and tradition. Not only that but it does offer a better class of baseball and has better competition and more exposure. A few years from now the Big League should be a definite competitor with American Legion for talent. I also think, and this is what I've heard floating around, that in time it is entirely possible that the American Legion will up its age group to 18-20 year olds."

"The way it's set up now, I don't think Big League would cut into the Legion," said La Pierre. "The better kid still has the desire to play American Legion ball.

"There are advantages of playing Big League," La Pierre added. "Especially for a boy who works. Big League's schedule is perfect because the teams play every Wednesday and Sunday—which is different to the American Legion schedule which is sort of flexible."

So for the meantime, the American Legion program seems safe.

Inexplaining why he thought the Pomona Connie Mack team had to fold, La Pierre said, "There just wasn't room in this town for three organizations offering baseball to the same age level—something had to give."

Big League and Senior Division play may be expanding quickly, but not everybody is happy with it.

John Baird, who had a foot in both Colt League and Big League, was against the conversion right from the start.

"I first got into summer baseball at this age group and worked with the Colt League program," Baird revealed. "I was impressed with the boys at that age level. They needed a baseball organization and Colt League drew from all over town. You'd have kids from the south part of town playing on the same team as the kids from the north side of town."

Baird then went on to tell how the Pony League was dropped.

"The Ted Greene League was powerful and well off financially, but some of the people affiliated with the league wanted to get rid of a few individuals. I couldn't see the change."

Baird, who is serving his last year as Big League director for Ted Greene, thinks the competitiveness has gone down since the Colt League and Pony League days.

"This year every league has a team on the field which lost a great deal of competitive spirit," he said. "The grade of ball is just not what it used to be."

Claremont is one city in the Pomona Valley which has declined to victimize its Pony and Colt League programs in order to provide for a Senior Divsion and Big League program.

"When the boys go from the Little League to Senior Division, it's a massive jump," explained Claremont Colt-Pony president Art Nelson. "When you jump from the Little League the baselines go from 60 to 90 feet. In our opinion it's too much for the boys, very few can make that jump.

Nelson indicated that there is a very slim chance of Claremont switching over.

"What we did," he started, "was we set up a meeting with the Little League officials and we came to the understanding that they wouldn't try to compete with us. We gradually move the boys up, and I think it's better for the players this way."

The Pony League program in Claremont has expanded in the past year from an 8 to 12 team league, while the Colt League has gone from a two-team league to a four-team circuit. Plans are scheduled to expand the Colt League to six teams in the future.

For Pomona, the Colt and Pony League programs didn't work, so the city went to the Senior Division and Big League. But for Claremont and the other cities which have retained the older programs, the Pony and Colt League programs worked out and as long as they do, there doesn't seem to be any changes necessary.

Mota hoping for All-Stars

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Manny Mota has never played in an All-Star game.

At 35, the likeable veteran from the Dominican Republic is running out of chances.

At the All-Star break last season, the Los Angeles Dodger outfielder was tied for the National League lead in hitting at .332 with countryman Cesar Cedeno of Houston. But he was bypassed.

As the 1973 All Star game nears, Mota, the solid professional, again finds himself out in front of the league's hitters with a .345 average.

For the first time in his 12year major league career, Mota found his name on the computer ballot.

"I would like to play and it would be a great honor," he declared, "but I won't be mad if I'm not picked."

If Mota is chosen, it will be as an extra outfielder. The choice is up to Sparky Anderson, the Cincinnati manager.

"The All-Star game . . . the batting title . . . both would be nice but this is a team game and the pennant always comes first," he said with a friendly smile.

Mota started the season with a .302 career average, one of 10 active major league players with .300 batting averages in more than 10 seasons of play.

He is not a big name in the eyes of the fans, though, because he is not a power hitter. the smallish, 5-11, 168-pounder has 30 home runs in his big league career with the San Francisco Giants, Pittsburgh Pirates, Montreal Expos and Dodgers.

"The All-Star game should not," he said, "be a popularity contest. The players should be selected on the basis of what kind of job they are doing.

"Maybe the fans shouldn't pick the teams. Maybe it should be up to the players. Or the writers."

Mota, who hit .323 last season, is still looking to play in his first World Series, too

"This is a very good team," he assessed, "It has a good balance of youngsters and veterans. These kids believe they can win and I'm convinced they can.

"We have solid pitching, we have the defense and we have the hitting. We may not have the power of some of the other teams but we can accomplish the same thing with singles and doubles and triples as they can with home runs."

Surprisingly, Mota is worried most about Houston. After Wednesday night's games, the Dodgers led the National League West by 5½ games. The Astros were 8½ back.

"Houston has had some problems," he noted, "but man for man they have the best balance. I may be wrong but I think they're the ones we're going to have to beat."

The Dodger veteran may be approaching the end of his career but he doesn't talk like it.

"I feel fine," he said. "I know I cannot run as well as I did when I was younger but I think I run well enough. I get tired but I think everybody in this game gets tired."

At Montreal, Mota suffered through a 23-game losing streak in 1969 before being obtained by the Dodgers.

When the young Dodgers lost their first six games in July, many had thought the bubble had finally burst. Not Mota, though.

"These kids did not panic," he said. "They kept going about their business. That's what I like about them. They have a lot of confidence, an aggressive confidence, that sets them apart."

Hollywood Derby set for first Sunday run

INGLEWOOD — The Hollywood Derby, won a year ago by Riva Ridge and prior to that by such thoroughbred greats as Round Table and Swaps, will be raced for the 33rd time this weekend at Hollywood Park, but in many respects it will be the start of something new.

Never before has the Derby been run on a Sunday, but that will be the case this year, and never before have the conditions called for the starters to carry level weights of 126 pounds over a mile and one-half on the Lakeside Turf Course.

As a pre-Derby Day attraction today, at least a dozen two-year-old fillies are expected to vie when Hollywood Park presents the estimated $100,000 Hollywood Lassie Stakes, title-deciding event of the summer for freshman misses.

Eleven three-year-olds — 10 colts and lone filly—are scheduled to contest the derby, including three sophomores who will represent the East and lend an intersectional flavor to the race.

Included in this trio is French-bred Amen 2nd, surprise winner of the recent Cinema Handicap. That nine-furlong turf battle failed to establish a Derby favorite and Sunday's renewal appears to be the most wide open in history.

Kirrary, the filly Card Table and Right Honorable finished in a photo behind Amen in the Cinema and all are slated to try him again in the Derby, as are Groshawk, who disappointed as the Cinema favorite, and London Company, one of the eastern invaders, both impressive stakes winners this year and highly-regarded despite their Cinema efforts.

Big Whippendeal, a son of former Grass Horse of the Year Assagai, and Twice a Prince, second to Secretariat in the Belmont Stakes, are to other leading Derby candidates.

Favoritism in the Lassie is likely to rest with Calaki, a speedster who has registered two straight Hollypark wins. However, she will have plenty of opposition, with Special Team, Special Goddess, Poona's Double, Twin Buttes and Lady By Choice all regarded strong upset possibilities.

Religious community enters third arena of labor controversy

By REV. DAVID POLING

El Paso, Tex., now appears to be the third arena of controversy and concern for Christian activits. First it was grapes in California, then lettuce in Arizona, and now slacks in Texas.

For nearly a decade Cesar Chavez and his United Farm Workers caught the imagination of many people across the country and not a few churchmen who supported his grape, then lettuce boycott. Social justice is central to the gospel and the religious overtones of Chavez appeal and nonviolent strategy rang many church bells. So why not boycott Farah and join in the call of Bishop Metzger who has asked for national support of the Amagamated Clothing Workers of America strike against the El Paso manufacturing plant?

At first glance, or first reading of the newspaper advertisements that have appeared in several Eastern papers, Farah is the villain of the garment industry, rushing a host of Mexican-Americans with a sweat-shop system and a wetback wage scale. The socia injustice (because they are not unionized) is traced to William Farah and his outspoken opposition to a union contract. His rhetoric does sound like 19th-century economics and his paternalistic stance makes a perfect target for those who support the organizers.

In response to an appeal from some of his Catholic flock, Bishop Sidney Metzger, longtime prelate of El Paso, gave public endorsement to a strike and boycott of Farah products last year. Since that time has urged fellow Catholic bishops to endorse and asked ecumenical groups to gain church support for his plea.

The bishop's strongest weapon is the historic stance of the Christian church for the downtrodden and poor. Out of this came support for the union movement and many churches have powerful statements for the cause of organization of workers. Yet in 1970s much of the public and many of the workers are not so charmed by the attractions of union leadership and philosophy. The enormous shakeup of the steel workers, and the Teamster style of operations has certainly been counter-productive. In three years of campaigning, the union has not made much of a dent in the 8,000 employes of Farah. It appears that the people on the production line prefer the paternalism of a Willy Farah to that of James Hoffa. But the issue of boycot is much alive and Bishop Metzger's charges must be discussed.

The boycot has involved many church and religious groups around the country. Councils of Churchs and ministerial organizations have asked for information and the bishop has written more than 18 pages in response.

He has argued that collective bargarining is absent and that social justice grossly impaired. He notes that his information comes from local workers who complain about the performance required at Farah, the low wages, the retirement provisions and the lack of a company published personnel policy. Sick and maternity leave were also grievances mentioned. Job security and production quotas seem to be the most vital is-

No opposition to smoke ban

OAKLAND (UPI) — Enforcing a no smoking ordinance in Oakland's department stores is turning out to be surprisingly easy, managers reported.

Thoughts

From the Living Bible

You know what I was like when I followed the Jewish religion—how I went after the Christians mercilessly, hunting them down and doing my best to get ride of them all. I was one of the most religious Jews, and tried as hard as I possibly could to follow all the rules of my religion. But then something happend! For even before I was born God had chosen me to be his, and called me to reveal his Son within me so that I could go to the Gentiles and show them the Good News about Jesus.

Galations 1:13-16.

A MINISTRY OF MIRACLES

ROXANNE BRANT
CRUSADE LOCATION
305 E. ARROW HIGHWAY — POMONA
— 4 NIGHTS ONLY —
SUN., JULY 15 - WED., JULY 18
(Sun. 7 P.M.; Mon., Tues., Wed. 7:30 P.M.)

She looks like the kind of young woman you might find out playing tennis in the afternoon, probably at a swank country club in a restricted area of New England, not at all the type of person you would expect to find preaching the gospel or running a Crusade of Miracles.

Yet this is what she does and is doing.

Roxanne, a young minister with a Presbyterian background and a Master of Divinity degree, has studied at Harvard Divinity School, Boston University School of Theology, and Gordon Divinity School (from which she graduated).

The Rev. Miss Brant's background would seem to be anything but preparation for the teaching-healing field. She was literally born with a gold spoon in her mouth, as her father is a well-to-do scientist.

She attended the exclusive Dana Hall School in Wellesley, Mass., and would have been a debutante but for the fact that she staged a minor rebellion "against such sham."

She studied piano and was soloist with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. However, she refused to enroll at Radcliffe or Wellesley or Mount Holyoke, the status symbol women's colleges of New England, and matriculated at the University of Colorado.

"All this time I was trying every conceivable type of philosophy to find a way of life for myself," she related, "but one night in the university library I had the same type of experience that is recorded in the ninth chapter of the Book of Acts.

"All in one night," she added, "I was converted and called to the ministry and instead of fitting myself for a career as a medical doctor and concert pianist I started my studies to prepare me for service to God."

In this ministry, she says, it is not primarily through the laying on of hands that miracles occur. Instead, the sovereign and unpredictable Spirit of God falls upon certain individuals and sections of the audience, healing people as their physical problems are called out through the gift of the "word of knowledge." The worship is intense and God gets all the glory as scores of those healed crowd toward the microphone to testify to amazing healing miracles. Often, several hundred people are healed in a single service.

"Most important," Roxanne says, "is the realization that Christ is the healer, not I. No human being has any healing power; but Jesus heals today as He did when He walked the earth nearly 2,000 years ago. And it is to Him that we give all the glory."

Lucille Ball keeps rolling as queen of home television

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television executives take for granted Lucille Ball's hold on the viewing audience, and you sometimes wonder if the network people genuinely appreciate the miraculous nature of her video longevity.

The trouble with being the kind of superstar that Miss Ball is—with ceaselessly solid ratings and a long-held reputation as queen of the home medium— is that people do, indeed, take her, and perhaps even her talents, for granted. I sometimes think that if she took a season off and then came back, she would be regarded with fresh appreciation upon her return, and might well acquire even more fans than the countless number she already has.

Miss Ball will be back on CBS-TV again next season with her situation comedy series, which has undergone various alterations over the years—but which has basically been a succession of shows set up to allow her to display her unique and often remarkable talents.

It really doesn't matter much whether the individual episodes of Miss Ball's series are always up to snuff—what matters is to watch this amazingly commanding artist take charge. It seems a simple thing: ask a star to take charge of the proceedings for a while— proceedings that have been constructed to show you off at your best. But consider how many name performers have been unable to carry off this task on video even for a short while. And yet here is this zany redhead who has done it week after week' year after year.

The fact is, though, she can do just about anything in Show Business—and with the authority, the presence, that only the truly great stars can radiate. Not merely a marvelous knockabout comedienne, she can sing, dance and act— and her acting has a broad range, although my personal feeling is that she registers most effectively when she appears in witty movie roles with a touch of romance to them. If you haven't seen a bob Hope-Lucille Ball movie you've missed out on some crackling professional entertainment.

I haven't spoken to Miss Ball personally in a long time, but I recall her as a standup dame, someone who could clearly outmaneuver anyone in show business who might try to give her a tough time—and a woman who gave the impression she would be great fun to have a few drinks with. She talked straight, with a clear lack of interest in small talk and other frilly aspects of her business.

There are a lot of name performers I wouldn't walk across the street to see. But Lucille Ball is something very special to me. The episodes of her video series are not always exceptional, but she delivers enough delightful moments overall to make the show worth tuning in. She is one of our alltime major Show Business stars, and television, as important as it is to her, is just one of the fields she can dominate. Put her on the stage, or in a movie, and you know a star is up there. She is All-Pro.

Reviews of movies

By Sarah Smiley

"The Neptune Factor," at Cinema II, Montclair Plaza, is a strange mixture of technical competence, grossly implausible scientific mumbo-jumbo, tedious scripting and routine acting. It's about a research team studying undersea conditions that cause earthquakes. In the process, part of the team gets caught in an (you guessed it) earthquake that traps the underwater lab and separates it from its home ship above water. Most of the movie is devoted to the rescue, an incredibly dull and lengthy process made bearable only by some excellent photography of marine life. The performers (Walter Pidgeon, Yvette Mimeux, Ernest Borgnine, and Ben Gazzara) are given little to do but hunch over rows of complicated levers and dials, muttering bits of technical jargon at one another, and so most of the scenes are stolen by the fish.

"Super Fly T. N. T." is a surprisingly placid movie for a black action film, the genre from which we have learned to expect lots of fast moving shocks and jolts, if nothing else. Evidently star Ron O'Neal, who also directed and co-authored the script, decided to get serious in this sequel and explore the problems of black identity. The unfortuanee result is a clumsy, slow jumble in which neither the causes of black pride or entertainment are well served. At the Fox, Pomona.

"Hitler: The Last Ten Days" is a serious and seemingly painstaking attempt to present an accurate portrait of the last days in the life of Hitler. Much of the screenplay is based on the remembered observations of a member of the German army who was present in the bunker where Hitler and his closest associates spent their final weeks and who survived the war to recount his experiences. The film also has the approval of Hugh Trevor Roper, a distinguished British historian.

Yet with all this attention to detail, and despite an impressive performance by Alec Guiness as Htler, the movie comes off as amazingly dull, an oddly unaffecting, though careful, piece of work. At the Montclair Theater.

The difficulty of supporting Bishop Metzger and the boycott of Farah products is revealed in the following issues, not generally broadcast in this debate:

— Bishop Metzger has never visited a Farah manufacturing facility. These are not border sweatshops. Indeed, they may be the most modern garment plants in the world.

These one floor, air conditioned , attractively lighted facillties are the newest in the the industry. Farah not only provides an enormous cafeteria but is famous for his medical treatment and eye-glass clinic—free to the employes. He is absolutely paternatlistic. He feels that people have to see what they are doing and in a high-speed production line, it is a must.

— Bishop Metzger was not given the correct details concerning wages. Farah pays the minimum federal wage and is usually on par with several of the other union-shops in town. Farah is probably ahead on annual income since many of the garment factories do not sustain a full year's production.

— Bishop Metzger states in one of his letters that a representative of the Texas Employment Commission visited the El Paso factory and noted that the workers were treated like machines and not people. Further, this individual was not allowed to visit with employes at random. For this reason, the bishop will not visit one of the plants. Yet and official communication from the Texas Employment Commission states that they have no knowledge of any such visit by their staff.

— There has been regular comment — often in Eastern circles — that Farah gets the edge on the slack-pants industry by hiring wet-backs from Mexico. The fact is that Farah has inisted on hiring American citizens (mostly Spanish) and is currently appealing a government policy that he must hire migrant Mexican workers.

If the churches support the Bishop Metzger boycott of will the result be social justice?

This is the hard question and one not easily answered. As of this writing, the majority of works at Farah have not endorsed a union effort. After three years of campaigning the Amalgamated Clothing Works of America have been unable to predict a successful election, should the NLRB hold one. Some 200 cutters at the El Paso factory have organized but Farah has argued that they do not represent the other 7,000 employes.

A boycott of Farah products will certainly injure the management and ownership of this firm. A complete boycott would shut-down the income of nearly 8,000 Mexican-American workers—a sort of economic punishment for their not getting into the union movement. The issues are complex and the churches on the verge of supporting such a drastic action may well want to visit with management and labor before sounding the boycott signals.

Some church bodies have taken boycott action. The Texas Conference of Churches in February of this year voted to support the strike and boycot. Bishop Metzger addressed the assembly — Farah was not given this privilege, except for a brief committee appearance. This abrupt action and following pronouncement stirred local El Paso pastors to investigate more thoroughly the Farah controversy. Several weeks ago this writer visited with nearly two dozen ministers of all denominations who had been into the Farah factory and held discussions among themselves concerning the strike. Although the great majority endorsed the concept of union organization, 19 out of 20 pastors said they could not support the boycott.

Scan profile: Val Chalk

Dedicated to music

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN
P-B Staff Writer

It would probably be easier to list the places that Pomona pianist Val Chalk has not performed, than those that have lighted up to his musical virtuosity.

The beefy, Texas-born pianist has plunked out chords for the anthems of church choirs and struck jazz highlights in Al Lynch's Rose Room in Las Vegas. He has played in Los Angeles hospitals and on the docks of Japanese seaports. He has performed at school dances and in Southern California night clubs, on radio and on television.

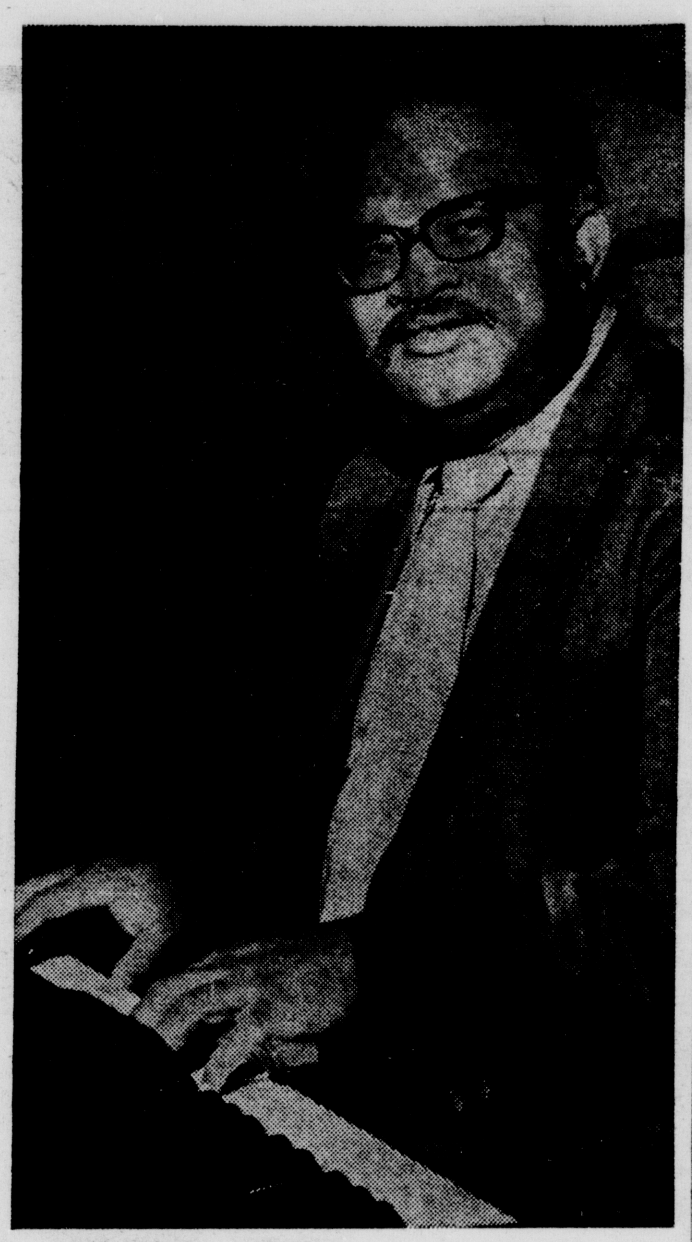

Chalk, one of six children of a hotel and restaurant chef, started piano at the age of 8, and a year later was playing in Sunday school. (One brother, J. B. Chalk Jr., is a professional saxophonist in New York City). In junior high school in Venice, he played for a church choir, performed in hospitals and at Red Cross gatherings, and led a 10-piece band, The Star Jumpers, at school dances.

Chalk's career continued fortissimo at Venice High School where, in 1950, he became the first black ever elected president of the studen body. This was followed by three years in the Army, still playing in an orchestra, directing a chapel choir, putting on musical revues for troops arriving and departing from Japan.

After his discharge from the service, the young pianist was anxious to complete a college education, so he chose night club engagements near a college, attending classes during the day and performing at an entertainment spot each night.

So, while playing night clubs in Long Beach, Rialto, Corona, San Bernardino and other cities, Chalk picked up a year's credit at Whittier College, another at Long Beach City College, a few semesters at Riverside City College. His final transcript was such a melange that he found himself ineligible for a teaching credential, but he was evaluated and accredited by a board of examiners of the prestigious Music Teachers' Association on the basis of education, experience and performance.

Today Chalk is an educator,

composer, arranger, music publisher and night club performer. A soft-spoken, articulate bachelor, full of warmth and humor, he is dedicated to music and particularly to improvisation—making it up as you go along—an art that is part technique, part musicianship, and part innate talent.

"We call it 'music from the inner world to the outer world'," Chalk said in a recent interview. "We set up a musical problem and the student is supposed to discover the solution—but there are as many solutions as there are students. It doesn't develop a style, but gives each student a chance to express himself. It brings out what a person has."

Chalk's bent for improvisation, he says, had its roots in the gospel choirs of the many churches he has played at. It lent color and range to his early classical training, vitality and power to his later jazz experience, and enrichment to his work in pop, blues, soul, rock and country-western music.

"My real desire as a young musician was to develop my own style and to put my own interpretation on my music," he said.

The consuming drive of the young pianist made such a mark that people began coming to him to ask for instruction in his technique—music teachers, students, professional musicians. So Chalk began to write down a few of the fundamentals of improvising, basics valuable to every instrument and even to composers and arrangers. The rough notes soon became a book, "Improvising the Val Chalk Method," published in 1969. It will soon be followed by three more books, "Guided Discovery," slated for fall publication. Chalk's work has come to the attention of musicians and music teachers, and he is in demand for private lessons and workshops. Through one of the latter he

CLIFF KING Says:

You may have gotten over the fascination of the idea of moving pictures in your home that you had when TV was new. In other countries, they're still experiencing it. Saudi Arabia, for instance, got TV with their oil money and then discovered that their religion forbids the showing of anything representing a living thing.

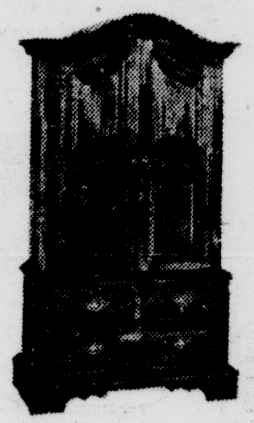

After weeks of watching a test pattern, the rule was relaxed to permit the showing of a still picture of a palm tree! In a land of live palms, viewers stare, hypnotized by the sight of one on the tube. Now they can watch news, American Westerns and even moving women, as long as they are infidel women.

You can watch whatever you want, and, if you have one of our great new RCA color TV sets, you'll really enjoy the clear, sharp, bright picture... really "true-to-life"! You'll also like our low, competitive prices that save you money. Be sure to get our deal before you buy.

Reliable Builders

Building firm plus

POMONA — Reliable Builders features more than the other construction companies, according to its operators who call it "A building company plus."

Norman L. Phillips and Tony C. Stefaniak are the operators of Reliable Builders, 324 N. Park Ave., and claim that their company is unique in the construction industry in that it is "able to offer all the usual building services, plus a personalized touch."

"Reliable Builders is a company that listens to the customer's needs and is keenly aware of the importance of designing and building an altration, a room addition, or a complete custom home that will delight and enhance the customer's living," Stefaniak says.

In their company Phillips and Stefaniak handle each customer personally from the initial contact to the finished construction project. Their combined background experience represents over 50 years in the construction business.

"We supervise every job," states Stefaniak. "We have control over all work, and if a problem arises we can decide on a solution. The customer does not have to wait weeks for a decision as with other companies. As a result we finish most jobs ahead of schedule."

Every job receives the same attention to detail and service regardless of size, according to the operators, whether it is a simple repair, a remodel, a room addition or a complete custom home.

"We feel that every customer is entitled to the best materials available,the finest craftsmanship and the personal daily supervision of an operator of the company to guarantee service and quality," Phillips said.

"We do small jobs, too, that most companies won't do," Stefaniak said. "These jobs are usually profitless, but by doing them we hope to get more business from the same customer in the future. Regardless of the size of the job we do it — we feel it's important."

Included in the services of Reliable Builders are family rooms, bedrooms, bathrooms, kitchen and bath remodeling, carports and garages, aluminum patio rooms, aluminum patios, commerical buildings, multiple units, custom and modular homes and custom design and planning.

"Ours is a company that really strives for quality,' Stefaniak said. "Most other companies in the valley are sales representatives, not builders. Because we operate the company, we are able to give better service, price and quality."

''We've been associated with other companies in the valley ourselves," Stefaniak continued, "and we know what they do. That's why we got into the business—to try to do some of the things the other companies won't do for the customers."

Although most of its remodeling jobs are local, Reliable Builders has built custom homes as far as Tehachapi and in the mountain resort areas such as Big Bear and Arrowhead.

Stefaniak handles the initial call from the customer and does the preliminary planning and sketching. When the design is completed to the customer's specifications, the builder submits the estimate, writes the contract and aids with financing. Stefaniak has 30 years of diversified background in the construction field.

Phillips takes the completed plans approved by the customer and secures the necessary permits and materials. He schedules the labor and personally supervises and inspects every job daily. He has over 20 years of varied construction experience.

A two-story, chalet-type room addition at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Harlan of Claremont, was done by Reliable Builders. Room additions are one part of the services of the company.

No job is too big or too small for Reliable Builders, 324 N. Park Ave., Pomona.

Reviewer plans pilgrimage to pay respects to author

By JOHN K. ROTH

NIGHT, DAWN, THE ACCIDENT Three Tales, by Elie Wiesel. Hill and Wang. $7.95.

On the surface the human world changes a lot. "Cold War" ice appears to melt in the warmth of a Brezhnev-Nixon embrace. West German-Chancelor Willy Brandt visits Israel on a mission of good will. POW's return home, and cease-fire are negotiated. A full generation of peace seems to wait just around the ever-promised corner.

(John K. Roth is professor of philosophy at Claremont Men's College now on a teaching assignment in Switzerland and Austria.)

Beneath the surface things change very little. Anticipated utopias never materialize. Proudly-announced programs fail to meet high expectations. Deceit and destruction, injustice, greed, and suffering rage on. A "watergated" world groans.

Elie Wiesel knows human nature well. He understands that men tend to ignore or forget evil as they are seduced by their own zealous visions of success. He knows the price of suffering that is paid for such folly. Wiesel is a survivor of hell. Nazi concentration camps — Auschwitz and Buchenwald—were his teen-age "home."

All three tales in this book are set against the background of the writer's personal experiences. Published separately in the early 1960s, the works are brought together here with striking effect. They probe life and death in varied but complementary ways. Each shows that existence is a mixture of the demonic and the divine. Wiesels' message is that we should never ignore either fact. Only as we face honestly the demonic side of man, nature, and even God himself, can we move toward our chance of transcending it.

"Night" is dedicated to the memory of my parents and of my little sister, Tzipora." They were Jewish victims of the Nazi attempt to create a better world. Wiesel's father almost survived. Brutalized too much, however, he died in Wiesel's presence as release came near. The author's mother and sister were separated from him as the family entered Auschwitz. He never saw them again. Perhaps mercifully, their fate is unknown to him.

This is no ordinary autobiography. It goes beyond the mere recording of violence and pain. It explores the spiritual anguish that suffering can produce. "Night" raises basic questions about man and God, not in an abstract intellectual fashion, but interms of grief-stricken cries. It is an unforgettable account, written with moving simplicity. If you are afraid to weep, however, leave "Night" alone.

The style shifts in "Dawn." This is not autobiography, although Wiesel's personal experiences shape the story unmistakably. The situation is the struggle for Israeli independence after World War II. Elisha, the lone survivor of a family annihilated by the Nazis, is no longer in the role of victim. Or is he? At dawn his task is to execute a young Englishman in retaliation for the hanging of a Jewish freedom fighter. The moral dilemma is set. Elisha struggles through the night. At dawn he pulls the trigger. But the question is whether Elisha had killed himself as well as the Englishman. If you can't stand moral ambiguity and anxiety, leave "Dawn" alone.

"The Accident" turns out not to be an accident at all. A New York journalist, also a survivor of the Nazi holocaust, is hit by a car while on the way to a movie. Once more, he survives. But the question is: in what sense? Although it was obvious to no observer, and perhaps not completely to the man himself at the time, we discover that the young journalist allowed the car to run him down. The novel is a struggle to decide whether life is worth living in a pit of death and if so, on what terms. No final solutions are offered. If you dislike writing that ends with questions, leave "The Accident" alone.

I can't leave Elie Wiesel alone. He has gotten inside of me. Anyone who reads him invites a similar experience. Most of the Nazi death camp sites are in Communist-controlled states today. They are not easily accessible. However, one of them, Dachau, is in West Germany near Munich. I plan to visit it this fall. That pilgrimage will be a way to thank Elie Wiesel, whose superb writing gift has cost him so very much.

New poet shows signs of greatness

By PHIL ROCHE
P-B Staff Writer

TWO CITIZENS by James Wright. Farrar, Straus and Giroux. $6.95.

Great poets are mood-makers. They plant and nourish moods like horticulturists grow flowers. T. S. Eliot with his emptiness, Frost with his sadness mixed with humor, Whitman with his unbounded exuberance. Now comes James Wright.

Wright is not great yet, but one day he may be. His "Two Citizens" creates two moods: the first the feeling of anger at the tragedies allowed to take place in America; the second a deep and understanding feeling of love for his country and the people in it.

This book of short, often nostalgic poems starts with a bitter attack on America. One of his poems in fact is titled, "I Wish I May Never Hear of the United States Again."

Russian aristocracy background for novel

By JUNE DUGAN
P-B Staff Writer

"THE ASTROV LEGACY," by Constance Heaven, Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, $5.95.

Sophie Weston, an English governess from a poor family, goes to Russia to visit her sister, Rilla, who has married a count. She steps into another world, a world of high society, of the idle rich, of beautiful gowns, fashionable balls, concerts and sleigh rides. And Sophie is soon one of the reigning belles.

After several months, Sophie feels she has never lived any other way. But she senses trouble between her sister and the count and the mystery is deepened by the intermittent appearance of Jean Reynard, a half brother of Count Kuragin.

Sophie finds a good friend in Irina Astrov, and falls in love with Irina's brother, Prince Leonid Astrov, son of an old and powerful family.

She soon finds there are two sides to Leonid: the quiet, serious, artistic one, who seems to love Sophie in return, and the wild, irresponsible playboy. Which is the real Leonid, and how can Sophie be sure?

She gets no encouragement in her romance from her sister and brother-in-law, but she does learn that their lives have been touched by deep tragedy, and more mysterious things happen to bring them sorrow. A fire in their stables brings heavy losses, but they survive, and finally their personal problems seem solved.

Meanwhile, Sophie is forced to take a stand and she and the Prince, who meanwhile has consented to an engagement with another girl to bolster the family fortunes, become the talk of Russia from Moscow to St. Petersburg.

When the star dies and the successor is undecided, Leonid becomes involved in conspiracy and rebellion that culminates in the bloody Decembrist Uprising. Through Leonid, Count Kuragin also is involved, and Rilla and Sophie risk their lives to join their men in the battle on the streets.

Hungry? Let's Go on a Supermarket Mini Tour!

Supermarkets have buyers all over the country who buy in huge amounts. Trains and trucks (some of which are refrigerated) bring the goods to big warehouses. Today, most of the stores use computers when making out their own shopping lists.

Trucks line up at the warehouses to be loaded. The drivers have keys to "receiving rooms" located in every store. They usually deliver at night. Some local producers, such as soft drink companies and bakeries, make their deliveries to the store during shopping hours.

Each store has a produce room where fruits and vegetables (called produce) can be washed and prepared for sale. These rooms are kept very cold.

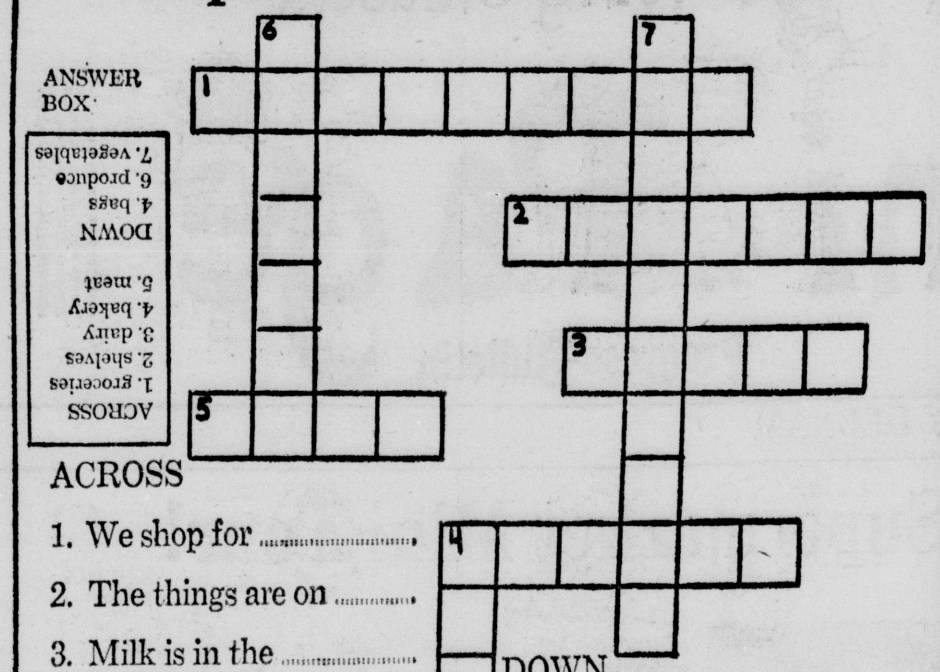

Meats are kept in large, walk-in refrigerators. There are also large refrigerators for frozen foods.

Supermarkets have big storage rooms where they can keep groceries before putting them on the shelves. This is one of the areas that most shoppers never get to see.

A Supermarket Map

Mini Page Quiz-a-roo?™

What's new in supermarkets?

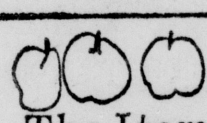

A look into the future shows that supermarkets will become bigger and offer a wider variety of items so shoppers can buy just about everything they need by making one stop.

By 1975 many supermarkets will be using computers in the checkout lines. Each item will be stamped as to item, manufacturer, size and the price. Shoppers will put their purchases on the belt and the price will be totaled by a computer. This will allow the long lines to move much faster.

What decides the price of food?

The Weather: How was the crop? If good, the price will be lower; if bad, the price will be higher.

The Item: How much did the supermarket pay for it?

Handling: How much to prepare food for sale?

Transportation: How much to get it to market?

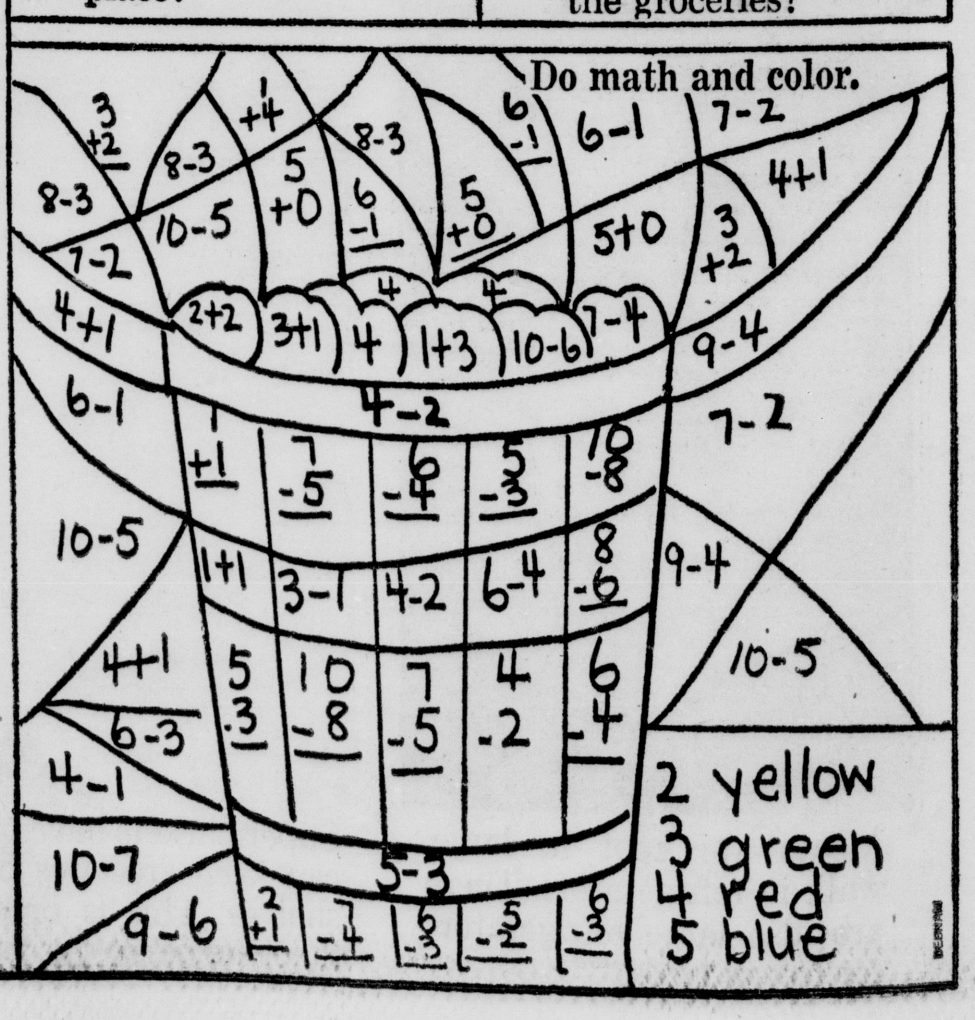

Labor: How much paid to employees?

Rent: How much to pay for a sales place?

Advertising: How much to let the people know about the groceries?

Super Sport: Carlton Fisk

Carlton Fisk, who catches for the Boston Red Sox, is one of the top young players in the major leagues. He was named the American League's Rookie of the Year in 1971, when he hit 22 homers and compiled a batting average of .292. He got off to a great start again this season. Carlton, who is nicknamed "Pudge," played at the University of New Hampshire and for several minor league teams. In the off-season, he lives in Keene, N.H., with his wife, Linda, and two children. Carlton is 25 years old.

Newsmakers: Who is he?

gnortsmrA lieN

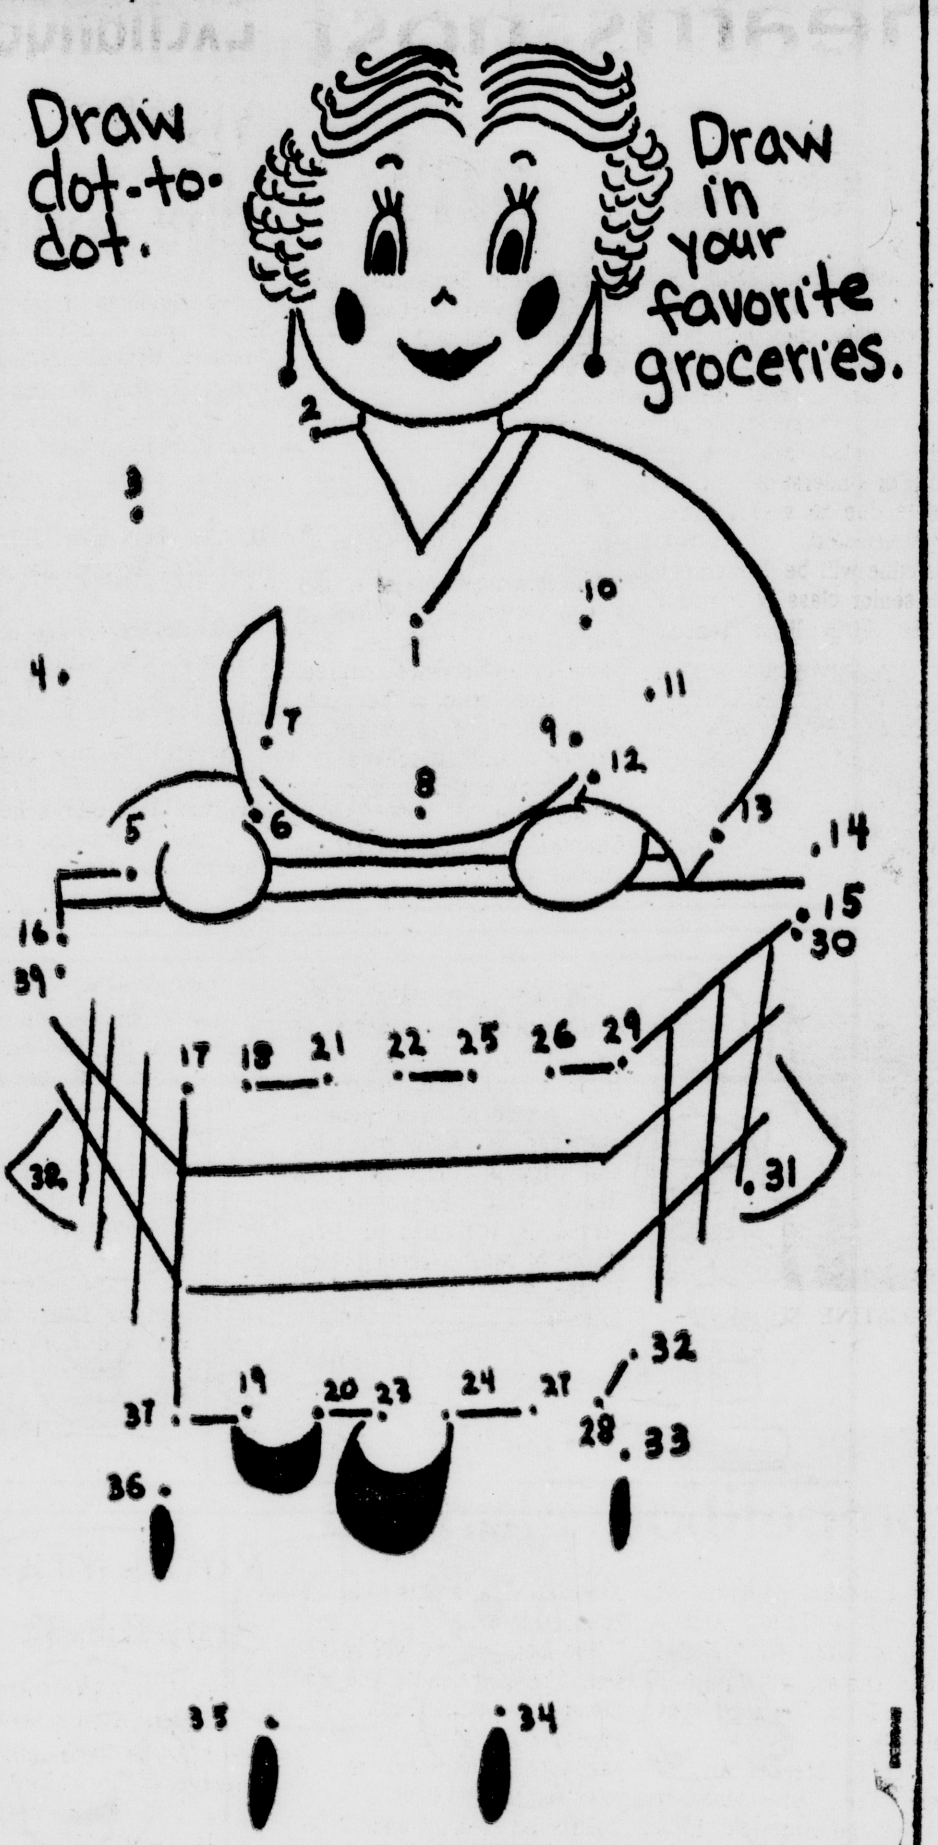

Four years ago, on July 20, 1969, he became the first man to set foot on the moon. He was a test pilot before becoming an astronaut. He was born in a small town in Ohio. He went on his first plane ride at the age of six. He got his pilot's license on his 16th birthday. His first words on stepping on the moon were: "That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind." He became a professor of Aerospace Engineering at the University of Cincinnati on January 1, 1972. Who is he?

Animal of the Week: The Pig

You can draw a pig any way you want to, but here are some ideas!

The mother hog is called a sow. The father is called a boar. Hogs furnish about 30 per cent of the meat eaten in the United States. Hogs supply us with ham, sausage, pork chops and bacon. Other parts of their bodies are used to make other things such as fertilizer. From the hog's hair we get brushes; from the skin we get leather; from the fat we get lard.

Where do we get fresh fruits and vegetables?

Sometimes stores buy fresh produce from local farmers. At other times, their produce is shipped in from the parts of the country, where it is "in season." In season means that it is ripened by the sun and ready to eat. Seasons differ in different parts of the country. Listed here are states and the produce they grow and ship during the summer months. Hearns host French girl

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hearn of San Dimas have been informed they will host Miss Christine Tulasne, 17, of Paris, France, next school year as a foreign exchange student under auspices of Youth For Understanding.

She is due to arrive soon, Mrs. Hearn said.

Christine will be a member of the senior class at Pomona Catholic Girls High School, beginning in September. She will attend with Barbara Jean Hearn, 16, who will be secretary of the junior class when school starts.

CHRISTINE TULASNE

Christine was born in Boulogne, Billancourt, France. She lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Serge Tulasne, two sisters and two brothers.

She is a math major at the Lycee Victor Duray School in Paris. She has earned her bachelor of science degree. Upon completion of her stay here she plans to return to France to study medicine.

Christine is following in the footsteps of an older sister, Chantal, who also was an exchange student.

She enjoys swimming, horseback riding, volleyball, music, dancing and reading.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearn are newly elected presidents of the Pomona Catholic Girls High School PTA. Hearn is vice president and general manager of a construction and rigging firm in Long Beach. Mrs. Hearn is involved in activities at Holy Name of Mary School in San Dimas, which John Harn, 11, attends.

Exchange visitors due soon

Two students from Bordeaux, France, will live with Pomona Valley families 5½ weeks this summer under the Los Angeles-Bordeaux Sister City Affliliation exchange program.

Francoise Dupin, born Dec. 12, 1953, will live with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Savoie of Montclair.

Anne Berenger, age not listed, will live with Dr. and Mrs. Quincy Howe of Claremont.

They will be in a group of 34 students between 16 and 21, all from Bordeaux, scheduled to arrive at the Los Angeles International Airport July 19.

Next year children of host families will be received by the families of the visiting students.

In addition to activities planned by the host families, the visitors will be entertained by the Sister City Affiliation.

Planned are an airport reception where students will be welcomed by Los Angeles Mayor Thomas Bradley and French Consul General M. Jean Francois Roux; harbor tours, and Old Los Angeles cultural heritage walking tour, and an Americana picnic outing at the UCLA-Sunset Canyon Recreation Center.

'74 Miss Teenage competition planned

Julie Lobosky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Arthur Lobosky of 1232 W. Via Del Sol, San Dimas, will lose her title as Miss Teenage Los Angeles next fall.

Charles R. Meeker Jr., of Dallas, Tex., president of Miss Teenage America, Inc., has announced that a new Miss Teenage Los Angeles competition will be held in Torrance, sponsored by Dr. Pepper and the Del Amo Fashion Square Merchants' Association, at a date to be announced later.

The local winner will represent Los Angeles in the national competition and will appear on a 90-minute, color pageant finals show to be televised live by CBS.

Girls between 13 and 17 residing in Los Angeles County are eligible to enter the Miss Teenage Los Angeles competition.

Entry forms may be obtained by writing Miss Teenage American National Headquarters, 1165 Empire Central Place, Suite 101, Dallas, Tex., 75247.

Rocks mark donations

Bonita High School

Red Rocks have infiltrated a section of City of La Verne.

The Red Rock Recycling Co. is collecting old newspapers from residents and transporting them to a Pomona firm for recycling.

Two industrious brothers, one a Bonita High School student, originated the idea. They began by distributing rocks they painted a bright red to people in their neighborhood.

They asked their neighbors to please stack their old newspapers under the red rock each Monday morning for collection.

Many people liked the idea. Friends out of the immediate neighborhood clamored for red rocks.

The two boys have found a constructive way, they feel, to spend a part of their summer vacation.

Spiritual quality

Harrison scores

By E. J. Jones
Scope Music Critic

George Harrison. Apple Records. Distributed by Capitol Records. SMAS-3410. "Living in the Material World."

After "All Things Must Pass" and "Bangladesh" one would think George Harrison would be hard pressed to produce another album of the same caliber. Well, I have news for Harrison fans, this one is really great.

The newest Harrison album has some heavy music on it. Most of the cuts lean toward the way people in todays world stress the material side of life, relegating the spiritual side to second class citizenship at best. This is evident in the song called "The Lord Loves The One". It goes like this:

The Lord loves the one that loves the Lord
And the law says if you don't get loving. . .
With no thoughts for God
Who provides us with all.
But when death comes to claim them
Who will stand and who will fall.

That is paraphased a bit, but the gist of the message is there.

Since the breakup of the Beatles, Harrison's music has been spiritually orientated. It seems his talent for writing music was negated by the rest of the group. The Beatles breakup was good for George Harrison.

Two cuts on the album

New poet

Wright had gone to Europe, but thoughts of his country seemed to be always with him.

While in Euroope, he realized the deep, unshakable love that re really held for America. "I discovered America there in France and Italy)" he wrote.

The final poems then are reminders of the greatness of America (Ohio) and its people. They tell a story of an author essentially human, simple and searching.

He writes:

I thought I could not stand it
To go home any more,
Yet I go home, every year,
To calm my wild mother,
And talk long with
my brother.

The title "Two Citizens" refers to Wright and his wife, Annie, who accompanied him to Europe. With her at his side he found, at least, a portion of the understanding of life he had sought. That's more than most of us find.

Temperature over 90 isn't for the birds

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: How hot a room is too hot for a bird?

Dear D.N.: Some birds may succumb in a 95-degree temperature, most could handle it 20 degrees hotter for a short period. Generally, it is reasonable to keep the room temperature below 85 or 90 degrees (even though it is an ideal temperature for a hospital cage). Usually the bird will indicate it is getting overheated by its droopy wings and general droopy appearance plus a more rapid respiration. It is certainly foolish to keep a bird in an area where it is likely to be subjected to temperature extremes. High temperatures are a more common cause of stress among birds than low temperatures.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Mimi is my third poodle in the 15 years I have been going to this particular veterinarian. She also happens to be the third poodle he has done a tonsillectomy on. A friend of mine who also goes to him just had to have her poodle's tonsils taken out too, and we met a third party today whose poodle also has had his tonsils removed and by guess whom? It seems to us now that either (a) our veterinarian is overly fond of removing tonsils or (b) all poodles suffer from tonsillities. We think we know the answer but we would be interested in your comment.—S.K.

Dear S.K.: It just could be the answer is neither of your proposed alternatives. Even though you know of five such surgeries, this might still be a comparatively small percentage of the poodles seen by the practitioner. (a) how do you know the rest of his poodle patients aren't still packing their tonsils? (b) while not all poodles suffer tonsillitis, most do at some time in their lives and many acute tonsillitis cases develop in the poodle into chronic tonsillitis with symptoms characterized usually by intermittent gagging and retching. In these chronic tonsillitis cases, tonsillectomies are usually indicated.

seem to reflect on this breakup, they're called "Sue Me, Sue You Blues" and "Living in the Material World". They also reflect on Harrison's musical remembrances of what it was like being a Beatle and facing the success which was theirs practically overnight.

A very entertaining and well produced album. All songs are written by George Harrison. Ringo Starr plays drums. The album features the hit "Give Me Love, Give Me Peace on Earth."

A definite YES! Better than "All Things Must Pass".

It Happened in Pomona

By Doc Peirsol

Worthy of his hire

Once upon a time a workman was really worthy of his hire and, more often than not, pay was of only secondary consideration. Pride in craftsmanship and a sincere desire to produce something that might contribute to the betterment of humanity were the primary motivating factors.

And once upon a time we had just such an individual right here in Pomona even though we've had to go all the way back to 1892 to find him. His name was John Whyte and his activities over and beyond the realm of duty were fittingly recorded in the Nov. 19, 1892, issue of The Pomona Weekly Times.

For those of you who still like to wallow nostaligically in that sort of Good Old Days dedication to one's work, I repeat the story here:

"John Whyte, who has the contract for shaping the stone for the IOOF building on Second Street, has surprised the builders by doing something really elegant in the way of ornamentation—something not called for in the plans and specifications. It consists of carving Scotch thistles, oak leaves and acorns, ivy vines, etc. upon the stone cobels to be placed in the third story. The extra labor of ornamenting these stones is Mr. Whyte's contribution to a worthy enterprise."

Scan profile

met Ralph Pierce, Pomona concert pianist and owner of Ralph Pierce Music, and it led to Chalk's engagement at the Music Education Center.

"The variety of music, from church anthems to acid rock, makes performing and improvising a very interesting experience," Chalk said. "It's a language that is very personal."

Listening to Chalk play, you understand the difference between "pianist" and "song stylist."

He teases a wistful "Misty" and pounds out a rollicking "Sonny" with a tango beat. He fingers absently through haunting minors in rolling arpeggios, embellishing improvised melodies with trills and subtle chord changes. Now it's an imaginative rendition of "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," now a bouncing jazz version of the old rock "Route 66." The sentimental ballad, "Lay Your Head on my Pillow," he plays straight, but adds a boogie-woogie bass to "Kansas City" and rolls out a rambling, moody "Ebb Tide."

This music making is Chalk's "very personal language," and anyone interested in eavesdropping on it can do so at Griswold's Indian Hill in Claremont where the rotund maestro plays from 8:30 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, joined Fridays and Saturdays by Ed Pratt on bass and Winston on drums.

couples just setting up housekeeping, and to older couples whose children have grown and no longer live with them. They are popular also with middle-aged couples where the wife goes out to work. And they make ideal vacation homes.

He said over 600,000 mobile homes were produced in the United States in 1972, with this year's total expected to reach 640,000.

"We see a great future for the mobile home in its own right, over and beyond its present appeal as a practical alternative to expensive site-built housing," Wallace said.

Workmen prepare to pour the cement walkways at the new Claremont Tennis Club on Padua Avenue. The club will become one of several private tennis operations in the valley.

Marla Feller, 10, of San Dimas, tries her hand at the game during an afternoon at the Pomona Valley YMCA's summer camp at Webb School in Claremont.

Big and getting bigger

In a society gone crazy with sport, the game of tennis may be the fastest growing of them all, with the Pomona Valley proving to be no exception.

On weekends and warm summer evenings, finding an empty tennis court can prove as frustrating as controlling that limp-wrist backhand you've had since high school.

Everybody wants to play.

"It's a family sport," says Penny Daoust, a professional tennis teacher who runs the City of Claremont's active and ambitious tennis program.

"The whole family can perform. It's the one sport where a man can play against a woman or children can compete with their parents."

While the city-run program in Claremont already involves more than 500 players per year in a variety of leagues for children and adults, and is easily the largest program in the valley, demand far outruns the program, mainly due to the number of courts, available.

"Every city in the valley needs to build more courts," she said.

Her husband, Bob, who is also a professional tennis teacher, notes that the game has become so popular in the last few years that manufacturers of tennis equipment are sold out months in advance, while the waiting lists for lessons from himself and other professionals continue to grow.

"The game keeps people totally addicted," Daoust ventured. "The mental attitude of total concentration that a player needs is almost like a religion. You have to conquer yourself to grow with it."

That assessment of the game would come as no surprise to the French bishop who, in 1295, was forced to outlaw tennis playing by French monks because their church duties were being neglected.

Tennis, in fact, has a curious history that has been traced back to the days of the pharoahs in Egypt. Both tennis and handball are believed to share a common ancestry that began as a fertility rite.

Another interesting historical note, which will undoubtedly perplex all Bobby Riggs fans: the game was first introduced in the United States by a woman in 1874. Returning from a European vacation in that year nearly a century ago, Mary Outerbridge of New York almost couldn't get her tennis equipment past customs officials, who were casting a wary eye on the odd-looking paraphernalia.

In the intervening 100 years, the game's rules and theory of play have remained virtually unchanged, but recent years have seen a revolution in the area of equipment.

Metal rackets, a rainbow of colored balls, and a shift away from the traditional white to more colorful court attire, have all provided the game with a new look and added to the enthusiasm with which new devotees embrace the sport.

The new look is also translating into a new style on the local level, evidenced by the emergence and growth of private tennis clubs.

The Pomona Valley Tennis Club, built last year in Upland, has four courts and a membership of 45. The club is just finishing construction of its new pro shop and will soon have a resident professional.

"We have about five acres here," explains Dave Johnson, owner of the club. "We have room to expand up to 13 courts if the membership continues growing."

Normally operated strictly for members only, said Johnson, the club sponsored an open tournament last year and expects to do the same again this October.

Another private venture locally is the new Claremont Tennis Club, still under construction on Padua Avenue in Claremont. The facility will have 10 courts ready for play by its grand opening next month, with an anticipated charter membership of 200.

Bob Sherman, the club's pro and manager, revealed that some of the courts are already operational and being used by members. He said the facility is being met with enthusiastic approval.

The Claremont club may expand in future years, said Sherman, to as many as 20 courts.

Still another local private club is the San Jose Hills Racquet Club, which utilizes the courts at Mt. San Antonio College on weekends and holidays.

Like most of the club's the competition is largely between members, although tournaments against other clubs outside the valley are held.

The cost of joining the clubs varies considerably. The new Claremont club is charging $435 as a charter membership fee and $25 a month thereafter for families.

But you can join the San Jose club for $5 for a year.

Besides local club action and the many city leagues sponsored by community recreation departments in the valley, there is the Pomona Valley Tennis Association, which competes in the inland Tennis League against teams from as far away as Barstow — also playing at MSAC.

The team is highly competitive, said George Eubank, team captain and a tennis player for 38 years, with only about one half of the association members qualifying for league action.

Playing sports in the league matches are decided by the members' standings on the team ladder. The top eight men and women available on the weekend of the match get to compete.

"It's a tough league," explained Eubank, who is a school principal in Pomona. "We once had trouble getting enough players for the team. Now we have too many for everyone to play."

The local team indeed demonstrated the value of a depth in talent this year. It's the league co-champion for 1973 with Victorville.

As a tennis player for many years, Eubank finds no difficulty in explaining the tremendous surge in tennis' popularity in recent years.

"It's great physical activity and it keeps your mind alert. It's not like running or weight-lifting. It's fun," he said.

"People are finding out you can extend you're life, keep in shape, and really enjoy yourself, all at the same time with this sport," he added.

Perfect for a small lot

By HIAWATHA ESTES

Large family, small lot? Compact planning allows this spacious home to be constructed on a relatively small lot. In addition, there is plenty of design interest in both the floor plan and the exterior of this house — the kind that makes a home stand out in any neighborhood.

There are highlights in this plan that will turn a collection of rooms into a housewife's delight. There is sufficient variety in activity areas to satisfy the demands of the most exacting family.

From the roofed front porch, twin doors open to the wide entry and a guest closet. A partial wall separates the entry from the living room. Side-by-side fireplaces open to the living and family rooms. If preferred, one could be eliminated.

At the rear of this design, where privacy counts the most, it is very outdoor conscious. Such outdoor living contributes the maximum toward both fun and entertainment. Sliding glass doors living contributes the maximum toward both fun and entertainment. Sliding glass doors open from the living and family rooms to the wide patio as does a door from the master bedroom.

The generous size dining room can be used for large buffet suppers and more formal entertaining. Family meals can be served in the huge kitchen nook. A partial wall separates the nook from the family room. The service door has been located so traffic will not have to cross the nook. From the striking kitchen, with its abundance of closets, there is direct access to the garage.

With the pleasing Spanish-Mediterranean exterior, note how the arches at the roofed front porch have been reproduced in the garage door. A low planter, wooden shutters and ornamental railing are other exterior features.

This same basic exterior is also available in a four-bedroom floor plan, at a different price structure, and is illustrated in our book Distinctive Homes.

Complete working drawings for plan 31129 can be purchased for only $11.50 for the first set and $6.30 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until Nov. 15, 1973. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.05. A large reproduction rendering of the exterior is $1.05. The following home plan books are also available: Distinctive Homes-$1.31; Hallmark Homes-$1.31; Ranch & Modern Homes-$2.10. All six books-an $8.65 value for only $6.83. Orders for less than three books, please add an extra 20 cent per book for postage and handling. Prices include sales tax. Financing a mobile is a simple process

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — For newlyweds, the family on the move, for retirees, often the answer to housing is the so-called mobile home—although the term hardly does justice to today's product which may run to 24 by 60 feet.

Today's mobile home, far from the "trailer" of long ago, provides comforts and luxuries similar to those afforded by costlier site-built housing. And recent years have seen marked improvement, too, in the surroundings of most mobile homes.

"For many families," said Robert L. Wallace, vice president of C.I.T. Financial Services, Inc., "a well equipped and well built mobile home offers a real bargain. A conventional site-built house can't be bought for less than $20,000 in today's market. By contrast, the average mobile home sells for about $7,000 and this includes furniture, major appliances, carpeting and drapes.

Purchasing a mobile home, Wallace said is a simple procedure, with financing generally arranged by the dealer on an installment plan after a modest down payment.

"For example," Wallace said, "the purchaser of a $7,000 mobile home might pay approximately one-sixth down and take seven years or so to pay off the balance. The loan, typically, might carry an annual percentage rate of about 12 per cent, although rates vary. Insurance is required and the buyer, of course, either would have to own or rent a lot."

Where to locate a mobile home still is a problem in some areas. Zoning restrictions make it difficult some places, particularly in the suburbs where an individual might want to put his home on a building lot in established residential area.

However, Wallace said: "New parks for mobile homes are being developed at an amazing rate, and they're the kind of surroundings anyone would be proud to live in. Many have winding streets, well kept lawns and shrubs and plenty of shade trees. Lots for the individual homes are large enough for privacy and breathing space. Unlike the drab, cluttered 'trailer camps' of yesteryear, these attractively landscaped mobile home parks generally are located in good neighborhoods, convenient to schools and shopping."

Wide choice

The choice of homes—and furnishing styles—is wide. A new generation of king-size mobile homes known as "double-wides" results in a house 24 feet long and more than twice that long. These models are towed to the lot in two sections and bolted together.

A buyer can select a three-bedroom, two-bath Colonial style mobile home with separate kitchen, dining room, 19-foot living room and attached garage. Shingled roofs, dormer-like gables, clapboard-style siding, decorative shutters and coach lanterns flanking a small masonry porch give these mobiles a definitely permanent look.

Furniture is built in and a mobile home can contain just about anything you'd have in a conventional home. For young folks starting out, it is a good way to have a livable home in a hurry. Maintenance is minimal.

Wallace said new mobile homes are eligible for Veterans Administration guaranteed financing. They must be at least 40 feet long, 10 feet wide and equipped for year around living, and they must be capable of being towed by a moving contractor.

Wallace said mobiles appeal particularly to young married

Nixon works from bed while doctors battle pneumonia

BETHESDA, Md. (UPI) — President Nixon's viral pneumonia caused him continuing chest pain Friday, but his doctors said he was resting easier and that they found no signs that the disease was spreading as he sought to fulfill essential duties from a hospital bed.

Nixon, first confined to the special presidential suite at the Navy Hospital in this Washington suburb late Thursday night, was described by one of his physicians as "moderately ill" and it was thought he would not be released for at least a week.

The doctors attending him told reporters at a news briefing that they still were unable to determine exactly what type of virus was affecting one-third to one-half of his right lung. But they said they were sure he was not suffering from "bacterial" pneumonia, which causes the lungs to fill with fluid and often proved fatal many years ago.

Through the day, Nixon received a few visitors — including his wife, who appeared somewhat upset later — and was given periodic treatment consisting of antibiotic and pain-killer pills along with therapy to help relieve any labored breathing.

Ontario attorney runs for lieutenant-governor

WASHINGTON — Terry Goggin, an Ontario attorney who last year lost a bid for elective office in the 38th Congressional District primary, disclosed Thursday his intentions to run for lieutenant governor in the 1974 California Democratic primary.

Goggin, 31, currently serves as an administrative assistant to Rep. George E. Brown Jr., D-38th Dist., the man who threw the roadblock into his first-every try at elective office.

Goggin also serves as legal counsel to the energy subcommittee of the House Science and Astronautics Committee.

He said he plans to run a "people-to-people" campaign, stressing direct contact with voters and focusing on consumer and environmental issues.

Presently, Goggin's only apparent rival in the primary is State Sen. Mervyn Dymally, D-29th Dist.

Goggin said he had received favorable reaction to his candidacy from various businessmen, labor officials and political figures in the state.

Construction of Alaskan oil pipeline seen in Senate vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate rejected Friday a proposal to delay construction of the trans-Alaska oil pipeline pending an eight-month study of an alternate Canadian route.

On a 61-29 vote, it turned down an amendment by Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and Birch Bayh, D-Ind., that was offered as a substitute to a measure that would grant a right-of-way for construction of a 789-mile, $3.5-billion Alaskan pipeline.

A final vote on the pipeline bill has been scheduled for Tuesday.

Even though the Senate rejected sole dependence on a Canadian pipeline, the pending bill — virtually certain to be passed by a wide margin — calls for negotiations with Canada for a second pipeline through that country.

Mondale and Bayh contended their amendment would not delay delivery of oil from Alaska and that a Canadian pipeline would deliver it to where it was most needed, the U.S. Midwest.

The Midwest senators said construction of the Alaskan pipeline to the port of Valdez where the oil would be shipped by taker to refineries in California and Washington state, would leave the Midwest dependent on uncertain oil imports from the Middle East.

Crime's bribes of IRS, bankers

Mob front man names banks used to convert stolen securities

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A confessed former front man for Mafia ganglords told Senate investigators Friday he once bribed Internal Revenue Service (IRS) agents and bank officials to aid in an international stolen securities racket.

Gerald M. Zelmanowitz, 36, whose government-provided false identity was destroyed a month ago, offered the names of financial firms and individuals in a tense hearing before the Senate permanent investigating subcommittee. A government witness in the 1970 convictions of reputed Mafia chiefain Angelo DeCarlo, he testified before the committee under personal immunity from prosecution.

He said he could not have funneled millions of dollars of Mafia money and stolen securities through international stock transactions without the bribes and the "ineptitude" of officials of some brokerage firms and banks.

In a 29-page statement, Zelmanowitz said he used certain IRS forms to provide legitimate cover for the stolen securities. He said the forms allowed the racketeers to avoid paying an 18 per cent "Interest Equalization Tax."

The forms, which were needed to create a record of prior American ownership for some securities, were obtained from IRS agents with "sums ranging from $500 per week to as high as $1,000 per week over periods of time extending into months," he said.

Zelmanowitz said bank officials sometimes unwitting and sometimes deliberately misused another IRS form, 3625, which also certified prior American ownership.

"Managers, vice presidents and general officers of these banks have, from time to time, been induced by me, both through their ineptitude and lack of desire to ask for proof of identification regarding the 3625 forms," Zelmanowitz said.

"And, in other instances, actual bribes with small sums of $50 and $100 could induce a bank vice president to guarantee, in blank, any name you so desire to place upon these certificates."

Zelmanowitz said not all representatives of U.S. brokerage firms were involved in "criminal aspects" of his operations. But, he said, they "closed their eyes to the fact that we would engage in a criminal activity."

He said representatives of Hayden-Stone, Bache & Co., Eastman-Dillon Union Securities, Carl Marx and Sterling Grace, with the help of Chase Manhattan Bank and First National City Bank, assisted in creating the fraudulent form 3625 and 432 "without which we could not have traded."

Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., whose investigation is aimed in part at President Nixon's commutation of DeCarlo's 12-year sentence after two years, prohibited photographs of Zelmanowitz because of a "problem of safety of his life."

Zelmanowitz was provided by the Justice Department with a new official identity as a California clothing manufacturer after his testimony against DeCarlo, but he recently was exposed. Referring to DeCarlo, he noted: "He is free and I am hiding."

Attorney General Elliot Richardson said recently that DeCarlo was freed because he is suffering from incurable cancer. But Jackson said the administration had "bypassed normal procedures and safeguards" in providing clemency for DeCarlo.

Zelmanowitz said stolen securities covered by the misused certificates went through a huge "laundering machine" of brokerage firms and banks of Switzerland, Belgium and other countries.

"I myself have created foreign bank accounts for people such as Joseph Colombo, Angelo DeCarlo, Joseph Polvorino, Daniel Cecere and others," he said.

Zelmanowitz said he gained standing in European finance circles through introductions by Harold Stone, former senior partner of Stone-Ackerman, a Wall Street brokerage firm. He said the Societe Financiere Mirells S. A. in Geneva made available "vast sums" of money to him and other members of organized crime "to help us in our transactions."

Lon Chaney Jr. is dead

United Press Telephoto

GENTLE MONSTER

Lon Chaney Jr., who once said he thought of good things as he made films that frightened millions, is dead. He is seen here with Bela Lugosi, left, in the 1956 thriller, "The Black Sleep." Chaney died Thursday in his home.

Actor passed Thursday, but death untold

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — Lon Chaney Jr., who adopted his father's name and his career as a character actor to portray such horror movie creatures as the Wolfman and Frankenstein's Monster, is dead at the age of 67.

The husky actor, who also played such sympathetic roles as the childlike "Lennie" in "Of Mice and Men," died at his home here Thursday afternoon.

He had played in lesser known films in recent years. His father, who died in 1930, was a giant of the silent screen era known as "the man of a thousand faces" for his ability to rearrange his face in each role.

Friends said Chaney wished no publicity of his death, which was not revealed until Friday. Patsy Chaney, his wife of 36 years, would not specify the cause or disclose funeral plans.

Chaney suffered from a variety of illnesses in recent years, including gout and liver ailents. He recently underwent acupuncture treatments to relieve pain and was hospitalized for cataracts and beriberi last April. 8

Born Creighton Chaney in Oklahoma City, he turned to acting when his father died and deliberately tried to follow in his footsteps. He appeared as 'The Wolfman," Frankenstein's Monster, the Hunchback of Notre Dame and a host of other terrifying creatures.

"I tried to look and think like him when I did the part," he once said in an interview. "You see, dad never thought bad thoughts when he did those parts. He thought about good or sad things."

Even though he played many monster parts which were meant to scare the wits out of people, he always felt they had less violence in them than some other movies.

"The old monster things were not as bad as cops and robbers or cowboy and Indian shows on television," he once said. "Ife you check, you'll see that a lot more people get killed in those shows than in horror pictures.

"Those films just had scares. It was what you thought was going to happen that kept you on the edge of a seat. We usually got rid of the monster before he could do very much harm."

Justice Dep't. provided poor 'cover' to witness

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A month ago "Paul Maris" was the head of the San Francisco garment manufacturing firm, Paul Maris Co., and believed his criminal past as front man for a stolen securities racket was safely behind him.

Before the Senate permanent investigating subcommittee Friday, the same man — now penniless and in fear of his life —appeared under his real name, Gerald Martin Zelmanowitz, who as a government witness had helped convict Mafia "Captain" Angelo DeCarlo in 1970.

Chairman Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., had called on Zelmanowitz for testimony that would help stamp out the massive international transactions in securities stolen from vaults of U.S. banks and brokerage firms.

But Zelmanowitz also gave his embittered account of how his cover—"relocation," as the Justice Department calls it— was breached because the Department had failed to provide backup support.

When "Maris" got involved in litigation with the Creative Capital Corp. over financing for Maris' firm, he said, a private detective hired by Creative Capital found that:

— School records showed there had been no student such as Maris at schools the Justice Department cover credentials showed Maris was supposed to have attended.

—Military records failed to show Maris had the military career matching the Army record that the Justice Department had created for him as part of his cover.

"There was absolutely no backup of these records of any kind," Zelmanowitz testified.

Peron cleared to run for president in new balloting

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Juan D. Peron's return to power in Argentina cleared its last barrier Friday with the resignation of President Hector J. Campora, paving the way for new elections. In a nationwide television address, Peron declared, "If God gives me health and permits me, I must spend my last efforts of my life fulfilling my mission that belongs to me."

Peron, 77, whose return to the presidency through new elections would appear certain, said, "At this point in my life I cannot have any other aspiration than that of being useful to my country. It is a tremendous sacrifice because the years do not pass in vain."

By submitting his resignation to the congress, which voted to accept it Friday evening, Campora set the stage constitutionally for Peron to move back into the Pink House presidential palace. He administered a dictatorial regime from there for 10 years until the armed forces ousted him in 1955 and thereafter blocked his return.

Campora, 64, a former dentist and protege of Peron, took office 49 days ago after leading a Peronist victory in elections that ended seven years of military rule. Peron had personally selected his longtime associate as presidential candidate, and Campora campaigned under a slogan of "Campora in government, Peron in power."

In a 13-minute address from his suburban Vicente Lopez home, Peron said "Dr. Campora told me that if he got to be president, he would immediately bring up the unconstitutionality of the elections, that he would resign and that he would submit his decision to congress."

Gypsies unwillingly become part of jet set -- until U.S. lets them stay

NEW YORK (UPI) — Four young Polish gypsies who have been shuttled across the Atlantic five times since Sunday in a bizarre game of international rejection Friday got a long weekend of freedom until their fate is decided by the U.S. Immigration Service.

The four, including a couple with a four-year-old daughter, arrived here Sunday on their first Atlantic flight carrying stolen West German passports.

What followed was a trans-Atlantic one-upmanship match between West German, Italian and U.S. immigration authorities to keep the gypsies out.

The four, now without papers after their stolen passports were confiscated, were granted a temporary haven in the United States and released on bond by the Immigration Service.

Their attorney, Charles Spar, indicated they would seek admission to the United States. He said the four, Jan Hornjak, 24, his wife, Helen, 23; their daughter, Agatha, 4, and Mrs. Hornjak's brother, Robert Kolompar, 19, had relatives in the New York area.

"They are Ukranian gypsies from Poland," Spar said. "They feel very much put down by Poland."

He said relatives had put up two $1,500 bonds to free Hornjak and Kolompar. Mrs. Hornjak and the child were freed on their own recognizance. The hearing was scheduled for July 17 at Manhattan's Immigration Court.

The tangled situation began Sunday when the quartet arrived at New York's Kennedy International Airport from Milan, Italy, on a Trans World Airlines flight en route to Mexico. A check of their passports turned up the fact they were among 600 recently stolen in West Germany.

Authorities turned the group back to TWA for return to Milan. Because flights to Milan were booked up, TWA flew them to Frankfurt, Germany, for a transfer flight.

Frankfurt authorities, however, confiscated the stolen passports and placed them on the next TWA flight back to New York. When they arrived in New York Monday, immigration authorities ordered them returned to Milan.

At Milan, Italian authorities refused to accept them on grounds they had no papers with which to enter Italy.

The 15,000-mile odyssey ended Thursday afternoon when the four arrived in New York for the third time and Immigration authorities decided to detain them and try to clear up the case.

"We'll give them a hearing," said Maurice Kiley, deputy district director of the Immigration Service. "If they're bona-fide refugees, they'll have a fair chance of staying here."

Polich-Benedict construction is halted by state

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The state Department of Transportation Friday ordered a halt to state highway construction projects involving Polich-Benedict Constructors because of alleged unsafe working conditions.

The department also asked the state Division of Industrial Safety to immediately investigate the safety programs on the Polich-Benedict projects.

Chief Deputy Director Howard C. Ullrich said the action was taken after an accident on the San Bernardino Freeway in Covina in which one of the firm's employes died and three others were injured.

Ullrich said the company previously was the contractor on a job on Route 210 near Pasadena in which a falsework collapse took the lives of six of the company's employes.

He said work on the projects will be resumed "only after each job is cleared by the Division of Industrial Safety."

Nixon in praise of rights, restraints

NEW YORK (UPI) — Against a background of one of the most crucial tests of strength between Congress and the Presidency in U.S. history, an essay written almost 10 years ago by President Nixon on the importance of a careful balance of power between the three branches of government was revealed Friday.

The essay, written a year after Nixon lost the California gubernatorial race, was presented upon his admission to practice law in New York state Dec. 6, 1963.

It was released for publication by Lowell Wadmond, the chairman of the Character Committee of the Appellate Division of the State Supreme Court in New York City. The release came as Sen. Sam J. Ervin, chairman of the Senate Watergate committee, predicted that Congress would subpoena scandal-related White House documents if Nixon persists in his refusal to open them for inspection.

Nixon's essay:

"The principles underlying the Government of the United States are decentralization of power, separation of power and maintaining a balance between freedom and order.

"Above all else, the framers of the Consititution were fearful of the concentration of power in either individuals or government. The genius of their solution in this respect is that they were able to maintain a very definite but delicate balance between the Federal Government and the state government, on the one hand, and between the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the Federal Government, on the other hand.

"By contrast, in the British system, the Parliament is supreme. In the present French system the primary power resides in the executive, and in some older civilizations the judges were predominant. Throughout American history there have been times when one or the other branches of Government would seem to have gained a dominant position, but the pendulum has always swung back and the balance over the long haul maintained.

"The concept of decentralization of power is maintained by what we call the Federal system. But the principle is much broader in practice. Putting it most simply, the American ideal is that private or individual enterprise should be allowed and encouraged to undertake all functions which it is capable to perform. Only when private enterprise cannot or will not do what needs to be done should government step in. When government action is required, it should be undertaken if possible by that unit of government closest to the people. For example, the progression should be from local, to state, to Federal Government in that order. In other words, the Federal Government should step in only when the function to be performed is too big for the state or local government to undertake.

"The result of these somewhat complex constitutional formulas is greater protection and respect for the rights of the individual citizen. These rights are guaranteed by the Constitution, not only by the first ten Amendments, which specifically refer to them, but even more by the system itself, which is the most effective safeguard against arbitrary power ever devised by man.

"Yet the genius of the Founding Fathers is further demonstrated by the fact that while freedom for the individual was their primary objective they recognized that uncontrolled freedom for some would lead to the arnachy which would destroy freedom for all. Maintaining the delicate balance between freedom and order is, in my view, the greatest achievement of the America, Africa and Asia which have tried to cop your system. lance is the basic reason for the failure of regimes in Latin America Africa and Asia which have tried to copy our system. They invariably go to one extreme or the other — too much emphasis on the freedom of men to do anything they please or too much emphasis on controlling the excesses of freedom. Each of these approaches leads inevitably to dictatorship either of the right or of the left, a tragedy which America will be able to avoid by continued dedication to the fundamental principles of our Constitution."

Killers silence solon charged in heroin smuggling

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Maryland legislator James A. "Turk" Scott Jr. was ambushed and slain early Friday in what highly-placed police sources said was a professional "contract job" apparently aimed at silencing any information he might give authorities on the east coast heroin smuggling racket.

Scott, 48-year-old black member of the Maryland House of Delegates, was found lying in a pool of blood in the basement garage of his plush Baltimore apartment building. He was killed by shotgun and pistol fire and his throat was cut. He was scheduled to face trial in five weeks on charges of heroin smuggling.

"It was a professional contract job" the police sources said. "The garage telephones were cut and a closed circuit television camera was put out of commission. It was probably somebody in New York who got scared."

The Baltimore News American quoted another source who said Scott was considering making a deal with federal prosecutors to offer information on some of the top narcotics figures along the east coast in return for lesser charges against himself.

Scott was scheduled to go on trial Aug. 20 in Richmond, Va., on charges of conspiring to transport $10 million worth of raw heroin from New York to Baltimore. He was indicted April 2 by a special U.S. grand jury investigating narcotics trafficking.

"They knew Scott could nail them. Turk had contacts with the top dope figures in Philadelphia and New York and they know what's going on in the case," the paper quoted one source.

U.S. Attorney George Beall said he fully expected Scott to go to trial next month and maintain his innocence with no indication that he might plead guilty or turn state's evidence.

Scott was found by a tenant at 1:45 a.m., lying on his back, his arms above his head and one hand clutching the keys to his still warm 1973 Cadillac which he apparently parked just before the slaying.

ENJOYING THEIR WORK — Two young workers make a game of unloading small melons at the Farmers' Market in Atlanta, Ga. Their frivolity is entirely appropriate, since the crop relieves a price-inflating shortage of cantaloupes and watermelons on the market, a problem traced to poor weather.

French a-test expected today if weather holds

PAPEETE, Tahiti (UPI) — Weather stations reported good climatic conditions in the South Pacific Friday, fueling expectations that France's first nuclear test of 1973 might come today — Bastille Day.

Scientists have stressed that perfect weather is essential to guard against radioactive fallout from the atmospheric explosion drifting toward inhabited areas.

In Paris, the organizations "Peace Media" and "Frenchmen Against the Bomb" announced that a further group of protesters had joined the New Zealand frigate Otago and the international peace ship Fri in the danger zone round the test site, Mururoa Atoll, 720 miles southeast of this Polonesian capital.

A statement said French Gen. Paris de Bollardiere and his companions, Jean-Marie Muller, Brice Lalonde and the Rev. Jean Toulat, "arrived in the Mururoa nuclear zone on a boat on which they sailed for the Cook Islands 11 days ago.

"They have confirmed by radio their intention to remain in the zone to prevent the tests," it said.

The statement said another protest ship, the Spirit of Peace, would leave for the area next week.

France declared a 72-mile zone around Mururoa Atoll off limits to ships and aircraft as of midnight Tuesday. In the past, explosions have usually come within three days of the ban.

A Defense Ministry spokesman in Wellington, New Zealand, said Friday the country's most modern frigate, Canterbury, will leave Auckland today to take over from the Otago, which is inside the prohibited area.

Fraser M. Colman, New Zealand's immigration minister who has been aboard the Otago, will transfer to the Canterbury when it arrives, the spokesman said.

In the meantime, the Voice of Prophecy Radio in Glendale, Calif., quoted the Pitcairn Island radio officer, Tom Christian, as saying the yacht Fri was just outside the 12-mile Mururoa territorial limit.

In Copenhagen Friday, Danish Foreign Minister K.B. Andersen said France's plans to go ahead with its tests "constitute an expression of a continued armament race."

Montclair man loses a leg after freak mishap

LOS ANGELES — A Montclair man who suffered severe electrical shock, while attempting to turn off the ignition switch of a truck which had been backed against an overhanging high-voltage line, was listed in satisfactory condition here Friday night following surgery to amputate his right leg.

Officials at County-USC Medical Center said the surgery was the result of "very deep third degree burns on the right foot" which Roscoe W. Rash had suffered in the freak accident while on vacation in Clovis, N.M., June 24.

Rash will also require several skin grafts on his left arm, according to hospital officials.

The accident occurred when Rash, his brother-in-law Dub Harvey, and another man were in the process of placing a bed on a winch truck at a wrecking yard. According to witnesses, Harvey backed the truck against the power line. Rash leaned into the cab of the vehicle to turn off the ignition switch, and was knocked unconscious by the electrical shock.

Rash was taken to Clovis Memorial Hospital immediately following the accient, and later transferred to Bernalillo County Medical Center in Albuquerque where he stayed for two weeks. He was flown here Monday.

Not guilty, three family members tell Pomona court

POMONA — Three members of a family pleaded innocent Friday when they were arraigned in Pomona Municipal Court on charges resulting from a dispute with police over a parking ticket.

Lenetta Flournoy, 26, 2163 Laurel Ave., La Verne Renee Flournoy, 22, 1804 S. White Ave., and Vernon Windell Flournoy, 23 pleaded innocent to charges of battery, resisting arrest and disturbing the peace. Judge Robert C. Gustaveson scheduled a pretrial hearing Aug. 9.

Police said the trouble broke out when an officer tried to cite Lenetta Flournoy for parking on the wrong side of White Avenue in front of Mrs. La Verne Flournoy's home. They claimed that several officers had to be sent there to assist the first officers. The Flournoys ultimately were arrested.

A new doctor series starring James Franciscus will be aired by ABC periodically in the 10-11 p.m. spot during the coming season. The star will play a country physician in the Southwest, where he gets around in a medically equipped van.

No hoax, Getty's mother believes

ROME (UPI) — The mother of J. Paul Getty III said Friday she did "not think it was a hoax" when anonymous callers told her her missing teen-age son—the grandson of the oil-rich billionaire—had been kidnaped.

Police launched a nationwide search for the youth and said they were treating the telephone call "seriously," although they did not rule out the possibility of a hoax.

"We are working on a 360-degree range," a police spokesman said. "There are no angles."

Mailer admits flaw in book

MM's suicide is linked with RFK

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor Peter Lawford said Friday suggestions in Norman Mailer's new biography of Marilyn Monroe that the actress had been having a "flirtation" with Robert F. Kennedy and quarreled with him the night of her death were "absolute drivel."

Lawford, who was a close friend of Miss Monroe and the late New York senator's brother-in-law, called Mailer's highly publicized book "vomit." He said Kennedy was on the East Coast the night of Miss Monroe's suicide in California.

Mailer wrote that Kennedy and Miss Monroe probably were not having an affair, but a flirtation . . . He would call her when he came to stay at Peter Lawford's House. She would come to see him.

Mailer, in an interview taped for televised broadcast Friday night, said he had "no time to go out and interview people" for the book, and wrote it because he "needed the money very badly." Mailer never met Miss Monroe.

The book, "Marilyn," presents various versions of what happened the night before Miss Monroe was found dead of an overdose of sleeping pills in her Hollywood home Aug. 5, 1962. Mailer said he could not vouch for any of them, but they all suggested that Kennedy and the actress had a quarrel.

Such reports have circulated — and have been denied—since Miss Monroe's death.

Mailer said one version was that Kennedy attended a dinner party at Miss Monroe's house the night before her death.

Mailer said this account, which he attributed to "a reporter" who would not allow his name to be used, "offers a quiet party at Marilyn's house which is attended by Peter Lawford, Bobby, Pat Newcomb (Miss Monroe's publicity agent) and Mrs. (Eunice) Murray (her housekeeper).

"After dinner, the others want to go on to Lawford's place on the beach, but Marilyn wishes to stay where she is and then wants Bobby to stay with her. He refuses and leaves. A little later Marilyn begins to call and keeps phoning him."

Another version, Mailer said, was that Miss Monroe attended a dinner party at Lawford's beach house in Malibu with Warren Beatty and Natalie Wood.

"One way or another, she seems to have had some disagreement with Kennedy. Whatever the dimension of her quarrel, it was apparently sufficient to start taking pills," Mailer said.

"I really can't comment on that because it's absolute drivel," Lawford said. He said Kennedy was at his family's compound at Hyannis, Mass. or "somewhere" else in the East at the time of the actress' death. He said Miss Monroe did not know Kennedy at the time Lawford had his beach house in 1954, and Beatty and Miss Wood had never been in it.

Lawford said he had not read Mailer's book and did not intend to. "I'm not going to pay the $19 or whatever it costs," he said. "It makes me want to throw up. It's vomit."

In an interview for broadcast Friday night on CBS-TV's "60 Minutes," Mrs. Murray also denied any party with Kennedy.

"It isn't true," the housekeeper said. "That's all. I mean it just it isn't true."

Man, wife, 4 boys held in thefts

INDUSTRY — Sheriff's deputies Friday arrested a West Covina man, his wife and four juvenile boys whom they link to several recent robberies and burglaries in the Rowland Heights area.

Billy Lopez, 23, and Karen Lopez, 18, 3242 Point Cedar Ave., were booked on suspicion of robbery and burglary. The juveniles, 14 to 17, were similarly charged.

Deputies said the investigation linked the couple and the juveniles to robberies of a 7-11 Market in West Covina, a Jack-in-the-Box drive-through 18950 Colima Road, Rowland Heights and the burglary of several residences and Rincon Elementary School, West Covina.

Investigators said most of the loot was recovered plus a pellet rifle believed used in the holdups.

Chino chooses new director of recreation

CHINO — Jack Anderson of Placentia has been appointed the Chino Recreation Association's first full-time recreation director.

He begins work here July 25, and will succeed Frank Elder who had served as part time director. Elder recently retired as both director and Chino High School's basketball coach.

His selection was approved this week by the City Council and the Chino school board.

Anderson is presently employed as Placentia's recreation superintendent. He went to that city three years ago as recreation supervisor. He previously served in the U. S. Navy as a special services officer.

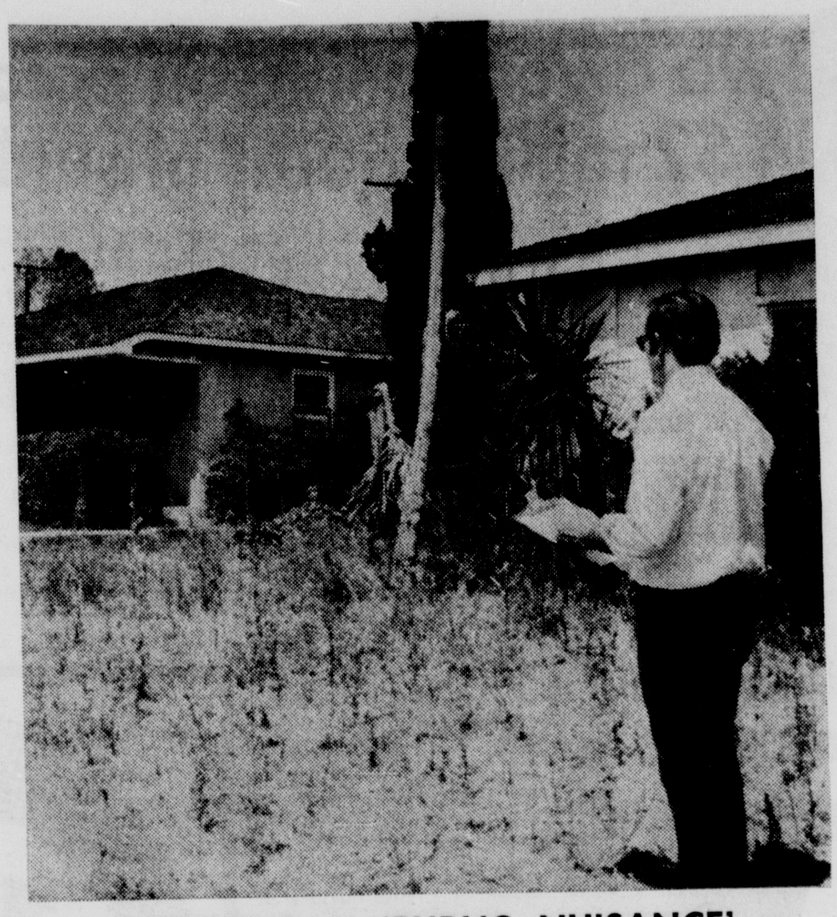

The director received his master's degree from California Lutheran College in Thousand Oaks and is working on a degree in public administration at Cal State Fullerton.

In his new position, Anderson will lead a staff of two full time employes and about 90 part-time recreation supervisors.

The year-around program involves about 5,000 persons, ranging from tiny tots to senior citizens. Activities include Little League, tumbling, track events, tennis instruction, dancing and youth centers.

He will have an annual budget of about $84,000, with funds coming from both the city and school district. The program includes all the school district, which extends past city boundaries.

Anderson and his wife, Judi, have a son, 2.

CHECKING A 'PUBLIC NUISANCE'

Claremont Director of Parks and Recreation Fred Hawkins checks out an empty house at 626 Geneva Ave., Claremont, which the City Council Tuesday night declared a public nuisance because of a weed-covered lawn and dead trees.

Claremont City Council declares 14 houses to be 'public nuisances'

CLAREMONT — Fourteen houses, 10 of them in Southwest Claremont and nine of them boarded up, have been declared as public nuisances by the City Council.

City Planning Director Sharon Hightower told the council Tuesday night that she had not yet contacted the Federal Housing Administration which is responsible for 12, but she said that she would write a letter.

City Manager Keith Mulrooney said that the council would receive at its next meeting a list of 12 more houses where weeds abound, and where abandoned, discarded or unused objects are scattered over the property.

Watching Pomona

Mrs. Hightower said that she was watching to see what success the city of Pomona was having its correspondence with the FHA over 350 boarded-up houses.

Councilman Gene Block who lives on the same street as one of the problem houses — Aurora Drive — suggested writing to Congressman Jerry Pettis about the situation.

He said that the house at 579 Aurora Drive has been empty more than a year, but that the FHA has just put up signs on the property.

He complained that the house has become a gathering place for teen-agers, and that debris has been collecting on the property.

Mrs. Hightower noted that the FHA has contracts with firms to maintain the houses, and that the water has been turned on at seven.

The council viewed color pictures of all 14 houses before adopting a resolution declaring that the abandoned objects or weeds at the houses at 579 Aurora Drive, 702 Arrow Hwy., 310 Carlton Ave., 530 Calreton Place, 569 and 626 Geneva Ave., 606 and 478 S. Mountain Ave., 110 Princeton Ave., 615 W. San Jose Ave., 728 Vassar St., 417 Cucamonga Ave., 420 West Point Drive, and 310 Annapolis Drive constitute a public nuisance.

No one spoke from the audience during the public hearing.

Engineering pact

In other action, the council approved an agreement with the city of Pomona wherein Pomona agrees to pay Claremont 65 per cent of the cost for engineering and fees of a landscape architect who will draw plans or lands caring, an irrigation system, and street lights on Arrow Highway between Orange Grove Avenue and Indian Hill Boulevard.

In another matter, Mayor Craig McManigal suggested that the city reduce its utility services as suggested by President Nixon during the energy crisis.

Mulrooney reported that he has not had his office lights on for two weeks.

McManigal also noted that employes must not drive city vehicles more than 55 miles an hour.

Councilwoman Bertye Smith asked if copies of city papers could be made of recyclable Xerox paper.

McManigal suggested that all city correspondence paper should be recyclable, and asked about cloth towels in the restrooms instead of paper towels.

Peace Council will see slides at Monday meet

CLAREMONT — Jill Rodewald, who works in the Santa Monica office of Medical Aid to Indochina, will show slides at a meeting of the Community Council for Peace Monday at the home of Dr. and Mrs. H. W. Gordon, 1440 Tulane Road.

Miss Rodewald will report on her recent experiences in Southeast Asia when she and six others delivered medical supplies for Cambodia to the Cambodian ambassador in Hanoi. The supplies included 5,000 worth of blood plasma.

The talk will follow a potluck supper that will begin at 6 p.m. The meeting is free and open to the pubic. Everyone is requested to bring table service and a dish to share feeding three times the number of his or her party.

City government program for students 'successful'

LA VERNE — Under a new city government internship program, nine cities in the Pomona Valley became actively involved in the education of La Verne College students.

Under the supervision of the history and government department, 18 senior students, during May interterm, worked closely with city officials in surrounding communities and became acquainted with the "actual operations of local government," Andria Fletcher, assistant professor of government and director of the program,said.

"Now we find, at the close of the first month of operation, that our program can be termed a great success. Students and city administrators are enthusiastic in their praise, and many are asking that the program be continused on a 12-month basis" she said.

Mrs. Fletcher explained that interns interviewed more than 700 youths and assigned many to local businesses in San Dimas, thereby assisting the city to implement its Youth Employment Service.

In West Covina, where four interns worked and studied full time, the overall success of the intern program prompted the City Council to grant $1,000 to supplement the interns' salaries.

The City of La Verne also has given its upport, and city officials indicate that the program brought into government offices "most capable and efficient" workers, Mrs.Fletcher added.

The internship program begun last spring, allows students to receive credit toward their degrees while working off campus in the program. Only upper classmen and those who have a background in fields related to public service or an interest in pursuing those fields may enroll.

Marshall elementary parents will give views on proposed transfers

By L. T. ROGERS
Asst. City Editor

CHINO — Parents of about 100 pupils assigned to Marshall Elementary School will be polled regarding their children being transferred to either Glenmeade or the Gird schools.

Supt. Royce Lapp said the transfers will be needed because of an "overloading" in the northwest part of the school district.

The children proposed to be transferred reside on Ninth, 10th and 11th streets between Riverside Drive and Chino Avenue. That area was transferred from the El Rancho School attendance area several years ago to prevent double sessions.

Space at Glenmeade

"We do have available space at the Glenmeade and Gird schools," Lapp told the school board. He recommended those students being bused to Marshall be transferred to either of these schools.

A transfer to Glenmeade would require students to be on school buses 45 minutes a day. The busing cost would be $5,782.

Should they go to Gird schools, only a portion of the pupils would reside outside the "walking area," he added. They would be on buses 15 minutes a day, with the cost estimated at $1,932.

"The ethnic balance is one thing causing us not to konsider Gird," said Lapp. Transferring these students to Glenmeade would bring that school closer to the district's ethnic balance of 27 per cent.

Balance increases

The move to Gird would increase the balance of students with Latin surnames from 44 to 46 per cent, he explained.

There are programs available at Gird that would counter balance the ethnic balance at Glenmeade, Lapp added.

The superintendent said he would send out letters tt parents explaining the alternatives and include postcards where they can indicate their preference.

Lapp also proposed scheduling a public meeting next week where parents can ask questions. The time and date will be determined later.

In board discussion, trustee Augustine Tapia told of his concern of children attending their neighborhood schools.

Neighborhood school.

"We should make every attempt to get the children into their school. Their neighborhood school is really El Rancho," he added. "This is where they should go."

Trustee Pete Vander Poel suggested that if El Rancho school gets into the year-around program "then we can get them back there."

In other school boundary shifts, the school board approved transferring the Country Meadows Mobile Home Park in the Whispering Lakes area from El Rancho to Walnut elementary school, and an area bounded by Park Avenue and Riverside Drive, and 10th and 12th streets from group two to group three in the year-around scheduling program at Walnut and Magnolia schools. These latter children would attend a later session.

Child care centers backed in new residential tracts

POMONA — Placing child care centers in residential tracts has won the support of city planners.

The Pomona Planning Commission this week requested a resolution to be prepared endorsing the concept of encouraging child care centers being included in private developments. Members made special reference to the Shadow Hills development on the Phillips Ranch.

"There is a great deal of work being done in state and national levels in this area," said Planner E. J. Gaulding.

"Thre is a real need for this and it can be done by private developers. I would rather see it be done by individuals rather than come under government control."

Planner Clyde Stephens, however, was opposed to adoption of a resolution. "I am in agreement with the concept. I do not believe government should get involved in this at this time," he added.

"I would like to see the applicant work with the developer." Stephens noted there are many mothers working—either by choice or necessity—and their children should receive proper care. "But I feel that government is too involved in personal lives as it is."

The planners acted on a request by Mrs. Jessie Haver Butler of La Verne who asked the commission to support a resolution urging the Phillips Ranch builders to develop a child care center in their new development.

Speakers for the Pomona Valley Chapter, National Organization for Women (NOW), had appeared before the commissioners two weeks ago in support of child care centers.

They reported these benefit both children in their personal development and builders in selling homes to families.

Planners voted 5-1 for the resolution. They asked the city staff to prepare one and present it at the next meeting.

A woman in the audience asked what effect such a resolution would have when builders bring in their plans for a residential development.

"This will show that the Planning Commission is in favor of the concept and is hopeful that developers will go along with such child care centers," said Bart Vlietstra, chairman.

Sanford Sorensen, city planner, said such a resolution will assist the planning staff in working with developers. "It will make developers aware the Planning Commission would like to see these included.

"This gives the staff an official policy and guidelines in discussions with developers," he added.

Two letters supporting Mrs. Butler's request were received by commission members.

"In view of the fact that I believe child care facilities are vastly important to all working mothers and in light of current federal cutbacks, I would like to lend my endorsement to this project," wrote Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-15th Dist.

Mrs. Fong, of Alameda County, is chairman of both the Committee on Employment and Public Employes and the Select Committee on Agriculture, Foods and Nutrition.

William G. Knife, field representative for the State Department of Education, wrote that children's center programs and facilities have expanded during the past few years.

"A large number of public agencies, including school districts and a sizeable number of cities, housing developers and private industries recognize the needs and provide for many programs.

"I would say that both public and private agencies have found it important to meet these needs, as well as finding it good business," he added.

All-year school program starting in Claremont

CLAREMONT — The year-round school program has started at Oakmont Elementary School.

Two groups, totaling 51 students, began July 2, and two more groups will start July 19 and 23, with 50 having registered for these sessions so far.

For new families in the Oakmont area, several options are available. They may start their children either July 19 or 23 or wait until regular school opening in September. The school has 356 students.

The July 23 group has three-week vacations in October, January and late March. The July 19 group gets three-week vacations in late October, late January, and April.

A copy of the master schedule of five groups, including the traditional track, may be obtained by calling the school.

Another feature of the year-round operation is the intersession, or a program similar to summer school, which goes on at school whenever students are on vacation.

Parents should register their children for intersession.

The first intersession, July 30 through Aug. 31, is open to students living anywhere in Claremont.

More information on year-round school or intersession may be obtained by phoning 624-9041, extension 210.

Planners elect Mrs. Douglas to chairman post

CLAREMONT — Mrs. Enid Douglass, director of th oral history program at the Claremont Graduate School, has been elected chairman of the Claremont Planning Commission for the next year.

Mrs. Douglass succeeds James Norris Jr. in the post. She is not the first woman Planning Commission chairman — Julie Monson served in that capacity for the 1970-71 year.

Mrs. Douglass said that she felt that Norris had done an "excellent job" the past year as chairman. As to her being elected to the post, she commented, "Any member of the commission is equally qualified to swing the gavel."

She said that no person on the commission has any distinction over another, that all are talented.

Mrs. Douglass was appointed to the commission in April 1970 to fill an unexpired term, and was reappointed to a four-year term in July 1972.

Before joining the commission, Mrs. Douglass was active in community government, and served on various advisory committees.

During the 1960s she served on a park bonds committee, a capital improvements committee, and a hospital committee which studied the question of whether the community could support a hospital.

More recently she served on a seven-member residential unit development committee, and noted she was the only woman on the citizens group.

Now as a commissioner, she sits on the other side of the table from the developers who were members of the committee, but don't like the ordinance the city adopted in 1972.

She is married to Malcolm P. Douglass, professor of education at the Claremont Graduate School. The Douglasses moved to Claremont in 1954 and live at 1195 Berkeley Ave.

Other commissioners elected to posts for the 1973-74 fiscal year are William McLaughlin, vice-chairman; and Charles Farritor, secretary.

Two shots fired at security guard

SAN DIMAS — Security Guard Norman L. Harrison, 47, told sheriff's deputies that an intruder fired two shots at him in a residential construction site here.

Harrison, of Valinda, said he approached a car parked at the site shortly before midnight when he saw the man exit one of the houses. He said that when he yelled, the man turned and fired two shots at him before he fled in the car. The incident occurred at the end of Paseo Anacapa north of Loma Vista Drive.

2 men with revolver rob service station

VALINDA — Two men, cne with a revolver, robbed C & J Self Service gas station at 17903 E. Valley Blvd., Thursday night, sheriff's deputies said. Dennis Ortega, 19, said one man showed a gun after the pair drove in and warned him not to move. Then they scooped up cash from Ortega's desk and drove away.

$370,000 is granted for autism research

CLAREMONT — Claremont Men's College professor Laura Schreibman is one of three California psychologists selected to share a $370,000 grant to work with autistic children.

Miss Schreibman will be working with youngsters from the Claremont area on campus, assisted by senior students from the college and the Claremont Graduate School.

The National Institute of Mental Health grant will allow Miss Schreibman, Dr. Ivar Lovaas of UCLA and Dr. Robert Koegel of UC Santa Barbara to expand a program applying various new eductional and psychological techniques to children under 30 months of age who show severe social isolation.

"We are now trying to select 10 or 12 children in the Claremont area who can qualify for our program," Miss Schreibman said. "These children may be described as living in a shell, emotionally isolated, extremely inward. They are also behind in the acquisition of language, self-help skills, play, etc. As they grow older, they could be diagnosed as autistic."

The children Miss Schreibman is seeking would manifest several characteristics. These could include indifference to other people, refusal of affection, failure to notice peers, repetitive motor activities such as rocking or jumping, flapping of arms, and excessive tantrums. Many of the children being sought for the CMC program will behave as though they are deaf or blind, even though they are not.

The program at CMC involves the application of behavior therapy techniques to these children. The specific goals of the treatment project center on instructing the mother on how to better cope with her child, such as helping him to overcome severely disruptive behaviors and teach him toilet training, dressing, feeding, and other self-help skills. The mother will also learn how to teach her child better communicative skills, such as beginning speech.

Children selected for the program will come to the CMC campus for three or four one-hour sessions weekly. The parents will be brought into the program from the beginning and will work with the children under the supervision of Miss Schreibman.

Many of the children selected for the program will be referred by agencies or family doctors. However, parents who feel their child qualfies should contact Miss Schreibman at 626-8511, Ext. 2835.

Midwest governors shun action on local fuel and energy crisis

RAPID CITY, S.D. (UPI) — Governors of midwest states have backed away from hard decisions on what the government should do about the fuel and power problems troubling their areas.

The annual conference of midwestern governors, which wound up Wednesday, was preoccupied through its four-day course with the energy crisis and the need in the Midwest to get enough fuel to keep agricultural machinery going.

But the governors, in final action, torpedoed a resolution by Gov. Arthur Link of North Dakota endorsing pending legislation to establish a nationwide power grid system to provide wholesale electric power at what Link called "reasonable rates and with the least impact on the environment."

Their reasons were much the same as for an earlier turndown of the resolution of Wisconsin's Gov. Patrick Lucey backing a pipeline to bring Alaskan oil across Canada to midwest terminals.

The governors said they felt they simply did not know enough about the problems and possible solutions to take positive action this year.

Link said of the energy grid plan that it would provide "an interstate highway system for electric power to regions that need it most."

Lucey said the governors voting against him may have had "other considerations."

But Gov. Daniel Walker of Illinois told Link "I'm troubled by this resolution because I haven't done my homework." Gov. Richard Kneip of South Dakota said "I just dont have enough knowledge to know where this legislation is taking us."

Walker and Kneip said they were concerned about possible "nationalization of part or all of the national grid system" under the federal government's control.

"I would guess many people would be against the federal government moving into another area of ownership," Walker said. He had Link's proposals referred to a committee of the National Governors Conference.

Link also failed to push through a resolution asking the governors to oppose federal legislation on state taxation of interstate businesses unless the law would help the state enforce their tax laws.

The governors approved a Link resolution supporting an additional $150,000 congressional appropriation to the Army Corps of Engineers for a study on hydro-electric generating capacity for Missouri River dams.

Also approved was a resolution from Gov. Wendell Anderson of Minnesota urging the federal government to relax its "tight restriction" on soybean exports. Anderson said the restrictions might cost the midwestern states as much as $2.1 billion if the policy was allowed to stand.

Get the job-- positively

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — "A passive approach won't work," says a "Gradplan" booklet put together by the Bank of America to aid recent California college graduates find a job.

"Elaborate upon your strong points and maximize whatever you have to offer," the booklet says. "Don't monopolize the conversation; let the interviewer lead. But don't confine your statements to petrified monosyllables."

FALLING INTO the hands of Rusty Brown, the animal control officer (dogcatcher, that is) of Aberdeen, Wash., is one of the best things that ever happened to this pup, along with three others. Brown went beyond the call of duty and fed them by bottle, took them home at night, and later found homes for them.

Senate okays bill allowing gold owning

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate overwhelmingly adopted legislation reecntly allowing Americans to own gold.

The legislation, offered by Sen. Peger H. Dominick, R-Colo., and approved on a 69-21 vote, would allow U.S. citizens to purchase, hold, sell or deal in gold beginning Jan. 1, 1975, or earlier—if President Nixon decrees that it would not have an adverse impact on the U.S. international monetary position.

It was the second time this year that the Senate has approved such a measure.

The Senate and House added similar amendments to the gold devaluation bill but it is locked in conference because of a controversy over an anti-impoundment amendment.

The new amendment was attached to a bill providing for the minting of special quarters, half-dollars and dollars to commemorate the bicentennial of the revolution in 1976. The bill passed by voice vote.

Two divers to live on ocean bottom in $2 million quest of sunken liner

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Ever since the liner Andrea Doria plunged to the bottom of the Atlantic after a collision off the coast of Rhode Island, it "has been called the Mt. Everest for professional divers," Donald Rodocker, a former Navy aquanaut, said Wednesday.

That's one reason Rodocker and Christopher Delucchi, another ex-frogman, plan to spend 10 days living in a steel chamber on the ocean bottom in an ambitious attempt to recover $2 million worth of cash and valuables from the wreck.

Rodocker, 27 and DeLucchi, 22, were to leave today for New York. Their underwater home, nicknamed "mother," left Wednesday.

The chamber will allow them to use "saturation diving" techniques they helped develop in the Navy, said DeLucchi, of San Diego, who set the world's record of 945 feet for open sea saturation diving last year while he was an instructor at the Navy's deep diving school.

"Divers who used the Scuba free diving method were hindered by decompression time limitations," he said. "Divers could work for only about 20 minutes before returning to the surface via decompression waiting periods at various depth intervals."

Because of the pressurized gasses they must breathe at such depths, divers risk getting the bends—painful and sometimes fatal bubbles of nitrogen blocking blood vessels—if they do not ascend slowly, exhaling the gases from their systems.

DeLucchi and Rodocker plan to get around that problem by living in "mother," which will be moored to the wrecked ship, and setting out each day for an 8 hour work period. They will have to decompress only once, when they finally surface.

Their goals include the recovery of $1.1 million in cash, which was reportedly in the liner's four safes when it went down in 1956, bronze propellers worth $35,000 each, a $250,000 silver plaque, a 10,000 anchor, the silver and Chrysler "idea car," a Rollschina settings, a 100,000 Royce, a Mercedes and art works sealed in marine shipping containers.

However, said DeLucchi, "it's the adventure, that's what we're mainly after. For all these years, the Andrea Doria has been called the Mt. Everest for professional divers. After all, the tax man will get most of the money."

The Andrea Doria collided with the Stockholm, a freighter, about 45 miles south of Nantucket, R.I., on July 25, 1956. The Swedish ships bow knifed into the Italian passenger liner's side, opening a gash 40 feet wide at the top and running down through seven of the Andrea Doria's 11 decks. Fifty-four persons died and 1,661 were rescued.

The ship now lies on its side under 240 feet of water. There have been numerous attempts to conduct salvage operations. The divers who made them reported the waters in the area have dangerous sharks, the hulk is covered with growths, and the interior of the ship is a jumble of floating furniture, carpets and other objects.

"Mother" is 12 feet long and about 5 feet in diameter. It is equipped with lights, bunks, water, food, power and links to the surface that include closed circuit television.

It was designed and built by DeLucchi, Rodocker and the 10 men of their support team, many of them also former Navy diving technicians.

The support team will be aboard the 83-foot-Narragansett, a salvage and research vessel. If the umbilical lines to the underwater habitat are severed, the chamber can operate independently for about 96 hours, DeLucchi said.

They plan to begin their descent next Wednesday, DeLucchi said, because "there are only about two weeks in July when this stormy area of the Atlantic is relatively calm. It was imperative we make the dive this month or wait until next year."

Default of $400,000 is to be paid

CARSON CITY, Nev. (UPI) — The Nevada Supreme Court has upheld a $400,000 judgment against a Texas financier in connection with a race track venture south of Reno.

The court said recently that Clyde E. Skeen of Dallas, former president of LTV Inc. must make good the $400,000 promissory note, plus pay 9 per cent interest and attorneys fees to the Valley Bank of Nevada.

The Reno Race Park Inc., got a $400,000 loan from the bank with Skeen guaranteeing the promissory note. Skeen, according to his attorney, A.D. Demetras of Reno, was given the majority of the stock in the company, in return for taking care of the mortgage.

When the bank note was not paid, a suit was filed. Before the trial, Skeen failed to show up at a hearing to give his deposition. District Judge John W. Barrett of Reno granted a summary judgment for the bank.

Skeen appealed, contending it was "an unduly harsh sanction and constituted an abuse of discretion."

But Justice Cameron Batjer wrote in the unanimous opinion, "default judgment will be upheld where the normal adversary process has been halted due to an unresponsive party, because diligent parties are entitled to be protected against interminable delay and uncertainty as to their legal rights."

Reno Race Park Inc. has had a franchise from the state Racing Commission to build a track about 20 miles south of Reno for two years. But Demetras said that financing has not yet been developed so there has been no construction.

Planners deny request for condominium

CLAREMONT — The Planning Commission unanimously has rejected a request for a conditional use permit to build 20 condominium units at Seventh Street and Yale Avenue.

Every resident who attended the commission's hearing on the request felt the development was not correct for the Historical Claremont District.

The request had come in to the city asking for 20 apartment units, but Charles Smith, representing H. B. W. Enterprises, told the commission that the development would be 20 two-story units of a Mediterranean-Spanish motif of "first-line construction."

When the architectural Commission did a schematic review of the proposed development last fall, residents protested the project.

The commission felt that the proposal for units in groups of four, four, four and eight, and inparticular, the garage top open space, would have an adverse effect on the existing neighborhood.

Chairman James Norris said that a different layout or approach might be acceptable and he did not object to the density.

"It is a question of working in something that is compatible with the neighborhood," he said.

A.P. teachers in S. America

AZUSA — A team of four educational specialists from Azusa Pacific College are currently in South America conducting a series of training conferences for teachers and administrators in Christian schools.

The project, named Operation Impact, consists of a two-week continent-wide school administrators conference and three consecutive week-long regional teachers conferences.

Leading the college team is Dr. Leo T. Phearman, a reading specialist and professor of education. Other members include Dr. Larry Birch, chairman of the department of education; Dr. John Carlson, assistant dean of graduate studies; and Ron Cline, dean of students.

The administrators conference is being conducted at a Wycliffe Bible Translators Center some 150 miles from Botoga, Columbia. Regional conferences, focusing on reading and counseling, will be conducted in Brazil, Bolivia and Ecuador.

Pastor 3rd generation minister

WALNUT — The Rev. Bob Shuler III, a third generation minister in the United Methodist Church, is the new pastor of the United Methodist Church in Walnut.

Mr. Shuler's grandfather, the Rev. Bob Shuler, served the Trinity Methodist Church in Los Angeles for 33 years before his retirment. He died in 1965. His father, the Rev. Bob Shuler II, served the Santa Ana Methodist Church during most of his pastoral career.

The new Walnut pastor said he decided to enter the ministry when he was in junior high school. He said he felt a sense of tradition "but that's not what brought me into the ministry."

He was born in Los Angeles and was raised in that area. He graduated from Taylor University, Upland, Ind., and Asbury Seminary, Asbury, Ky. He was ordained as a Methodist elder in 1972.

His new assignment will be his first as senior pastor. He previously served as associate pastor at the Anaheim Methodist Church.

His family includes his wife, Elaine, and one daughter, Jene, 2½.

Mr. Shuler will preach Sunday at the 10:30 a.m. worship service on the theme "Our Friends the Church."

Lion Clubs invited to optometry college affair

FULLERTON — Some 2,500 Lion Club members have been invited to an open house and reception Sunday at the Southern California College of Optometry.

These include those from Pomona, Diamond Bar, La Verne, Montclair, Ontario and Upland.

Visitors will be greeted by Dr. Richard Hopping, college president.

Traditionally, the Lions clubs have been active in eye care as a community service in cooperation with the optometric profession.

The reception is part of a continuing effort to familiarize the public with the new $3.5-million optometric research and training facility here.

Soap issue cleansed in judge's ruling

Ring around collar of state law yields to cold power of Congress

By M. GENE MEARNS

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — His eyes on Madison Avenue and his mind on the soap section of the corner grocery store, Judge John R. Brown, the chief justice of 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, set a standard Thursday for puns in a legal decision.

The case involved Dade County, Fla., which passed a law requiring extra labels on detergent boxes showing product ingredients by weight. The court told Dade County it could not pass such a law and Judge Brown wrote a concurring opinion. He said:

"As soap, now displaced by after day detergents in the mist of Madison Avenue, I add these few comments in the style of that street to indicate my full agreement with the opinion of the court and to keep the legal waters clear and phosphate free.

"As Proctor of this dispute" and ... "the decision represents a Gamble since we risk a Cascade of criticism from an increasing Tide of ecologyminded citizens.

"Yet, a contrary decision would most likely have precipitated a Niagara of complaints.

"Inspired by the legendary valor of Ajax, who withstood Hector's lance, we have Boldly chosen the course of uniformity.

"And having done so, we are Cheered by the thought ..."

Brown said Congress "of course has the Cold Power to preempt ... for it is Crystal Clear that the state law must yield."

The chief justice said Congress' soap regulatory law "is only the Head and Shoulders" while, "with some Joy, the court finds there is such a clause."

But Brown warned that "If we Dash to the heart of the question ... this unequivocal congressional Salvo was directed at such already existing regulations.

"Indeed, Congress intended to wield its Arm and Hammer to Wisk away such local regulations and further, to preclude the growing Trend towards this proliferation of individual community supervision."

He concluded: —

"It is as plain as Mr. Clean the proper action is that the Dade County ordinance must be superseded, as all comes out in the wash."

Outdoor service, ice cream social slated

CLAREMONT — Nancy Thum will lead the 8:30 a.m. outdoor service Sunday at the Presbyterian Church. She will be assisted by Phyllis Crombie and Charles Mabry.

Dr. James Angell will speak at the 10 a.m. worship service on the topic "He Shall Be Like a Tree."

Members of the Sanctuary Choir will sponsor an ice cream social on the church grounds Sunday at 4 p.m. Hot dogs and ice cream with toppings will be featured.

Entertainment will be provided by two barbership quartets, a children's musical comedy group and players from a local production of "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Fourm"; and the Claremont Chamber Youth Chorale. The entertainment program will be presented at two performances at 5:30 and 6:30 p.m.

The church will sponsor a family interest and skills series on Monday nights at 7 at the church during the summer. The object of the series is to have interesting programs which will help members gain new skills.

Some of the programs offered will include instruction in automotive maintenance, fiber and fabrics for those interested in arts and crafts, stretch and sew and a computer demonstration.

Child care will be provided and there is no charge for participation in the series.

18 arrested in protests at White House

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eighteen persons have been arrested at the White House since last Friday for protesting the continued bombing of Cambodia.

Two more protesters were arrested Thursday when they knelt to pray during a tour of the executive mansion.

The Secret Service said only one of the demonstrators would identify himself. He gave his name as Edward Guinan, 37, a Roman Catholic priest from Washington, D.C. The other was identified by a spokeswoman for the Community for Creative Nonviolence as Mitchell Snyder, 28, also of Washington.

The 18 demonstrators have been charged with unlawful entry after they refused to leave the mansion.

Legislator against aid to N. Viets

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Rep. William Jennings Bryan Dorn, D-S.C., said Thursday he was against providing financial aid to North Vietnam and also opposed amnesty for deserters and draft dodgers.

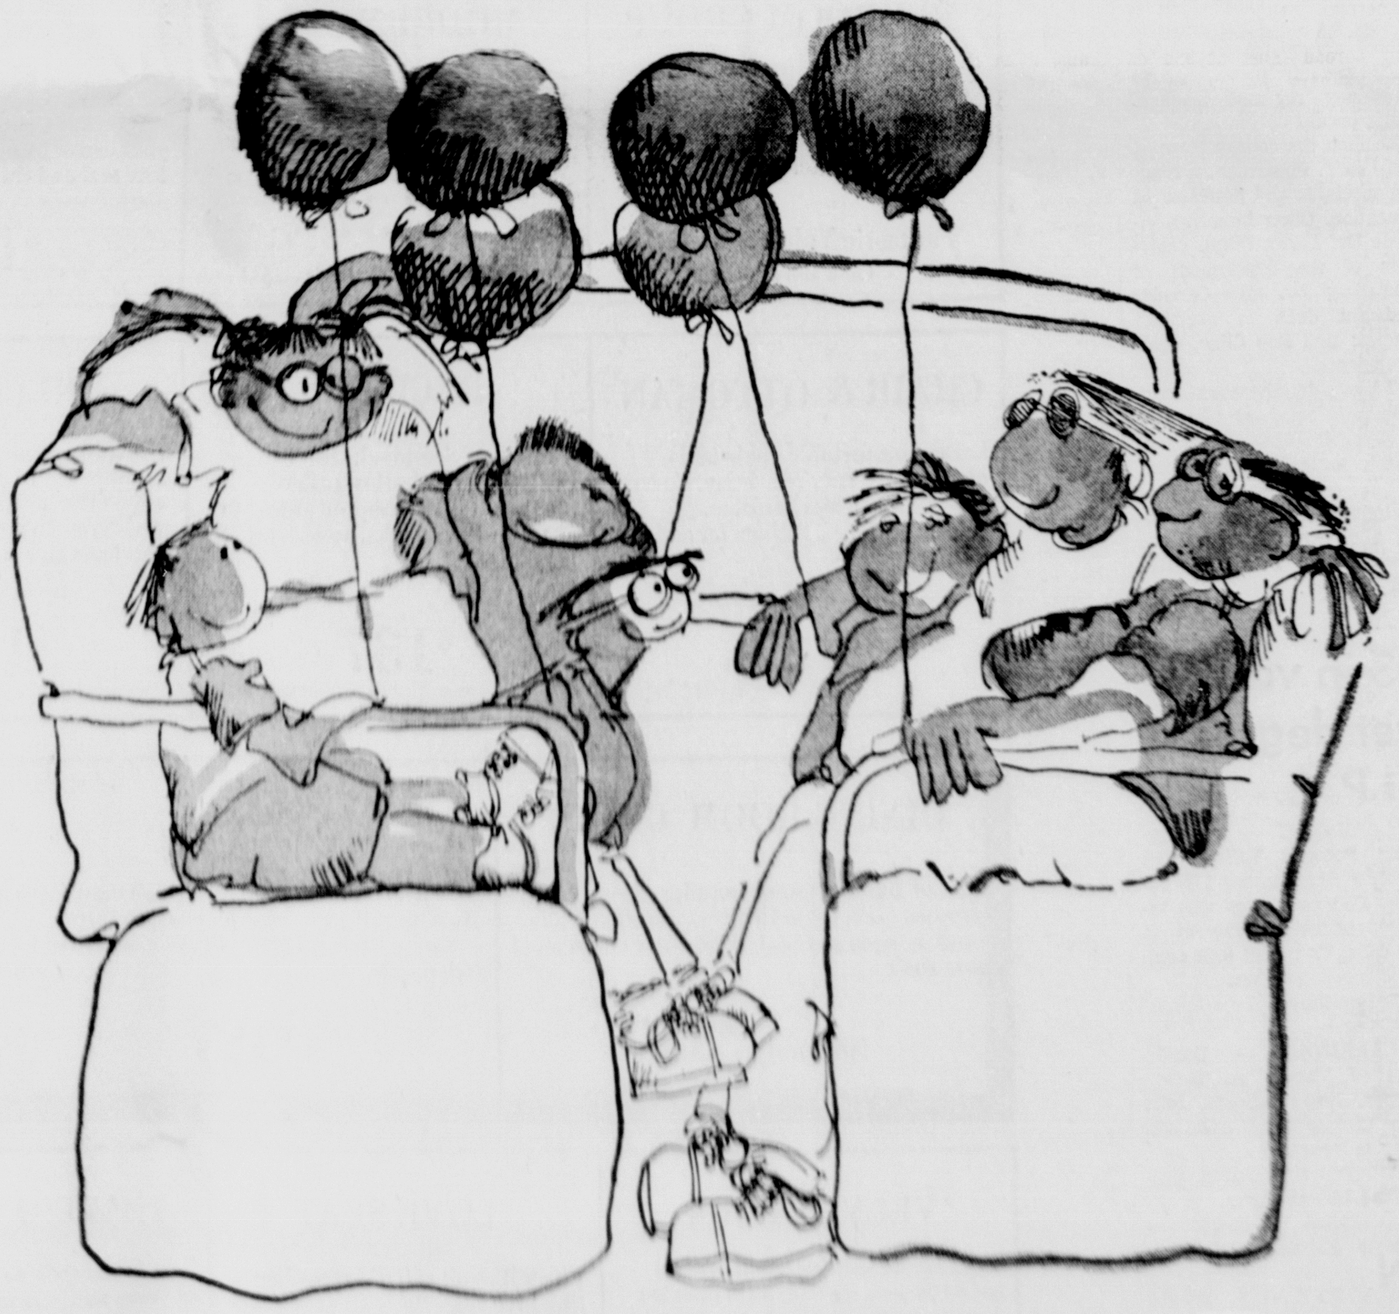

"I am not for amnesty for those who spit on our nation in a time of peril," Dorn told the 54th annual state convention of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. "Nor am I for rewarding with financial aid a country that killed 50,000 of our boys. If the Communist North Vietnamese had stayed home we would not have had a war. I am not for rewarding them financially for committing acts of terror and agression."

Dorn, chairman of the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs, said he was in favor of maintaining U.S. Forces in Europe and a strong defense position.

He said withdrawal of American armed forces from Europe would be "a green light for the dictator nations of Eastern Europe."

Skulduggery in Olduvai Gorge

By JOSEPH FIRMAN

It was recently Leaked to the press that the fossil skull of a an 2.9 million years old had turned up—or been turned up—on the shores of Lake Rudolf in Kenya. I'll say senior citizen.

Dozens of scientists sift these rich mines of paleontology under Richard Leakery, 29-year-old director of the Kenya National Museum and son of the late famed paleontologist, Dr. Louis S.B. Leakey.

I do not wish to get embroiled in a theological controversy with Garden of Eden-ites, but Leakey's legions claim that Man as We Know Him (and Wish We Didn't) thrived in this equatorial quagmire lo, these many millions of years ago. It depends on what you mean by "thrived." Also "Man."

This is the great thing about fossil head-hunters—they not only have to piece together a jigsaw puzzle of jaw bones and lower tibias, but once having established some sort of character, they have to decide if it has enough of the required characteristics to earn the name of man, or Man. Like, a generation gap.

Thus the fragments that have been called australopithecus are almost Man-like, but most scientists term him (or them) a hominid—he almost made it to Man-hood but he flunked his finals. Leakey Sr. denied this and claimed the austral-whatever-it-is he found in the Olduvai Gorge was First Man. Hurray for Leakey!

However, a word of caution. In my college days I played football against a couple of these australoppthecuses,and to call them human is a mockery on science as well as modern football. (I still get knee twinges on rainy days.)

The australopithecus had teeth larger than modern man, walked on all fours and had a brain of 500 cubic centimeters, about the size of a modern gorilla. It's a perfect description of the blind date I had at junior prom. If Leakey could only have seen her doing the Big Apple!

Paleontologists, anthropoligists, geologists and others who have brains greater than 500 cubic centimeters, are convinced that the hominid, or near-man, is extinct and has been so for a couple of million years, but I'm not so sure. My experiences on the gridiron and ballroom floor in the daze of my youth are constantly being reinforced by my social contacts today.

That hairy-legged waitress that spilled hot soup down my neck the other day—a perfect hominid. That traffic court judge who fined me $51 for absolutely sauntering down Garey—if that isn't an austrolopithecus I'll eat my hat—with my tusk-like canines and incisors. No over-worked and under-payed pawn of Industrial America would bet that his boss wasn't a refugee from the Olduvai Gorge.

Put the skull fragments together however you will, test them with the potassium-argon method, call them what you will. Primitive man is still with us.

U.S. firms abroad face terrorist risk

NEW YORK (UPI) — The American business executive caught in a terrorist kidnaping abroad must depend on his company for his safety. He can hope for little help from his own government.

Terrorist kidnapings have added new dimensions to policy-making for U.S. firms operating in foreign countries: how to insure executive safety and hof — or whether — to give in to ransom demands.

Ford Motor Co. turned over $1 million in extortion money to insure the safety of its employes in Buenos Aires. Eastman Kodak and First National Bank of Boston acquiesced to terrorist demands in Argentina. Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. paid a reported $3 million for the safe return, on July 6, of John R. Thompson, the company's president in Argentina.

About $12 million has been paid so far this year in similar corporate ransoms.

The question is one facing more and more companies with operations in high-risk foreign locations. It is one they face alone, according to Business International Corp.

Llewellyn Clague, senior editor of the New York-based research firm, said the company surveyed 20 major U.S. firms to determine what protective measures were being taken or considered to guarantee the safety of management in foreign-based countries.

The thorniest problem faced by these companies is U.S. State Department policy, according to Clague. The State Department, he said, will not put pressure on foreign governments to yield to ransom demands for kidnaped Americans, even if they are U.S. government officials. As for business executives abroad, the department leaves the matter strictly up to local authorities.

The State Department "unofficially chastised" Eastman Kodak for meeting terrorists' demands to free one of their kidnaped executives in Argentina, Clague said.

In recent years, some U.S. companies with foreign operations have countered Washington's policy of leaving matters up to local governments by approaching these governments directly for help, Claque said.

In some cases companies are just now hammering out countermeasures to a ransom threat. Others would not reveal any strategy on the theory minimal publicity would discourage terrorists from taking advantage of widely-publicized ransom payment procedures, Clague said. One company said "praying a lot" still was its official position.

Although the U.S. government has frowned on the payment of large ransom sums to airline hijackers, ransom insurance is available through Lloyds of London and American International Underwriters, Clague said. Premiums for such insurance have skyrocketed in recent months, according to insurance sources, who said $120,000 per $1 million of ransom covering the top five executives in a company now is common.

N.Y.'s tallest hotel will be built in Times Square

NEW YORK UPI) — A $150-million, 54-story hotel that will be the New York City's largest will be built in Times Square, the heart of the city, Mayor John Lindsay announced this week. The scheduled completion date in 1977.

Lindsay said the hotel "ties together perfectly with the concurrent construction of our new convention center and passenger ship terminal on the Hudson River.

"These three pieces will be the keys to the renaissance of Times Square and Manhattan's midwestside," he said.

The hotel will have two parallel major wings and between them, a central skylit atrium with glass enclosed elevator cars.

It will provide 35 stories for 2,020 hotel rooms with other floors for such things as a 1,050-seat theatre, ballrooms, an exhibition hall, an enclosed sidewalk cafe and a revolving restaurant on the top floor.

Seven stories will be used for shops. The registration lobby will be on the 13th floor.

The hotel will be owned by Portman Properties, an Atlanta real estate development firm and Peter J. Sharp of New York City.

It was designed by John Portman who fashioned it after other hotels he designed in Atlanta, Chicago and San Francisco.

Western International Hotels, a United Airlines subsidiary, will operate it. Western International, based in Seattle, operates 55 hotels in 12 countries.

It is estimated the world's oil reserves will last about 100 years.

Bridge

The time for real thought

By Oswald & James Jacoby

His two-club opening was artificial as was North's two-heart response. The final six-club contract was a good one, but chances looked slim indeed after West opened the 10 of diamonds.

John decided that West wasn't leading from the king, but it wouldn't do him any good to hold back dummy's queen so he played it. East produced the king and John won with the ace.

Opening lead—♦10

He cashed the ace and king of trumps. East dropped the six of spades.

John took his spade ace; led a club to dummy while East let go of a low diamond. Then he ruffed dummy's last spade; cashed his ace of hearts; led a heart to dummy's king and noted the fall of the 10 from West.

It was now time for some real thought. John came to the conclusion East had started with exactly eight red cards so that West had started with four of that color.

Hence, West was now holding just one red card which would be either the jack of hearts or a diamond. In that case there was no reason for John not to play a heart and finesse his nine.

If West produced the jack he would have to give John a ruff and discard for the same down one that would result if John rose with the queen.

John played the nine. When it held he cashed the queen and played a low diamond. West produced the nine.

East could not afford to overtake and West had to give John a ruff, discard and the slam.

Haldeman says he didn't know about cover-up

NEW YORK (UPI) — Former White House aide H.R. Haldeman has told Senate investigators he neither participated in nor knew anything about the effort to cover up the Watergate scandal, the New York Times said Friday.

The statement by Haldeman, Nixon's closest aide, contradicts testimony given the Senate Watergate Committee by both ex-White House counsel John W. Dean III and former Attorney General John N. Mitchell, who both said Haldeman participated in the coverup.

The Times, quoting a 20-page text of the testimony Haldeman made in an interview with the staff of the Watergate committee May 4, reported that Haldeman said he did not know of any cover-up until March of this year.

Eagle, Tomcat at sea in beautiful Navy ship

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Has the Pentagon called off the Great Flyoff between the Eagle and the Tomcat?

A Congressional source insists Deputy Defense Secretary William Clements so notified the House Armed Services Committee.

The Defense Department says it isn't so and the plan to engage the two fighters in head-to-head competition is proceeding apace.

Rep. F. Edward Hebert, D-La., says it doesn't make any difference: his committee has cut off the money for the super bowl of the air.

The question is what kind of plane the Navy will put on its aircraft carriers for the defense of the fleet in the 1980s.

The F14 Tomcat, being built by the Grumman Aircraft Corp., was originally assigned that role. But its cost has soared so high—$20 million apiece, making it the most expensive fighter ever built— that Clements started looking for alternatives.

As acting secretary, before James R. Schlesinger took over the department, he decided to limit the buy of F14s to 313 planes, less than half what the Navy wants. Before any more are produced, he said, the F14 would be stripped down to its essentials and subjected to competitive flight tests with a stripped-down version of a fighter that is being designed for the Air Force by McDonnell-Douglas, the F15 Eagle.

Critics of the plan claim that all it will do is add several hundred million dollars more the cost of the Navy fighter program.

Thursday, as the House Armed Services Committee completed action on a $21.4 billion weapons procurement bill, a reliable source said the committee had been advised that the fly-off had been canceled.

But the Pentagon quickly issued a statement claiming the plan "remains in effect" and "planning for the competition between the F14 and the F15 is proceeding according to the announced schedule."

The congressional source insisted that he had heard Frank M. Slatinshek, chief counsel to the committee, announce Clements' decision during the closed-door meeting.

Hebert said all he knows is that he had lunch with Clements at the Pentagon a few days ago and the deputy secretary said he would not press for the fly-off because of Congressional opposition.

Told of the Pentagon's claim that the fly-off lives, Hebert said: "It might be in effect on paper, but there is no money for it."

He said the committee removed $36 million from the appropriations bill that had been earmarked for test models of the F14 and F15.

U.S. heroin addiction at 'turnabout point'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's chief drug abuse prevention official said Thursday heroin addiction is nearing the "point of turnabout" in the United States.

Dr. Robert L. DuPont, who became director of the White House Special Action Office for Drug Abuse Prevention last month, also said federal programs will concentrate now on getting addicts to go to treatment facilities.

DuPont said the number of U.S. addicts has dropped significantly in recent years. He said there were between 500,000 and 600,000 in the late 1960s and that the number today is probably between 200,000 and 300,000.

"We can now look forward with cautious optimism to the nation's heroin epidemic approaching the point of turnabout," DuPont said. "Our goal is a return to approximately the situation in the 1960s prior to the addiction epidemic years of 1964-1971."

The estimated number of addicts in the early 1960s was 50,000.

DuPont said government drug abuse prevention officials will "no longer wait passively for individuals dependent on heroin to come to treatment centers."

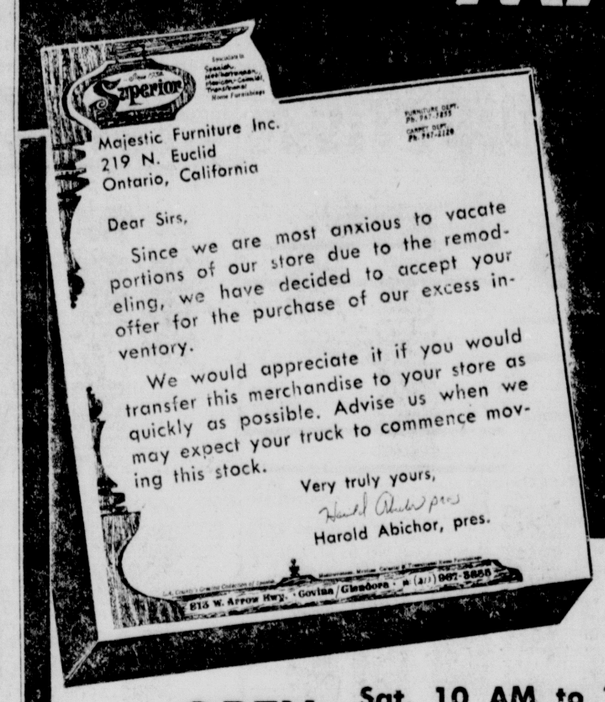

"Rather, we will actively reach out to penetrate the addiction underground and urge heroin abusers to become patients in our varied types of care," he said. He said the drive would be known as "Operation Out Reach."

DuPont cited a decline in narcotics-related deaths this year in Cook County (Chicago), Ill.; New York City; the District of Columbia where he formerly headed drug treatment programs; and San Francisco County, Calif., as an indicator of a nationwide slowdown in heroin addiction. Other indicators are a reduction in hepatitis cases traceable to the use of contaminated heroin injection needles and official crime statistics in cities where treatment is available, DuPont said.

DuPont's predecessor, Dr. Jerome Jaffe, said in a report to President Nixon, which was released Thursday, that federally financed treatment facilities have increased so dramatically in the last two years that some cities like New York now have greater treatment capacity than they have patients.

S.F. city employes lose raise

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Proposed pay raises of 17 to 24 per cent for 335 of the city's stationary engineers have been ordered reduced to 4 per cent by the Civil Service Commission.

A commission spokesman said Monday the engineers were "miscellaneous" city employes and not eligible to receive the city's lucrative "crafts pay."

If the original pay raises had been approved by the board of supervisors, it would have cost city taxpayers $600,000.

City attorney Thomas O'Connor said he had some legal doubts about the validity of the unprecedented averaging system used to qualify the engineers for the larger salary boost.

James Wurm, assistant director of the Civil Service Commission, said it was determined that the two highest wage rates used in averaging the 17-24 per cent pay hikes were invalid.

F111 strikes mountain; crew ejects

ZION NATIONAL PARK, Utah (UPI) — An F111A jet fighter-bomber crashed into the side of a mountain while on a training mission Wednesday. Two Air Force majors aboard parachuted out and were not hurt. It was the 38th of the swing-wing planes to go down since they began operations.

The plane, out of Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., narrowly missed the Zion National Park headquarters and Zion Park Lodge when it slammed into Deer Trap Mountain.

Chief Park Ranger Bruce Gardner said, "We thought it was one of our famous thundershowers" when the plane went down about 200 feet above park service headquarters. "The whole lodge began to shake and veryone ran like hell because of the noise. We thought maybe the mountain was coming down."

Of the 37 earlier crashes of the plane, several were during combat missions in Southeast Asia.

TROUBLED OVER HIGH INTEREST RATES

It is true interest rates have risen, but they do seem to have stabilized in the past several months. And while the rates may seem high, they are not climbing as rapidly as are labor and material costs. An increase or a decrease of ½ percent in interest rates only amounts to 30c per month per $1000 on a 25 year loan. Is it really wise to deny yourself the security, pleasure and pride of home ownership on the vogue hope of interest rates going down, thus saving you only $3 or $4 a month? The value of your home will increase at a much faster rate than can be gained by any lowering of interest rates. NOW is a good time to buy!

WONDER WHERE TO BEGIN LOOKING?

Worry no more . . . most folks have found that the best place to shop for that new or lived-in home is in the Classified Real Estate columns of the Progress-Bulletin. It's here (and only here) that each day you'll find the very latest offerings of homes 'for sale' . . . advertised by the area's leading real estate firms and builders. Check the want ads today—and every day—to find the home that satisfies all your needs.

YES NOW IS A GOOD TIME

John, Garvey spark Dodgers to 5-0 win

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

LOS ANGELES — If the Los Angeles Dodgers continue their merry march to a National League West pennant, they can attribute much of their success to their domination of the east.

Compared to a so-so 26-22 record against their Western foes, the Dodgers are a smashing 31-12 against the East.

The latest victim was the Chicago Cubs, the leaders of the East, as Tommy John pitched a five-hit shutout Friday night for a 5-0 win before 49,058 paid customers on the first game of Helmet Weekend.

Hot hitting Steve Garvey provided the offense by smashing a three-run homer off of Chicago ace Ferguson Jenkins in the third inning.

John, who walked only one batter and didn't record a strikeout, kept the Cubs off balance with his mixture of pitches and increasing the Dodgers' staff mark to 20 consecutive scoreless innings. He threw only 104 pitches, 61 of them strikes.

It's obvious it's going to be tough catching the Dodgers as long as their solid pitching holds up.

John is proving a big plus. The lefthander is 9-4 for the campaign after winning seven of his last nine decisions.

"I didn't think I was going to last more than two or three innings," John said after his impressive victory. "I was wild when warming up and didn't have good stuff and it carried over into the game.

"Sometimes, I missed the plate by one or two feet," John laughed "I thought the big play was when the Cubs had two runners on in the sixth inning and Beckert hit that liner to Lopes, who turned it into a doubleplay. That gave me renewed life." As it turned out, it was quite an anniversary present John presented to his wife Sally.

Chicago got only three runners as far as second base all night.

Glenn Beckert hit a one-out double in the first inning for the first threat but was left stranded as John was easily able to retire Billy Williams and Jose Cardenal.

The Cubs put together two singles in both the sixth and seventh innings but John finished strong by retiring the final seven batters.

Meanwhile, the Dodgers had no trouble taking care of Jenkins, who is seeking his seventh consecutive 20-win campaign. The Canadian righthander is 9-7 for the year and is not showing his usual zip, relying instead on junk pitches.

The Dodgers were able to pound out seven hits and drew five walks in Jenkins five innings on the mound but were unable to do anything in the final three innings against relievers Larry Gura and Jack Aker.

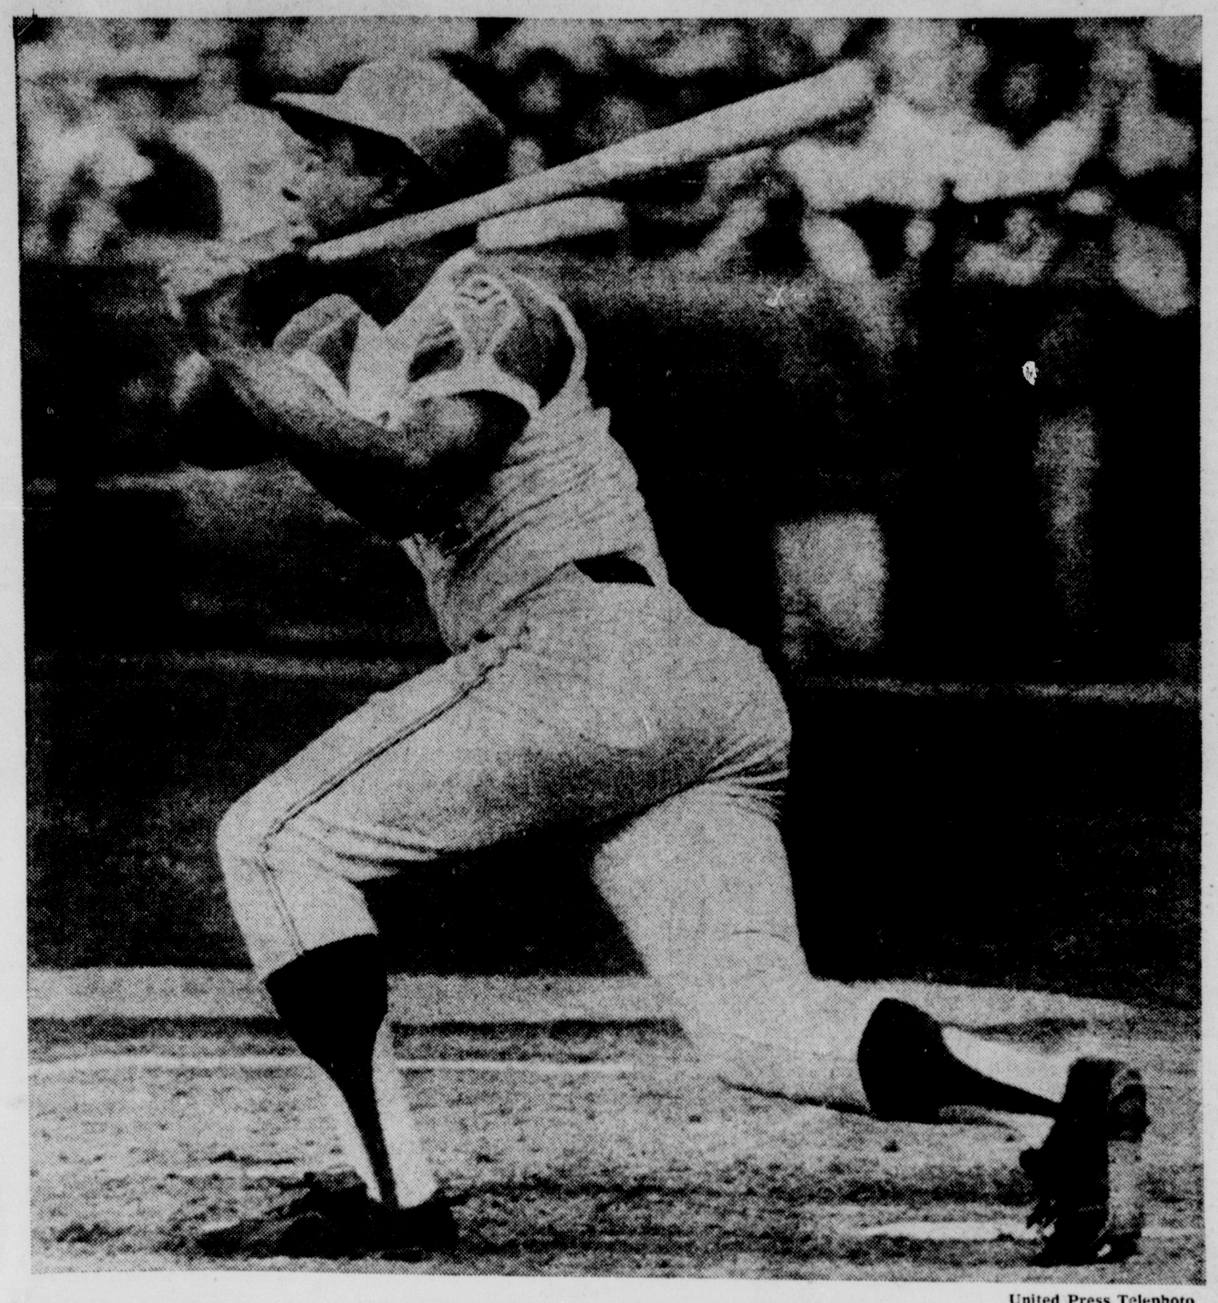

Davey Lopes and Bill Buckner started the four-run uprising in the third inning with back-to-back singles, ending up at second and third bases on a bit of daring base running on Williams.

Davis ripped a single in the fourth inning to score Lopes for the Dodgers' fifth run to give John more insurance then he needed.

Dodger Notes: Al Downing (6-4), who hasn't pitched for over a week, will face Burt Hooten (8-7) in this evening's 7 p.m. game. Claude Osteen (10-5) will face Rick Reuschel (10-5) in Sunday's 2 p.m. contest, the finale of the homstand.

. . .More helmets will be distributed today and Sunday to all youngsters 14 and under. The three games should draw over 140,000 fans. . . The Dodgers have announced another promotional night, a T-shirt night on September 8th when the San Diego Padres are in town. . . Davis has hit safely in seven games in a row with three runs, one double, two homers and eight RBI's during this span. He has hit safely in 12 of the past 13 games to lead the majors in hits with 117.

BAD HENRY ADDS ANOTHER

Hank Aaron displays his famous home run stroke in the fifth inning of Friday's Atlanta-Montreal clash. 'Bad' Henry hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning, his 24th of the season and 697th of his career. Aaron is now 18 round-trippers short of surpassing Ruth's all-time mark of 714.

Weiskopf holds slim Open lead

TROON, Scotland (UPI) — Tom Weiskopf stood in the drenching rain on the 18th green today and held his breath.

Johnny Miller was addressing a 20-foot putt which, if he made it, would leave the pair tied for the lead after three rounds of the British Open golf championship. Miller, the reigning U.S. Open champion, sent the putt true to the cup, but the ball ringed the hole and came out, giving Miller a bogey five and Weiskopf a one stroke lead at 206 for his 37-74--71 today.

Miller, who had torn Troon apart with a 32 for the first nine, faltered coming in, while Weiskopf had to rally from a near fatal 37 on the front nine. The Columbus, Ohio, hero, winner of over $100,000 in the last seven weeks, had had opening rounds of 68 and 67, but began his third round by bogeying the first and third holes, and then took a horrendous six on the par four ninth.

Coming home, however, Weiskopf regained his form and after a birdie on the 13th pulled even on the 15th when Miller bogeyed.

That set the stage for the drama of the 18th.

Miller's 69 was the low round of the day and was matched by a couple of Britons, including Peter Oosterhuis who led the Masters after three rounds, but Miller faded on the killer back nine as the windswept 7,064 yard Troon course began to exact its revenge.

A couple of British Ryder Cup players, Neil Coles and Brian Barnes, also thrust themselves into contention in fourth place with 213s, while young Lanny Wadkins was fifth on 214, one stroke ahead of Nicklaus and Christy O'Connor of Ireland.

Weiskopf started badly by bogeying the first hole. He got a bird at the second but ran into further trouble with another bogey at the third at which stage he was tied with Miller and Yancey at seven under par.

The 6-4 Columbus, Ohio swinger got his swing under control and now birdied three of the next four holes to regain a share of the lead with Miller, who was on a birdie barrage with four on the first eight holes, but a double bogey on the ninth allowed Miller to turn for home with a two stroke lead.

Miller was four under for the day to turn in 32, against the 37 of Weiskopf and Yancey's 34, which left the latter two in a tie for second place.

The battle was really on when Weiskopf and Miller each birdied the par five 11th, and when Weiskopf birdied the 13th he was within one stroke of regaining the lead.

Weiskopf made par for the remaining five holes as Miller bogeyed the 15th and 18th to surrender the lead.

Yancey had appearred in good shape when he birdied the 10th to stand nine under but he made four bogeys in the last eight holes to drop out of contention.

Nicklaus, who had an in-and-outward half of 37, blew away his chances with a trio of bogeys between the 12th and 14th.

Morton skips Dallas camp

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (UPI) — Craig Morton, who has waged an eight-year battle against first Don Meredith and then Roger Staubach to become the No. 1 quarterback for the Dallas Cowboys, walked out of training camp Friday and asked to be traded.

Morton told Cowboy General Manager Tex Schramm he was willing to quit football if the Cbwboys could not negotiate a trade.

"I'm still hopeful that Craig will change his mind," said Schramm. "He did ask me to pursue the possibility of a trade, but if this does not prove feasible, he indicated he was prepared to go into private business."

Morton's current contract has one more year to run, but he was attempting to renegotiate the pact on the basis of his performance last year during which he stepped in for the injured Staubach and helped lead the Cowboys into the playoffs for the seventh consecutive year.

Rams sign safety from Arizona St.

FULLERTON, Calif. (UPI) — The Los Angeles Rams signed Wayne Bradley, a safetyman from Arizona State, Friday.

Bradley, 6-2 and 170 pounds, was a seven-foot high-jumper on the Sun Devils track team. The 22-year-old athlete was a free agent.

The Rams waived another player, Charles Duke, a cornerback from Northeastern Oklahoma.

The rookies who reported to camp last Sunday will scrimmage Saturday against the Dallas Cowboy rookies at Thousand Oaks, Calif.

Ram Coach Chuck Knox worked 11 offensive starters against 11 defensive men Friday on plays learned during the week at the training camp at Cal State Fullerton.

On three home runs

Detroit rips Angels, 8-2

DETROIT (UPI) — Frank Howard, Tony Taylor and Rich Reese homered in support of Mickey Lolich Friday night to power the Detroit Tigers to an 8-2 victory over the California Angels.

Lolich raised his record to 9-8 despite giving up five walks and seven hits, including a two-run homer to Frank Robinson. The homer was the 535th of Robinson's career, putting him in sixth place on the all-time home run list. Robinson is now one home run behind Mickey Mantle and one ahead of Jimmy Foxx.

Robinson's 13th home run of the season came after two out in the seventh after Winston Llenas had singled and cut a 4-0 Detroit lead in half.

But Howard gave Lolich a safe working margin again in the bottom of the seventh by hitting his third home run of the season, a mammoth drive into the upper deck in leftcenter nearly 400 feet away from the plate. Howard had singled in the first inning after loser Clyde Wright, 7-12, had walked Tony Taylor and Al Kaline with one out to drive in the first Detroit run.

Taylor hit his third home run of the season in the fifth inning off Wright. Detroit picked up another run in the sixth when Aurelio Rodriguez singled and came all the way home on Ed Brinkman's double to leftcenter.

Kaline looped a single to right in the third and scored after Howard walked when Bill Freehan singled to center.

Taylor doubled home another run in the eighth and Reese also added a two-run homer in the inning.

Mickey Stanley recorded 11 putouts in centerfield for Detroit, tying the American League record.

American League roundup

Murcer rips three again

Bobby Murcer hit three homers for the second time in his career and drove in all five runs Friday night to give the New York Yankees a 5-0 victory over tht Kansas City Royals behind the six-hit pitching of Mel Stottlemyre.

Murcer's first homer came in the first inning following one-out singles by Matty Alou and Roy White. The other two blasts, which gave him a total of 18 on the season and 65 RBI's, came in the sixth and eighth innings.

Stottlemyre turned in his second straight shutout and third of the season as he pitched out of trouble in the first, seventh and eighth innings to raise his season record to 12-7.

In other American League action, Chicago nipped Baltimore, 3-2, Texas downed Boston, 4-1, Detroit stopped California, 8-2, Cleveland routed Minnesota, 11-2, and Oakland trounced Milwaukee, 13-4.

Eddie Leon capped a three-run ninth inning with a two-out run-scoring single as Chicago beat Baltimore.

The last-minute heroics saved Wilbur Wood from defeat and presented him with his 17th win of the season. Carlos May singled in the first White Sox run and Ken Henderson doubled in the second before Leon sliced his game-winning hit with the bases loaded.

Jim Fregosi, acquired only two days ago from the New York Mets, clubbed a homer and two singles in his first game in the American League since 1971 to lead Texas to victory over Boston.

Fregosi, arriving from New York earlier in the day, singled in the third and fourth, hit his first homer of the year to leftfield with the bases empty in the sixth and drove in another run with an eighth inning sacrifice fly. Jeff Burroughs cracked his 12th homer in the fourth for Texas' other run.

The Cleveland Indians, aided by 10 walks, scored four runs in the fourth inning and added five in the ninth inning to defeat Minnesota.

They scored a single run in the first and four more runs in the fourth inning on just two hits. Cleveland added five more in the ninth. Chris Chambliss drove in one run with a double, another scored on a sacrifice fly by Jack Brohamer and singles by Buddy Bell and Hendrick produced the other runs.

Gene Tenace cracked a grand slam homer in the five-run eighth inning and Ray Fosse drove in four runs with a two-run homer and a two-run double as Oakland beat Milwaukee.

Pirate star's plane unsafe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal investigators reported Friday that the DC7 that crashed and killed baseball star Roberto Clemente and four others was overloaded when one engine failed and another lacked full power on takeoff.

The crash of the four-engine airliner into the Caribbean Sea occurred Dec. 31 shortly after it took off from San Juan, P.R., with a load of relief supplies for victims of the Nicaraguan earthquake.

The National Transportation Safety Board, in reporting on its investigation of the crash, said an eyewitness said he told Clemente, star outfielder for the Pittsburgh Pirates, that the plane was improperly loaded and unsafe.

But the witness, the board said, quoted Clemente as saying "he didn't know anything about this and presumed the plane was being properly loaded.

The report said:

—The DC7 was carrying 4,193 pounds in excess weight on takeoff.

—One engine failed because of damage suffered in an earlier taxiing accident.

—Another engine failed to develop full power because of "excessive wear."

—The plane had not been flown "in approximately four months" prior to its last takeoff.

By CURT WEBSTER
P-B Staff Writer

AZUSA — Ron Himes and Jeff Nelson were confirmed members of prep sports' upper echelon long before their nominations to the East All-Star squad for the San Gabriel Valley Game Thursday at Citrus College.

To use the cliche, they were in a class by themselves, but it was a class determined by more than raw athletic ability.

Himes and Nelson are refreshing in their humbleness.

Neither is what sportswriters term "a good interview," for the simple reason that neither is eager to talk about himself. The conversation usually gets around to how others have contributed to their lives and careers, and the support their teammates give them.

The parallels between their prep careers are striking.

Both made their marks in football and basketball, but the greatest honor they share is almost an intangible.

Both men came to new schools, Himes to Walnut and Nelson to San Dimas, at a time when neither school ccould boast much of an athletic tradition. Walnut spent two years struggling along in football before Himes, and Nelson was there as a sophomore when San Dimas opened iis doors three years ago.

Himes leaves behind him a winning tradition as firmly implanted as any school in the Valley, while Nelson's heroics carried the Saints to the semi-finals of the CIF basketball playoffs.

Each, in his own way, became the first superstar to graduate from his respective school, the first legend schools could build pride around.

Along with their 27 All-Star teammates the two will be making their last local appearance in uniform Thursday. Thereafter, Himes will pilot football teams for Stanford, while Nelson heads for Wyoming U.

A trip to the East practice sessions at Citrus College reveals that success has spoiled neither.

It's an honor for me to be the first athlete from San Dimas to play in such an event," Nelson quietly says.

Though he's representing San Dimas, Nelson will be dedicating his efforts strictly to the East. "I'll be playing for the East. In order to win you have to play for your team, not for yourself."

The best part about playing with a variety of players?

"It's finding out the attitudes of others," Jeff says thoughtfully. "It's finding out how people from other schools and backgrounds are different from you."

Himes is as approachable as ever.

"An interview? O.K., if don't mind talking to a boring person," he says while awaiting his turn for team pictures.

Few share Ron's opinion of himself as a conversationalist.

There is no problem getting such a diverse group of players motivated, according to Himes. "Pride" is his one word answer to what drives the East.

"We know each other pretty well now. We're a bunch of individuals, but we're getting to know each other."

The East got clobbered last year, but Himes claims that really doesn't mean anything one way or the other. "If we'd have won by the same score, I'd be just as excited. Of course, if I would have played in that game, it might be different. But I don't think you need a score to get up for a game."

Himes looks upon the All-Star as not only an honor, but a good game to warm up for his freshman year at Stanford. "It's fun starting over agin. I'd have to do something to get in shape anyway."

If Ron makes it at Stanford, it will be in a prominent position again. He's set on the quarterback job.

"I've trained and prepared for it for a long time. I wouldn't want to change now."

In more ways than one, nobody else wants him to change either.

Spare Moments

After 19 tournaments on the 1973 Professional Bowlers Association (PBA) tour, Munster, Indiana's Don McCune has compiled some impressive statistics:

—Five tournament victories, the earliest a pro bowler has won this many and more than double the total of two, which McCune had captured in his previous seven years on the circuit.

—Earnings, so far, of $54,540 to easily top the list of 1973 money winners. McCune's best season before netted the crewcut righthander only $33,000. And there are still 14 tourneys left in the season.

Despite not making the finals this week in Tucson, Ariz., McCune has already made himself the runaway leader for Bowler of the Year laurels, an honor most people had conceded to Don Johnson before the year began.

It seems that the secret to McCune's success has something to do with a substance called MEK, methyl ethyl ketone, available at any paint store for about $10 for five gallons.

Word got out in Portland, three weeks ago, that McCune had been soaking his plastic shelled Brunswick Crown Jewel bowling balls in something which softened the outer shell to such an extent that you were able to put your finger in the shell, making an indentation, and then watch it pop back up, like a sponge.

The effect of this soaking makes the ball hook sharply right before striking the pins, curiously something that the pros were trying to get away from just a few years back.

But now, with the amount of oil they face each week, many would like a little more finishing power at the end, and this soaking of the balls apparently gives the desired result. And at least it has worked for McCune, who has been applying this soaking process for a little over a year.

After word leaked out in Portland, several other people tried this technique for the next week's tourney in Fresno. One of the new converts was Woodland Hills' Dale Glenn. Dale, who hadn't made the finals all year, led the qualifying at Fresno and in the first round of finals Sunday night, rolled 2003 for the eight games, an average of 250.

McCune finally wound up winning the title with Glenn winding up third, his best PBA performance ever. But Dale might have established himself as the most influential person in the PBA as after watching him bowl, nearly everyone went out to soak a ball or two for last week's Redwood City tourney, which McCune also won, and 19 of the 24 finalists were using soaked balls.

The soaking process is very simple. The first thing required is the purchase of big bucket and some MEK, acetone or other hot solvent. Then soak the ball, drilled or undrilled, for around an hour. If the ball is new, and then soaked, the drill bit might waver upon drilling, so usually the process goes drill, plug, redrill.

A word of warning to the average bowler before rushing out to buy out the local paint store of MEK. This new idea in bowling is really only effective on oily conditions, something the average bowler never sees in Southern California.

Now that everyone on the tour is using the soaked ball, what will this do to McCune's hot streak? Probably nothing. He now has the confidence and, as seen in Redwood City where everyone was a "soaker," McCune can more than handle his own. In fact he captured that event despite winning just 13 of the 24 head-to-head matches. He was 200 pins ahead scratch of runner-up Earl Anthony.

So who is going to be hurt most by the new soaking. One person, and by his own admission, is Don Johnson.

Although not many people know it, Johnson admits that he is not an accurate bowler. "Over the past few years, with the way conditions have been I have had a two or three board area to play with, giving me a natural advantage over the other people," Johnson explained in Redwood City.

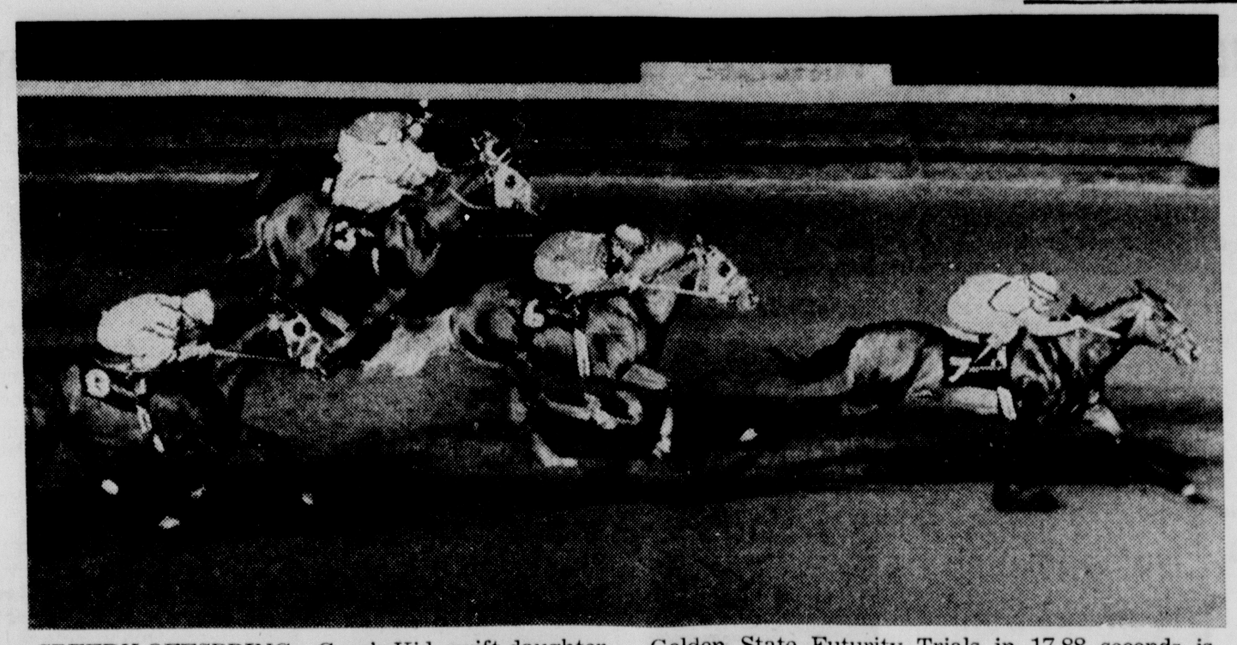

"My armswing is such that I can't hit a single board like most of the other guys can. So now that they have come up with the soaked balls, it gives them a few more boards to play with and now they have the same advantage that I was able to enjoy for the past two seasons."

So bowling, at least professionally speaking, is undergoing changes. It is all legal, by the way, as ABC rules make no specifications on the hardness of the outer shell of a ball.

But will this be the long termed anwser to success on the tour? Most pros think not.

"Sure," said Jay Robinson, SoCal Bowler of the Year in 1972, "this might be the immediate answer, but the PBA knows so much about lane maintenance that they could set up a condition for whoever they wanted to win. So after the scores get too high, and the same guys start dominating, the shot will probably change."

And then it will be a race to see who can discover the new advantage creating secret.

Pony-Colt vs. Sr. Division-Big League

Baseball programs clash

By KEVIN CLOE
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — It was almost three years ago when the Pomona Baseball Commission Executive Committee introduced a Master Plan which would replace the Pony and Colt League programs in Pomona with Senior Division Little League and Big League programs.

And now those two new divisions have grown so popular in the valley that they're are starting to cut into the larger organizations of Connie Mack and American Legion.

After only one year of existence, the Big League teams in Pomona have expanded from two teams to four, and when San Dimas and Diamond Bar were added a new league was formed.

At that pace it would seem as though the Senior Division for 13-15 year olds and the Big League for 16 through 18 year olds could quite possibly be the programs to watch in future summers.

"It's been a big difference," commented Little League District 20 administrator Dick McCormick from Diamond Bar. "We've gotten a lot more boys involved."

The idea for developing the Big League and Senior Division programs was not to wash out the Pony and Colt Leagues. But since those two previous organizations were running into some financial problems, the baseball board decided to make the move toward something a little more fiancially sound.

"The Big League and Senior Division programs have a bettter chance of succeeding in a strong Little League area," McCormick pointed out. "The Little League has its organization behind the programs."

The beginning of these two new divisions didn't first start in Pomona.

"Big League had started around other parts of the country and then Pomona got wind of it," explained Pomona Parks and Recreation Director Phil La Pierre.

"Personally, I think it's the best thing for youth baseball," added La Pierre. "At one time there were 11 different youth baseball organizations in town. Now they've just got four Little League divisions (minors, majors, senior division and big league), plus Connie Mack and American Legion."

La Pierre went on to discuss why the Colt and Pony Leagues were forced to fold after Senior Division and Big League came on the scene.

"Pony League was suffering financially, but the Colt League was doing pretty well," he said. "But when Big League was developed, it cut into the Colt League program because it offered baseball to the same age group.

"It was first designed to let the Colt League play for one more season even after the other two divisions were put into effect, but it just couldn't get up enough interest to stay on."

The Big League was also one of the causes which forced the Pomona Connie Mack Kings to fold this season. The program offered summer competition to the same age group as did Connie Mack, and for some reason the Big League won the battle for talent.

But both McCormick and La Pierre don't agree that the Big League will conflict with American Legion for a few years.

"At present time, it (Big League) probably would not effect American Legion very much if at all," stated McCormick. "The American Legion has 25 to 30 years of history and tradition. Not only that but it does offer a better class of baseball and has better competition and more exposure. A few years from now the Big League should be a definite competitor with American Legion for talent. I also think, and this is what I've heard floating around, that in time it is entirely possible that the American Legion will up its age group to 18-20 year olds."

"The way it's set up now, I don't think Big League would cut into the Legion," said La Pierre. "The better kid still has the desire to play American Legion ball.

"There are advantages of playing Big League," La Pierre added. "Especially for a boy who works. Big League's schedule is perfect because the teams play every Wednesday and Sunday—which is different to the American Legion schedule which is sort of flexible."

So for the meantime, the American Legion program seems safe.

Inexplaining why he thought the Pomona Connie Mack team had to fold, La Pierre said, "There just wasn't room in this town for three organizations offering baseball to the same age level—something had to give."

Big League and Senior Division play may be expanding quickly, but not everybody is happy with it.

John Baird, who had a foot in both Colt League and Big League, was against the conversion right from the start.

"I first got into summer baseball at this age group and worked with the Colt League program," Baird revealed. "I was impressed with the boys at that age level. They needed a baseball organization and Colt League drew from all over town. You'd have kids from the south part of town playing on the same team as the kids from the north side of town."

Baird then went on to tell how the Pony League was dropped.

"The Ted Greene League was powerful and well off financially, but some of the people affiliated with the league wanted to get rid of a few individuals. I couldn't see the change."

Baird, who is serving his last year as Big League director for Ted Greene, thinks the competitiveness has gone down since the Colt League and Pony League days.

"This year every league has a team on the field which lost a great deal of competitive spirit," he said. "The grade of ball is just not what it used to be."

Claremont is one city in the Pomona Valley which has declined to victimize its Pony and Colt League programs in order to provide for a Senior Divsion and Big League program.

"When the boys go from the Little League to Senior Division, it's a massive jump," explained Claremont Colt-Pony president Art Nelson. "When you jump from the Little League the baselines go from 60 to 90 feet. In our opinion it's too much for the boys, very few can make that jump.

Nelson indicated that there is a very slim chance of Claremont switching over.

"What we did," he started, "was we set up a meeting with the Little League officials and we came to the understanding that they wouldn't try to compete with us. We gradually move the boys up, and I think it's better for the players this way."

The Pony League program in Claremont has expanded in the past year from an 8 to 12 team league, while the Colt League has gone from a two-team league to a four-team circuit. Plans are scheduled to expand the Colt League to six teams in the future.

For Pomona, the Colt and Pony League programs didn't work, so the city went to the Senior Division and Big League. But for Claremont and the other cities which have retained the older programs, the Pony and Colt League programs worked out and as long as they do, there doesn't seem to be any changes necessary.

Mota hoping for All-Stars

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Manny Mota has never played in an All-Star game.

At 35, the likeable veteran from the Dominican Republic is running out of chances.

At the All-Star break last season, the Los Angeles Dodger outfielder was tied for the National League lead in hitting at .332 with countryman Cesar Cedeno of Houston. But he was bypassed.

As the 1973 All Star game nears, Mota, the solid professional, again finds himself out in front of the league's hitters with a .345 average.

For the first time in his 12year major league career, Mota found his name on the computer ballot.

"I would like to play and it would be a great honor," he declared, "but I won't be mad if I'm not picked."

If Mota is chosen, it will be as an extra outfielder. The choice is up to Sparky Anderson, the Cincinnati manager.

"The All-Star game . . . the batting title . . . both would be nice but this is a team game and the pennant always comes first," he said with a friendly smile.

Mota started the season with a .302 career average, one of 10 active major league players with .300 batting averages in more than 10 seasons of play.

He is not a big name in the eyes of the fans, though, because he is not a power hitter. the smallish, 5-11, 168-pounder has 30 home runs in his big league career with the San Francisco Giants, Pittsburgh Pirates, Montreal Expos and Dodgers.

"The All-Star game should not," he said, "be a popularity contest. The players should be selected on the basis of what kind of job they are doing.

"Maybe the fans shouldn't pick the teams. Maybe it should be up to the players. Or the writers."

Mota, who hit .323 last season, is still looking to play in his first World Series, too

"This is a very good team," he assessed, "It has a good balance of youngsters and veterans. These kids believe they can win and I'm convinced they can.

"We have solid pitching, we have the defense and we have the hitting. We may not have the power of some of the other teams but we can accomplish the same thing with singles and doubles and triples as they can with home runs."

Surprisingly, Mota is worried most about Houston. After Wednesday night's games, the Dodgers led the National League West by 5½ games. The Astros were 8½ back.

"Houston has had some problems," he noted, "but man for man they have the best balance. I may be wrong but I think they're the ones we're going to have to beat."

The Dodger veteran may be approaching the end of his career but he doesn't talk like it.

"I feel fine," he said. "I know I cannot run as well as I did when I was younger but I think I run well enough. I get tired but I think everybody in this game gets tired."

At Montreal, Mota suffered through a 23-game losing streak in 1969 before being obtained by the Dodgers.

When the young Dodgers lost their first six games in July, many had thought the bubble had finally burst. Not Mota, though.

"These kids did not panic," he said. "They kept going about their business. That's what I like about them. They have a lot of confidence, an aggressive confidence, that sets them apart."

Hollywood Derby set for first Sunday run

INGLEWOOD — The Hollywood Derby, won a year ago by Riva Ridge and prior to that by such thoroughbred greats as Round Table and Swaps, will be raced for the 33rd time this weekend at Hollywood Park, but in many respects it will be the start of something new.

Never before has the Derby been run on a Sunday, but that will be the case this year, and never before have the conditions called for the starters to carry level weights of 126 pounds over a mile and one-half on the Lakeside Turf Course.

As a pre-Derby Day attraction today, at least a dozen two-year-old fillies are expected to vie when Hollywood Park presents the estimated $100,000 Hollywood Lassie Stakes, late-deciding event of the summer for freshman misses.

Eleven three-year-olds — 10 colts and lone filly—are scheduled to contest the derby, including three sophomores who will represent the East and lend an intersectional flavor to the race.

Included in this trio is French-bred Amen 2nd, surprise winner of the recent Cinema Handicap. That nine-furlong turf battle failed to establish a Derby favorite and Sunday's renewal appears to be the most wide open in history.

Kirrary, the filly Card Table and Right Honorable finished in a photo behind Amen in the Cinema and all are slated to try him again in the Derby, as are Groshawk, who disappointed as the Cinema favorite, and London Company, one of the eastern invaders, both impressive stakes winners this year and highly-regarded despite their Cinema efforts.

Big Whippendeal, a son of former Grass Horse of the Year Assagai, and Twice a Prince, second to Secretariat in the Belmont Stakes, are to other leading Derby candidates.

Favoritism in the Lassie is likely to rest with Calaki, a speedster who has registered two straight Hollypark wins. However, she will have plenty of opposition, with Special Team, Special Goddess, Poona's Double, Twin Buttes and Lady By Choice all regarded strong upset possibilities.

Religious community enters third arena of labor controversy

By REV. DAVID POLING

El Paso, Tex., now appears to be the third arena of controversy and concern for Christian activits. First it was grapes in California, then lettuce in Arizona, and now slacks in Texas.

For nearly a decade Cesar Chavez and his United Farm Workers caught the imagination of many people across the country and not a few churchmen who supported his grape, then lettuce boycott. Social justice is central to the gospel and the religious overtones of Chavez appeal and nonviolent strategy rang many church bells. So why not boycott Farah and join in the call of Bishop Metzger who has asked for national support of the Amagamated Clothing Workers of America strike against the El Paso manufacturing plant?

At first glance, or first reading of the newspaper advertisements that have appeared in several Eastern papers, Farah is the villain of the garment industry, rushing a host of Mexican-Americans with a sweat-shop system and a wetback wage scale. The socia injustice (because they are not unionized) is traced to William Farah and his outspoken opposition to a union contract. His rhetoric does sound like 19th-century economics and his paternalistic stance makes a perfect target for those who support the organizers.

In response to an appeal from some of his Catholic flock, Bishop Sidney Metzger, longtime prelate of El Paso, gave public endorsement to a strike and boycott of Farah products last year. Since that time has urged fellow Catholic bishops to endorse and asked ecumenical groups to gain church support for his plea.

The bishop's strongest weapon is the historic stance of the Christian church for the downtrodden and poor. Out of this came support for the union movement and many churches have powerful statements for the cause of organization of workers. Yet in 1970s much of the public and many of the workers are not so charmed by the attractions of union leadership and philosophy. The enormous shake-up of the steel workers, and the Teamster style of operations has certainly been counter-productive. In three years of campaigning, the union has not made much of a dent in the 8,000 employes of Farah. It appears that the people on the production line prefer the paternalism of a Willy Farah to that of James Hoffa. But the issue of boycot is much alive and Bishop Metzger's charges must be discussed.

The boycot has involved many church and religious groups around the country. Councils of Churchs and ministerial organizations have asked for information and the bishop has written more than 18 pages in response.

He has argued that collective bargarining is absent and that social justice grossly impaired. He notes that his information comes from local workers who complain about the performance required at Farah, the low wages, the retirement provisions and the lack of a company published personnel policy. Sick and maternity leave were also grievances mentioned. Job security and production quotas seem to be the most vital is-

Thoughts

From the Living Bible

You know what I was like when I followed the Jewish religion—how I went after the Christians mercilessly, hunting them down and doing my best to get ride of them all. I was one of the most religious Jews, and tried as hard as I possibly could to follow all the rules of my religion. But then something happend! For even before I was born God had chosen me to be his, and called me to reveal his Son within me so that I could go to the Gentiles and show them the Good News about Jesus.

Galations 1:13-16.

Missionary family to be speakers

MONTCLAIR — The Herbert Racke family, missionaries to the Dominican Republic, will speak at the 6 p.m. worship service Sunday at the Grace Brethren Church.

Their program will include preaching and music. The family includes four children, David, Beth, Susan and Dwight.

Vacation program

POMONA — The Seventh-day Adventist Church will sponsor a vacation Bible school program from 7 to 9 p.m. beginning Monday and continuing through Friday and July 23 through 27.

The program will be conducted at the Pomona Junior Academy and will feature Bible stories, crafts and games for children 4 through 14.

Roxanne Brant

She looks like the kind of young woman you might find out playing tennis in the afternoon, probably at a swank country club in a restricted area of New England, not at all the type of person you would expect to find preaching the gospel or running a Crusade of Miracles.

Yet this is what she does and is doing.

Roxanne, a young minister with a Presbyterian background and a Master of Divinity degree, has studied at Harvard Divinity School, Boston University School of Theology, and Gordon Divinity School (from which she graduated).

The Rev. Miss Brant's background would seem to be anything but preparation for the teaching-healing field. She was literally born with a gold spoon in her mouth, as her father is a well-to-do scientist.

She attended the exclusive Dana Hall School in Wellesley, Mass., and would have been a debutante but for the fact that she staged a minor rebellion "against such sham."

She studied piano and was soloist with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Symphony Orchestra. However, she refused to enroll at Radcliffe or Wellesley or Mount Holyoke, the status symbol women's colleges of New England, and matriculated at the University of Colorado.

"All this time I was trying every conceivable type of philosophy to find a way of life for myself," she related, "but one night in the university library I had the same type of experience that is recorded in the ninth chapter of the Book of Acts.

"All in one night," she added, "I was converted and called to the ministry and instead of fitting myself for a career as a medical doctor and concert pianist I started my studies to prepare me for service to God."

In this ministry, she says, it is not primarily through the laying on of hands that miracles occur. Instead, the sovereign and unpredictable Spirit of God falls upon certain individuals and sections of the audience, healing people as their physical problems are called out through the gift of the "word of knowledge." The worship is intense and God gets all the glory as scores of those healed crowd toward the microphone to testify to amazing healing miracles. Often, several hundred people are healed in a single service.

"Most important," Roxanne says, "is the realization that Christ is the healer, not I. No human being has any healing power; but Jesus heals today as He did when He walked the earth nearly 2,000 years ago. And it is to Him that we give all the glory."

Lucille Ball keeps rolling as queen of home television

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Television executives take for granted Lucille Ball's hold on the viewing audience, and you sometimes wonder if the network people genuinely appreciate the miraculous nature of her video longevity.

The trouble with being the kind of superstar that Miss Ball is—with ceaselessly solid ratings and a long-held reputation as queen of the home medium— is that people do, indeed, take her, and perhaps even her talents, for granted. I sometimes think that if she took a season off and then came back, she would be regarded with fresh appreciation upon her return, and might well acquire even more fans than the countless number she already has.

Miss Ball will be back on CBS-TV again next season with her situation comedy series, which has undergone various alterations over the years—but which has basically been a succession of shows set up to allow her to display her unique and often remarkable talents.

It really doesn't matter much whether the individual episodes of Miss Ball's series are always up to snuff—what matters is to watch this amazingly commanding artist take charge. It seems a simple thing: ask a star to take charge of the proceedings for a while— proceedings that have been constructed to show you off at your best. But consider how many name performers have been unable to carry off this task on video even for a short while. And yet here is this zany redhead who has done it week after week' year after year.

The fact is, though, she can do just about anything in Show Business—and with the authority, the presence, that only the truly great stars can radiate. Not merely a marvelous knockabout comedienne, she can sing, dance and act— and her acting has a broad range, although my personal feeling is that she registers most effectively when she appears in witty movie roles with a touch of romance to them. If you haven't seen a bob Hope-Lucille Ball movie you've missed out on some crackling professional entertainment.

I haven't spoken to Miss Ball personally in a long time, but I recall her as a standup dame, someone who could clearly outmaneuver anyone in show business who might try to give her a tough time—and a woman who gave the impression she would be great fun to have a few drinks with. She talked straight, with a clear lack of interest in small talk and other frilly aspects of her business.

There are a lot of name performers I wouldn't walk across the street to see. But Lucille Ball is something very special to me. The episodes of her video series are not always exceptional, but she delivers enough delightful moments overall to make the show worth tuning in. She is one of our alltime major Show Business stars, and television, as important as it is to her, is just one of the fields she can dominate. Put her on the stage, or in a movie, and you know a star is up there. She is All-Pro.

Reviews of movies

By Sarah Smiley

"The Neptune Factor," at Cinema II, Montclair Plaza, is a strange mixture of technical competence, grossly implausible scientific mumbo-jumbo, tedious scripting and routine acting. It's about a research team studying undersea conditions that cause earthquakes. In the process, part of the team gets caught in an (you guessed it) earthquake that traps the underwater lab and separates it from its home ship above water. Most of the movie is devoted to the rescue, an incredibly dull and lengthy process made bearable only by some excellent photography of marine life. The performers (Walter Pidgeon, Yvette Mimeux, Ernest Borgnine, and Ben Gazzara) are given little to do but hunch over rows of complicated levers and dials, muttering bits of technical jargon at one another, and so most of the scenes are stolen by the fish.

"Super Fly T. N. T." is a surprisingly placid movie for a black action film, the genre from which we have learned to expect lots of fast moving shocks and jolts, if nothing else. Evidently star Ron O'Neal, who also directed and co-authored the script, decided to get serious in this sequel and explore the problems of black identity. The unfortuanee result is a clumsy, slow jumble in which neither the causes of black pride or entertainment are well served. At the Fox, Pomona.

"Hitler: The Last Ten Days" is a serious and seemingly painstaking attempt to present an accurate portrait of the last days in the life of Hitler. Much of the screenplay is based on the remembered observations of a member of the German army who was present in the bunker where Hitler and his closest associates spent their final weeks and who survived the war to recount his experiences. The film also has the approval of Hugh Trevor Roper, a distinguished British historian.

Yet with all this attention to detail, and despite an impressive performance by Alec Guiness as Htler, the movie comes off as amazingly dull, an oddly unaffecting, though careful, piece of work. At the Montclair Theater.

Labor dispute . . .

sues presented by these workers.

The difficulty of supporting Bishop Metzger and the boycott of Farah products is revealed in the following issues, not generally broadcast in this debate:

— Bishop Metzger has never visited a Farah manufacturing facility. These are not border sweatshops. Indeed, they may be the most modern garment plants in the world.

These one floor, air conditioned , attractively lighted facillties are the newest in the the industry. Farah not only provides an enormous cafeteria but is famous for his medical treatment and eye-glass clinic—free to the employes. He is absolutely paternatlistic. He feels that people have to see what they are doing and in a high-speed production line, it is a must.

— Bishop Metzger was not given the correct details concerning wages. Farah pays the minimum federal wage and is usually on par with several of the other union-shops in town. Farah is probably ahead on annual income since many of the garment factories do not sustain a full year's production.

— Bishop Metzger states in one of his letters that a representative of the Texas Employment Commission visited the El Paso factory and noted that the workers were treated like machines and not people. Further, this individual was not allowed to visit with employes at random. For this reason, the bishop will not visit one of the plants. Yet and official communication from the Texas Employment Commission states that they have no knowledge of any such visit by their staff.

— There has been regular comment — often in Eastern circles — that Farah gets the edge on the slack-pants industry by hiring wet-backs from Mexico. The fact is that Farah has inisted on hiring American citizens (mostly Spanish) and is currently appealing a government policy that he must hire migrant Mexican workers.

If the churches support the Bishop Metzger boycott of will the result be social justice?

This is the hard question and one not easily answered. As of this writing, the majority of works at Farah have not endorsed a union effort. After three years of campaigning the Amalgamated Clothing Works of America have been unable to predict a successful election, should the NLRB hold one. Some 200 cutters at the El Paso factory have organized but Farah has argued that they do not represent the other 7,000 employes.

A boycott of Farah products will certainly injure the management and ownership of this firm. A complete boycott would shut-down the income of nearly 8,000 Mexican-American workers—a sort of economic punishment for their not getting into the union movement. The issues are complex and the churches on the verge of supporting such a drastic action may well want to visit with management and labor before sounding the boycott signals.

Some church bodies have taken boycott action. The Texas Conference of Churches in February of this year voted to support the strike and boycot. Bishop Metzger addressed the assembly — Farah was not given this privilege, except for a brief committee appearance. This abrupt action and following pronouncement stirred local El Paso pastors to investigate more thoroughly the Farah controversy. Several weeks ago this writer visited with nearly two dozen ministers of all denominations who had been into the Farah factory and held discussions among themselves concerning the strike. Although the great majority endorsed the concept of union organization, 19 out of 20 pastors said they could not support the boycott.

Scan profile: Val Chalk

Dedicated to music

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN
P-B Staff Writer

It would probably be easier to list the places that Pomona pianist Val Chalk has not performed, than those that have lighted up to his musical virtuosity.

The beefy, Texas-born pianist has plunked out chords for the anthems of church choirs and struck jazz highlights in Al Lynch's Rose Room in Las Vegas. He has played in Los Angeles hospitals and on the docks of Japanese seaports. He has performed at school dances and in Southern California night clubs, on radio and on television.

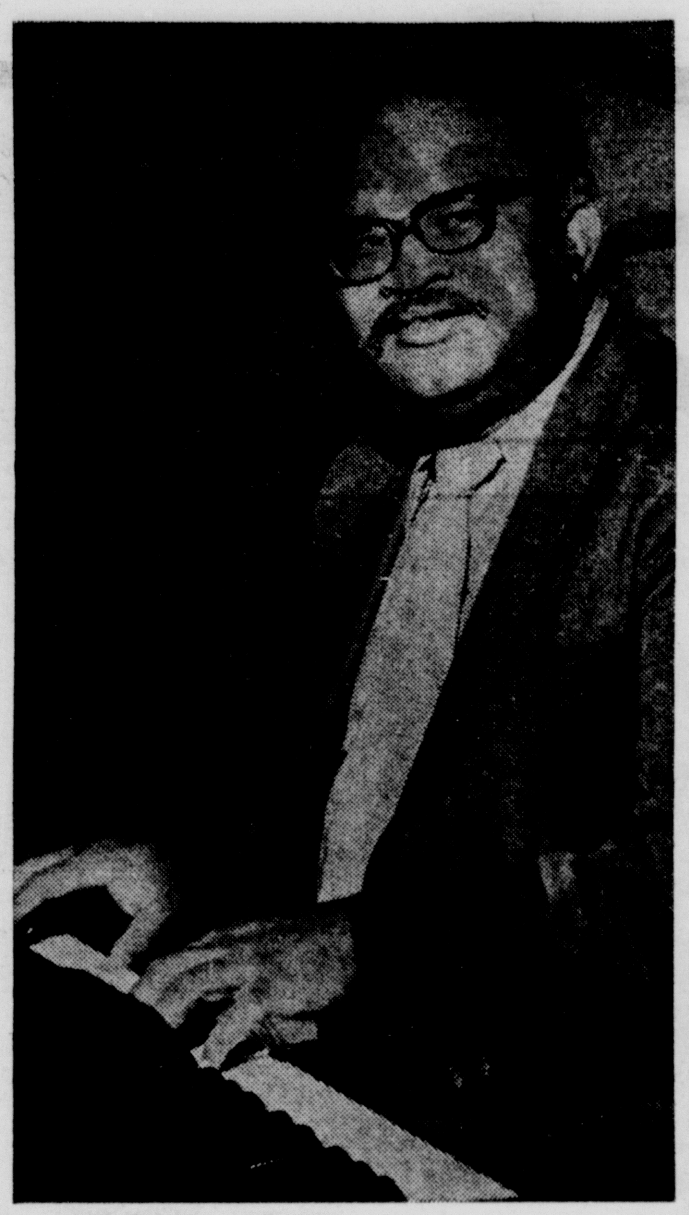

Chalk, one of six children of a hotel and restaurant chef, started piano at the age of 8, and a year later was playing in Sunday school. (One brother, J. B. Chalk Jr., is a professional saxophonist in New York City). In junior high school in Venice, he played for a church choir, performed in hospitals and at Red Cross gatherings, and led a 10-piece band, The Star Jumpers, at school dances.

Chalk's career continued fortissimo at Venice High School where, in 1950, he became the first black ever elected president of the studen body. This was followed by three years in the Army, still playing in an orchestra, directing a chapel choir, putting on musical revues for troops arriving and departing from Japan.

After his discharge from the service, the young pianist was anxious to complete a college education, so he chose night club engagements near a college, attending classes during the day and performing at an entertainment spot each night.

So, while playing night clubs in Long Beach, Rialto, Corona, San Bernardino and other cities, Chalk picked up a year's credit at Whittier College, another at Long Beach City College, a few semesters at Riverside City College. His final transcript was such a melange that he found himself ineligible for a teaching credential, but he was evaluated and accredited by a board of examiners of the prestigious Music Teachers' Association on the basis of education, experience and performance.

Today Chalk is an educator,

composer, arranger, music publisher and night club performer. A soft-spoken, articulate bachelor, full of warmth and humor, he is dedicated to music and particularly to improvisation—making it up as you go along—an art that is part technique, part musicianship, and part innate talent.

"We call it 'music from the inner world to the outer world'," Chalk said in a recent interview. "We set up a musical problem and the student is supposed to discover the solution—but there are as many solutions as there are students. It doesn't develop a style, but gives each student a chance to express himself. It brings out what a person has."

Chalk's bent for improvisation, he says, had its roots in the gospel choirs of the many churches he has played at. It lent color and range to his early classical training, vitality and power to his later jazz experience, and enrichment to his work in pop, blues, soul, rock and country-western music.

"My real desire as a young musician was to develop my own style and to put my own interpretation on my music," he said.

The consuming drive of the young pianist made such a mark that people began coming to him to ask for instruction in his technique—music teachers, students, professional musicians. So Chalk began to write down a few of the fundamentals of improvising, basics valuable to every instrument and even to composers and arrangers. The rough notes soon became a book, "Improvising the Val Chalk Method," published in 1969. It will soon be followed by three more books, "Guided Discovery," slated for fall publication. Chalk's work has come to the attention of musicians and music teachers, and he is in demand for private lessons and workshops. Through one of the latter he

CLIFF KING Says:

You may have gotten over the fascination of the idea of moving pictures in your home that you had when TV was new. In other countries, they're still experiencing it. Saudi Arabia, for instance, got TV with their oil money and then discovered that their religion forbids the showing of anything representing a living thing.

After weeks of watching a test pattern, the rule was relaxed to permit the showing of a still picture of a palm tree! In a land of live palms, viewers stare, hypnotized by the sight of one on the tube. Now they can watch news, American Westerns and even moving women, as long as they are infidel women.

You can watch whatever you want, and, if you have one of our great new RCA color TV sets, you'll really enjoy the clear, sharp, bright picture... really "true-to-life"! You'll also like our low, competitive prices that save you money. Be sure to get our deal before you buy.

Reliable Builders

Building firm plus

POMONA — Reliable Builders features more than the other construction companies, according to its operators who call it "A building company plus."

Norman L. Phillips and Tony C. Stefaniak are the operators of Reliable Builders, 324 N. Park Ave., and claim that their company is unique in the construction industry in that it is "able to offer all the usual building services, plus a personalized touch."

"Reliable Builders is a company that listens to the customer's needs and is keenly aware of the importance of designing and building an altration, a room addition, or a complete custom home that will delight and enhance the customer's living," Stefaniak says.

In their company Phillips and Stefaniak handle each customer personally from the initial contact to the finished construction project. Their combined background experience represents over 50 years in the construction business.

"We supervise every job," states Stefaniak. "We have control over all work, and if a problem arises we can decide on a solution. The customer does not have to wait weeks for a decision as with other companies. As a result we finish most jobs ahead of schedule."

Every job receives the same attention to detail and service regardless of size, according to the operators, whether it is a simple repair, a remodel, a room addition or a complete custom home.

"We feel that every customer is entitled to the best materials available,the finest craftsmanship and the personal daily supervision of an operator of the company to guarantee service and quality," Phillips said.

"We do small jobs, too, that most companies won't do," Stefaniak said. "These jobs are usually profitless, but by doing them we hope to get more business from the same customer in the future. Regardless of the size of the job we do it — we feel it's important."

Included in the services of Reliable Builders are family rooms, bedrooms, bathrooms, kitchen and bath remodeling, carports and garages, aluminum patio rooms, aluminum patios, commerical buildings, multiple units, custom and modular homes and custom design and planning.

"Ours is a company that really strives for quality,' Stefaniak said. "Most other companies in the valley are sales representatives, not builders. Because we operate the company, we are able to give better service, price and quality."

''We've been associated with other companies in the valley ourselves," Stefaniak continued, "and we know what they do. That's why we got into the business—to try to do some of the things the other companies won't do for the customers."

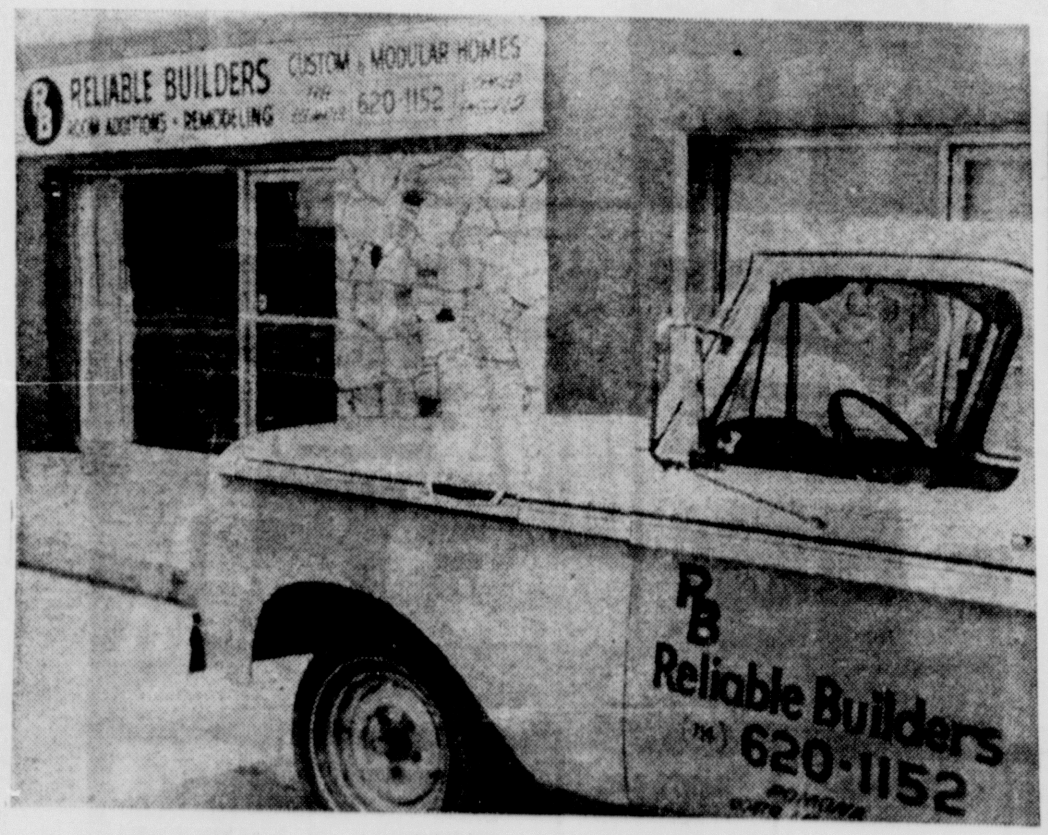

Although most of its remodeling jobs are local, Reliable Builders has built custom homes as far as Tehachapi and in the mountain resort areas such as Big Bear and Arrowhead.

Stefaniak handles the initial call from the customer and does the preliminary planning and sketching. When the design is completed to the customer's specifications, the builder submits the estimate, writes the contract and aids with financing. Stefaniak has 30 years of diversified background in the construction field.

Phillips takes the completed plans approved by the customer and secures the necessary permits and materials. He schedules the labor and personally supervises and inspects every job daily. He has over 20 years of varied construction experience.

A two-story, chalet-type room addition at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Harlan of Claremont, was done by Reliable Builders. Room additions are one part of the services of the company.

No job is too big or too small for Reliable Builders, 324 N. Park Ave., Pomona.

Reviewer plans pilgrimage to pay respects to author

By JOHN K. ROTH

NIGHT, DAWN, THE ACCIDENT Three Tales, by Elie Wiesel. Hill and Wang. $7.95.

On the surface the human world changes a lot. "Cold War" ice appears to melt in the warmth of a Brezhnev-Nixon embrace. West German-Chancelor Willy Brandt visits Israel on a mission of good will. POW's return home, and cease-fire are negotiated. A full generation of peace seems to wait just around the ever-promised corner.

(John K. Roth is professor of philosophy at Claremont Men's College now on a teaching assignment in Switzerland and Austria.)

Beneath the surface things change very little. Anticipated utopias never materialize. Proudly-announced programs fail to meet high expectations. Deceit and destruction, injustice, greed, and suffering rage on. A "watergated" world groans.

Elie Wiesel knows human nature well. He understands that men tend to ignore or forget evil as they are seduced by their own zealous visions of success. He knows the price of suffering that is paid for such folly. Wiesel is a survivor of hell. Nazi concentration camps — Auschwitz and Buchenwald—were his teen-age "home."

All three tales in this book are set against the background of the writer's personal experiences. Published separately in the early 1960s, the works are brought together here with striking effect. They probe life and death in varied but complementary ways. Each shows that existence is a mixture of the demonic and the divine. Wiesels' message is that we should never ignore either fact. Only as we face honestly the demonic side of man, nature, and even God himself, can we move toward our chance of transcending it.

"Night" is dedicated to the memory of my parents and of my little sister, Tzipora." They were Jewish victims of the Nazi attempt to create a better world. Wiesel's father almost survived. Brutalized too much, however, he died in Wiesel's presence as release came near. The author's mother and sister were separated from him as the family entered Auschwitz. He never saw them again. Perhaps mercifully, their fate is unknown to him.

This is no ordinary autobiography. It goes beyond the mere recording of violence and pain. It explores the spiritual anguish that suffering can produce. "Night" raises basic questions about man and God, not in an abstract intellectual fashion, but interms of grief-stricken cries. It is an unforgettable account, written with moving simplicity. If you are afraid to weep, however, leave "Night" alone.

The style shifts in "Dawn." This is not autobiography, although Wiesel's personal experiences shape the story unmistakably. The situation is the struggle for Israeli independence after World War II. Elisha, the lone survivor of a family annihilated by the Nazis, is no longer in the role of victim. Or is he? At dawn his task is to execute a young Englishman in retaliation for the hanging of a Jewish freedom fighter. The moral dilemma is set. Elisha struggles through the night. At dawn he pulls the trigger. But the question is whether Elisha had killed himself as well as the Englishman. If you can't stand moral ambiguity and anxiety, leave "Dawn" alone.

"The Accident" turns out not to be an accident at all. A New York journalist, also a survivor of the Nazi holocaust, is hit by a car while on the way to a movie. Once more, he survives. But the question is: in what sense? Although it was obvious to no observer, and perhaps not completely to the man himself at the time, we discover that the young journalist allowed the car to run him down. The novel is a struggle to decide whether life is worth living in a pit of death and if so, on what terms. No final solutions are offered. If you dislike writing that ends with questions, leave "The Accident" alone.

I can't leave Elie Wiesel alone. He has gotten inside of me. Anyone who reads him invites a similar experience. Most of the Nazi death camp sites are in Communist-controlled states today. They are not easily accessible. However, one of them, Dachau, is in West Germany near Munich. I plan to visit it this fall. That pilgrimage will be a way to thank Elie Wiesel, whose superb writing gift has cost him so very much.

New poet shows signs of greatness

By PHIL ROCHE
P-B Staff Writer

TWO CITIZENS by James Wright. Farrar, Straus and Giroux. $6.95.

Great poets are mood-makers. They plant and nourish moods like horticulturists grow flowers. T. S. Eliot with his emptiness, Frost with his sadness mixed with humor, Whitman with his unbounded exuberance. Now comes James Wright.

Wright is not great yet, but one day he may be. His "Two Citizens" creates two moods: the first the feeling of anger at the tragedies allowed to take place in America; the second a deep and understanding feeling of love for his country and the people in it.

This book of short, often nostalgic poems starts with a bitter attack on America. One of his poems in fact is titled, "I Wish I May Never Hear of the United States Again."

Russian aristocracy background for novel

"THE ASTROV LEGACY," by Constance Heaven, Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, $5.95.

Sophie Weston, an English governess from a poor family, goes to Russia to visit her sister, Rilla, who has married a count. She steps into another world, a world of high society, of the idle rich, of beautiful gowns, fashionable balls, concerts and sleigh rides. And Sophie is soon one of the reigning belles.

After several months, Sophie feels she has never lived any other way. But she senses trouble between her sister and the count and the mystery is deepened by the intermittent appearance of Jean Reynard, a half brother of Count Kuragin.

Sophie finds a good friend in Irina Astrov, and falls in love with Irina's brother, Prince Leonid Astrov, son of an old and powerful family.

She soon finds there are two sides to Leonid: the quiet, serious, artistic one, who seems to love Sophie in return, and the wild, irresponsible playboy. Which is the real Leonid, and how can Sophie be sure?

She gets no encouragement in her romance from her sister and brother-in-law, but she does learn that their lives have been touched by deep tragedy, and more mysterious things happen to bring them sorrow. A fire in their stables brings heavy losses, but they survive, and finally their personal problems seem solved.

Meanwhile, Sophie is forced to take a stand and she and the Prince, who meanwhile has consented to an engagement with another girl to bolster the family fortunes, become the talk of Russia from Moscow to St. Petersburg.

When the star dies and the successor is undecided, Leonid becomes involved in conspiracy and rebellion that culminates in the bloody Decembrist Uprising. Through Leonid, Count Kuragin also is involved, and Rilla and Sophie risk their lives to join their men in the battle on the streets.

Constance Heaven is a British novelist who has traveled extensively for authentic background for her stories. The readers sees clearly the glittering cathedrals, palaces and domes of St. Petersburg and Moscow, and the teeming markets

Hungry? Let's Go on a Supermarket Mini Tour!

Supermarkets have buyers all over the country who buy in huge amounts. Trains and trucks (some of which are refrigerated) bring the goods to big warehouses. Today, most of the stores use computers when making out their own shopping lists.

Trucks line up at the warehouses to be loaded. The drivers have keys to "receiving rooms" located in every store. They usually deliver at night. Some local producers, such as soft drink companies and bakeries, make their deliveries to the store during shopping hours.

Meats are kept in large, walk-in refrigerators. There are also large refrigerators for frozen foods.

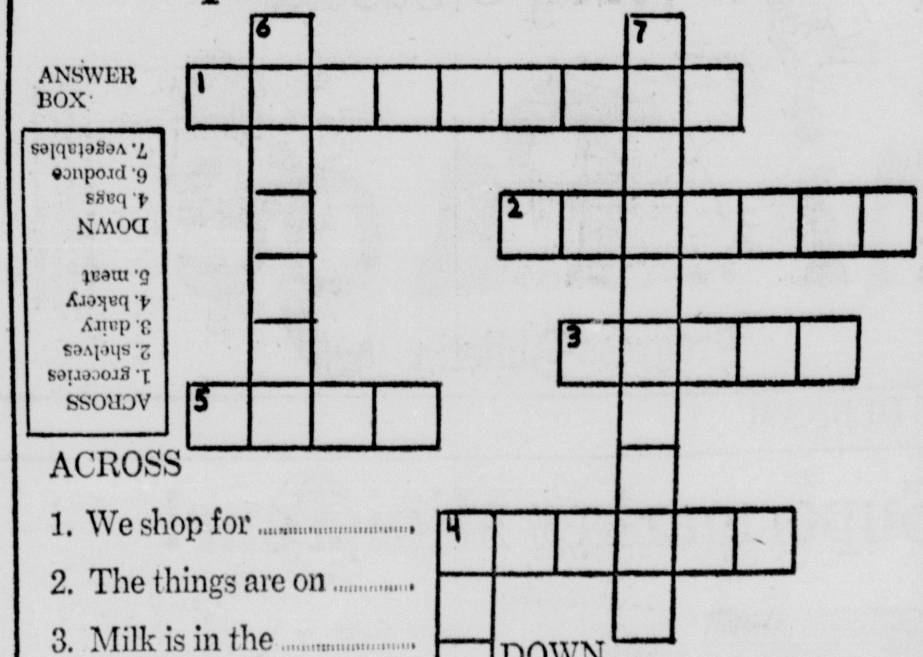

Supermarkets have big storage rooms where they can keep groceries before putting them on the shelves. This is one of the areas that most shoppers never get to see.

Each store has a produce room where fruits and vegetables (called produce) can be washed and prepared for sale. These rooms are kept very cold.

A Supermarket Map

There are many ways to arrange a supermarket. Below is one way. The part that is shaded is behind the scenes. You won't see this part when you go shopping. The shelves in the middle of the store are called "gondolas."

Mini Page Quiz-a-roo?™

What's new in supermarkets?

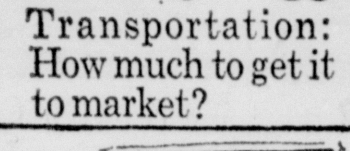

A look into the future shows that supermarkets will become bigger and offer a wider variety of items so shoppers can buy just about everything they need by making one stop.

By 1975 many supermarkets will be using computers in the checkout lines. Each item will be stamped as to item, manufacturer, size and the price. Shoppers will put their purchases on the belt and the price will be totaled by a computer. This will allow the long lines to move much faster.

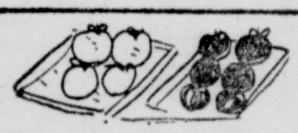

What decides the price of food?

The Weather: How was the crop? If good, the price will be lower; if bad, the price will be higher.

The Item: How much did the supermarket pay for it?

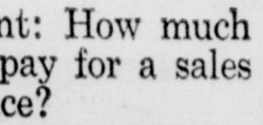

Handling: How much to prepare food for sale?

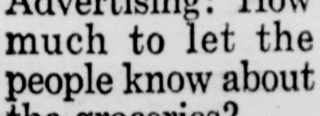

Transportation: How much to get it to market?

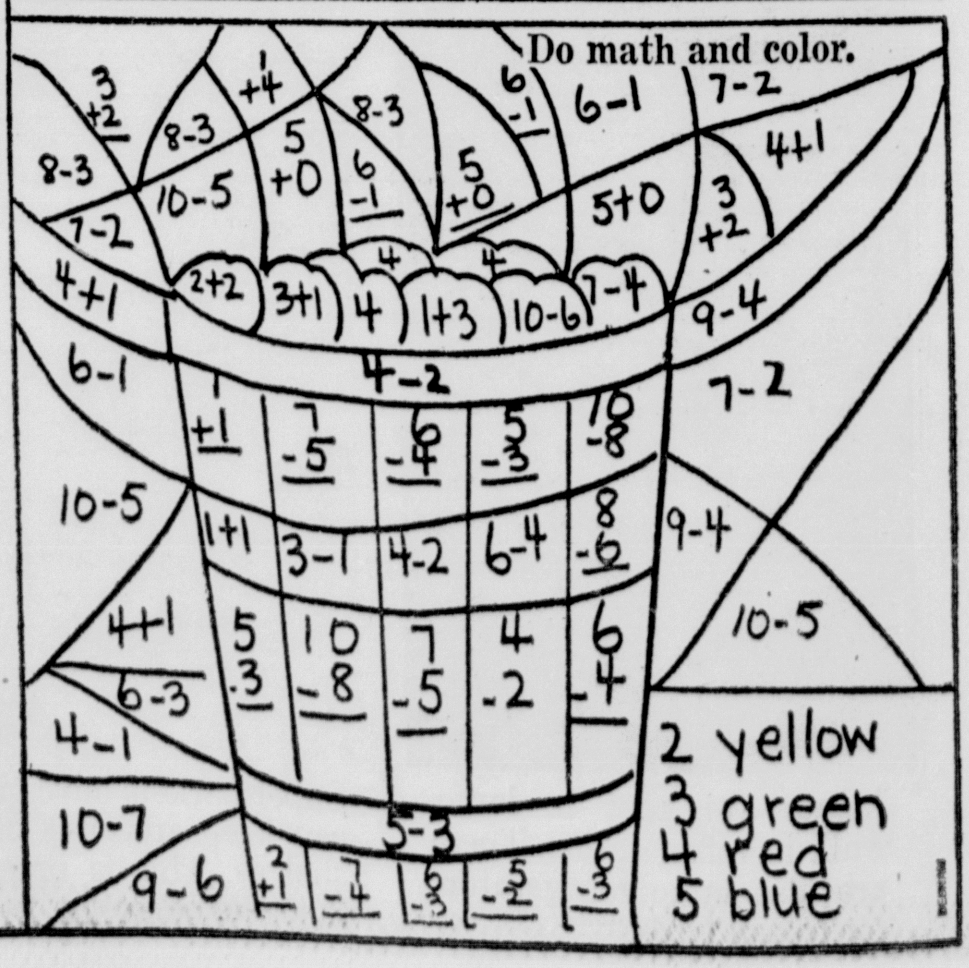

Labor: How much paid to employees?

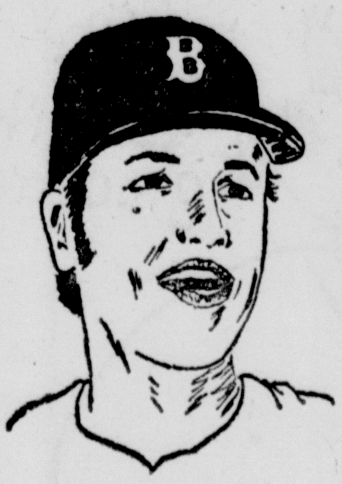

Rent: How much to pay for a sales place?

Advertising: How much to let the people know about the groceries?

Four years ago, on July 20, 1969, he became the first man to set foot on the moon. He was a test pilot before becoming an astronaut. He was born in a small town in Ohio. He went on his first plane ride at the age of six. He got his pilot's license on his 16th birthday. His first words on stepping on the moon were: "That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind." He became a professor of Aerospace Engineering at the University of Cincinnati on January 1, 1972. Who is he?

Animal of the Week: The Pig

You can draw a pig any way you want to, but here are some ideas!

The mother hog is called a sow. The father is called a boar. Hogs furnish about 30 per cent of the meat eaten in the United States. Hogs supply us with ham, sausage, pork chops and bacon. Other parts of their bodies are used to make other things such as fertilizer. From the hog's hair we get brushes; from the skin we get leather; from the fat we get lard.

Where do we get fresh fruits and vegetables?

Sometimes stores buy fresh produce from local farmers. At other times, their produce is shipped in from the parts of the country, where it is "in season." In season means that it is ripened by the sun and ready to eat. Seasons differ in different parts of the country. Listed here are states and the produce they grow and ship during the summer months. Hearns host French girl

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Hearn of San Dimas have been informed they will host Miss Christine Tulasne, 17, of Paris, France, next school year as a foreign exchange student under auspices of Youth For Understanding.

She is due to arrive soon, Mrs. Hearn said.

Christine will be a member of the senior class at Pomona Catholic Girls High School, beginning in September. She will attend with Barbara Jean Hearn, 16, who will be secretary of the junior class when school starts.

CHRISTINE TULASNE

Christine was born in Boulogne, Billancourt, France. She lives with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Serge Tulasne, two sisters and two brothers.

She is a math major at the Lycee Victor Duray School in Paris. She has earned her bachelor of science degree. Upon completion of her stay here she plans to return to France to study medicine.

Christine is following in the footsteps of an older sister, Chantal, who also was an exchange student.

She enjoys swimming, horseback riding, volleyball, music, dancing and reading.

Mr. and Mrs. Hearn are newly elected presidents of the Pomona Catholic Girls High School PTA. Hearn is vice president and general manager of a construction and rigging firm in Long Beach. Mrs. Hearn is involved in activities at Holy Name of Mary School in San Dimas, which John Harn, 11, attends.

Exchange visitors due soon

Francoise Dupin, born Dec. 12, 1953, will live with Mr. and Mrs. Donald Savoie of Montclair.

Anne Berenger, age not listed, will live with Dr. and Mrs. Quincy Howe of Claremont.

They will be in a group of 34 students between 16 and 21, all from Bordeaux, scheduled to arrive at the Los Angeles International Airport July 19.

Next year children of host families will be received by the families of the visiting students.

In addition to activities planned by the host families, the visitors will be entertained by the Sister City Affiliation.

Planned are an airport reception where students will be welcomed by Los Angeles Mayor Thomas Bradley and French Consul General M. Jean Francois Roux; harbor tours, and Old Los Angeles cultural heritage walking tour, and an Americana picnic outing at the UCLA-Sunset Canyon Recreation Center.

Spiritual quality

Harrison scores

By E. J. Jones
Scope Music Critic

George Harrison. Apple Records. Distributed by Capitol Records. SMAS-3410. "Living in the Material World."

After "All Things Must Pass" and "Bangladesh" one would think George Harrison would be hard pressed to produce another album of the same caliber. Well, I have news for Harrison fans, this one is really great.

The newest Harrison album has some heavy music on it. Most of the cuts lean toward the way people in todays world stress the material side of life, relegating the spiritual side to second class citizenship at best. This is evident in the song called "The Lord Loves The One". It goes like this:

The Lord loves the one that loves the Lord
And the law says if you don't get loving. . .
With no thoughts for God
Who provides us with all.
But when death comes to claim them
Who will stand and who will fall.

That is paraphased a bit, but the gist of the message is there.

Since the breakup of the Beatles, Harrison's music has been spiritually orientated. It seems his talent for writing music was negated by the rest of the group. The Beatles breakup was good for George Harrison.

Two cuts on the album

Bonita High School

Red Rocks have infiltrated a section of City of La Verne.

The Red Rock Recycling Co. is collecting old newspapers from residents and transporting them to a Pomona firm for recycling.

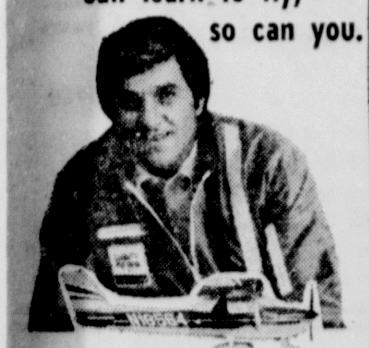

Two industrious brothers, one a Bonita High School student, originated the idea. They began by distributing rocks they painted a bright red to people in their neighborhood.

They asked their neighbors to please stack their old newspapers under the red rock each Monday morning for collection.

Many people liked the idea. Friends out of the immediate neighborhood clamored for red rocks.

The two boys have found a constructive way, they feel, to spend a part of their summer vacation.

Wright had gone to Europe, but thoughts of his country seemed to be always with him.

While in Euroope, he realized the deep, unshakable love that re really held for America. "I discovered America there in France and Italy)" he wrote.

The final poems then are reminders of the greatness of America (Ohio) and its people. They tell a story of an author essentially human, simple and searching.

He writes:

I thought I could not stand it
To go home any more,
Yet I go home, every year,
To calm my wild mother,
And talk long with
my brother.

The title "Two Citizens" refers to Wright and his wife, Annie, who accompanied him to Europe. With her at his side he found, at least, a portion of the understanding of life he had sought. That's more than most of us find.

Temperature over 90 isn't for the birds

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: How hot a room is too hot for a bird?

Dear D.N.: Some birds may succumb in a 95-degree temperature, most could handle it 10 degrees hotter for a short period. Generally, it is reasonable to keep the room temperature below 85 or 90 degrees (even though it is an ideal temperature for a hospital cage). Usually the bird will indicate it is getting overheated by its droopy wings and general droopy appearance plus a more rapid respiration. It is certainly foolish to keep a bird in an area where it is likely to be subjected to temperature extremes. High temperatures are a more common cause of stress among birds than low temperatures.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Mimi is my third poodle in the 15 years I have been going to this particular veterinarian. She also happens to be the third poodle he has done a tonsillectomy on. A friend of mine who also goes to him just had to have her poodle's tonsils taken out too, and we met a third party today whose poodle also has had his tonsils removed and by guess whom? It seems to us now that either (a) our veterinarian is overly fond of removing tonsils or (b) all poodles suffer from tonsillities. We think we know the answer but we would be interested in your comment.—S.K.

Dear S.K.: It just could be the answer is neither of your proposed alternatives. Even though you know of five such surgeries, this might still be a comparatively small percentage of the poodles seen by the practitioner. (a) how do you know the rest of his poodle patients aren't still packing their tonsils? (b) while not all poodles suffer tonsillitis, most do at some time in their lives and many acute tonsillitis cases develop in the poodle into chronic tonsillitis with symptoms characterized usually by intermittent gagging and retching. In these chronic tonsillitis cases, tonsillectomies are usually indicated.

seem to reflect on this breakup, they're called "Sue Me, Sue You Blues" and "Living in the Material World". They also reflect on Harrison's musical remembrances of what it was like being a Beatle and facing the success which was theirs practically overnight.

A very entertaining and well produced album. All songs are written by George Harrison. Ringo Starr plays drums. The album features the hit "Give Me Love, Give Me Peace on Earth."

A definite YES! Better than "All Things Must Pass".

It Happened in Pomona

By Doc Peirsol

Worthy of his hire

Once upon a time a workman was really worthy of his hire and, more often than not, pay was of only secondary consideration. Pride in craftsmanship and a sincere desire to produce something that might contribute to the betterment of humanity were the primary motivating factors.

And once upon a time we had just such an individual right here in Pomona even though we've had to go all the way back to 1892 to find him. His name was John Whyte and his activities over and beyond the realm of duty were fittingly recorded in the Nov. 19, 1892, issue of The Pomona Weekly Times.

For those of you who still like to wallow nostaligcally in that sort of Good Old Days dedication to one's work, I repeat the story here:

"John Whyte, who has the contract for shaping the stone for the IOOF building on Second Street, has surprised the builders by doing something really elegant in the way of ornamentation—something not called for in the plans and specifications. It consists of carving Scotch thistles, oak leaves and acorns, ivy vines, etc. upon the stone cobels to be placed in the third story. The extra labor of ornamenting these stones is Mr. Whyte's contribution to a worthy enterprise."

met Ralph Pierce, Pomona concert pianist and owner of Ralph Pierce Music, and it led to Chalk's engagement at the Music Education Center.

"The variety of music, from church anthems to acid rock, makes performing and improvising a very interesting experience," Chalk said. "It's a language that is very personal."

Listening to Chalk play, you understand the difference between "pianist" and "song stylist."

He teases a wistful "Misty" and pounds out a rollicking "Sonny" with a tango beat. He fingers absently through haunting minors in rolling arpeggios, embellishing improvised melodies with trills and subtle chord changes. Now it's an imaginative rendition of "The First Time Ever I Saw Your Face," now a bouncing jazz version of the old rock "Route 66." The sentimental ballad, "Lay Your Head on my Pillow," he plays straight, but adds a boogie-woogie bass to "Kansas City" and rolls out a rambling, moody "Ebb Tide."

This music making is Chalk's "very personal language," and anyone interested in eavesdropping on it can do so at Griswold's Indian Hill in Claremont where the rotund maestro plays from 8:30 p.m. Tuesdays through Saturdays, joined Fridays and Saturdays by Ed Pratt on bass and Winston on drums.

couples just setting up housekeeping, and to older couples whose children have grown and no longer live with them. They are popular also with middle-aged couples where the wife goes out to work. And they make ideal vacation homes.

He said over 600,000 mobile homes were produced in the United States in 1972, with this year's total expected to reach 640,000.

"We see a great future for the mobile home in its own right, over and beyond its present appeal as a practical alternative to expensive site-built housing," Wallace said.

Workmen prepare to pour the cement walkways at the new Claremont Tennis Club on Padua Avenue. The club will become one of several private tennis operations in the valley.

Marla Feller, 10, of San Dimas, tries her hand at the game during an afternoon at the Pomona Valley YMCA's summer camp at Webb School in Claremont.

Big and getting bigger

In a society gone crazy with sport, the game of tennis may be the fastest growing of them all, with the Pomona Valley proving to be no exception.

On weekends and warm summer evenings, finding an empty tennis court can prove as frustrating as controlling that limp-wrist backhand you've had since high school.

Everybody wants to play.

"It's a family sport," says Penny Daoust, a professional tennis teacher who runs the City of Claremont's active and ambitious tennis program.

"The whole family can perform. It's the one sport where a man can play against a woman or children can compete with their parents."

While the city-run program in Claremont already involves more than 500 players per year in a variety of leagues for children and adults, and is easily the largest program in the valley, demand far outruns the program, mainly due to the number of courts, available.

"Every city in the valley needs to build more courts," she said.

Her husband, Bob, who is also a professional tennis teacher, notes that the game has become so popular in the last few years that manufacturers of tennis equipment are sold out months in advance, while the waiting lists for lessons from himself and other professionals continue to grow.

"The game keeps people totally addicted," Daoust ventured. "The mental attitude of total concentration that a player needs is almost like a religion. You have to conquer yourself to grow with it."

That assessment of the game would come as no surprise to the French bishop who, in 1295, was forced to outlaw tennis playing by French monks because their church duties were being neglected.

Tennis, in fact, has a curious history that has been traced back to the days of the pharoahs in Egypt. Both tennis and handball are believed to share a common ancestry that began as a fertility rite.

Another interesting historical note, which will undoubtedly perplex all Bobby Riggs fans: the game was first introduced in the United States by a woman in 1874. Returning from a European vacation in that year nearly a century ago, Mary Outerbridge of New York almost couldn't get her tennis equipment past customs officials, who were casting a wary eye on the odd-looking paraphernalia.

In the intervening 100 years, the game's rules and theory of play have remained virtually unchanged, but recent years have seen a revolution in the area of equipment.

Metal rackets, a rainbow of colored balls, and a shift away from the traditional white to more colorful court attire, have all provided the game with a new look and added to the enthusiasm with which new devotees embrace the sport.

The new look is also translating into a new style on the local level, evidenced by the emergence and growth of private tennis clubs.

The Pomona Valley Tennis Club, built last year in Upland, has four courts and a membership of 45. The club is just finishing construction of its new pro shop and will soon have a resident professional.

"We have about five acres here," explains Dave Johnson, owner of the club. "We have room to expand up to 13 courts if the membership continues growing."

Normally operated strictly for members only, said Johnson, the club sponsored an open tournament last year and expects to do the same again this October.

Another private venture locally is the new Claremont Tennis Club, still under construction on Padua Avenue in Claremont. The facility will have 10 courts ready for play by its grand opening next month, with an anticipated charter membership of 200.

Bob Sherman, the club's pro and manager, revealed that some of the courts are already operational and being used by members. He said the facility is being met with enthusiastic approval.

The Claremont club may expand in future years, said Sherman, to as many as 20 courts.

Still another local private club is the San Jose Hills Racquet Club, which utilizes the courts at Mt. San Antonio College on weekends and holidays.

Like most of the club's the competition is largely between members, although tournaments against other clubs outside the valley are held.

The cost of joining the clubs varies considerably. The new Claremont club is charging $435 as a charter membership fee and $25 a month thereafter for families.

But you can join the San Jose club for $5 for a year.

Story and photos by Ed Prather P-B staff writer

Besides local club action and the many city leagues sponsored by community recreation departments in the valley, there is the Pomona Valley Tennis Association, which competes in the Inland Tennis League against teams from as far away as Barstow — also playing at MSAC.

The team is highly competitive, said George Eubank, team captain and a tennis player for 38 years, with only about one half of the association members qualifying for league action.

Playing sports in the league matches are decided by the members' standings on the team ladder. The top eight men and women available on the weekend of the match get to compete.

"It's a tough league," explained Eubank, who is a school principal in Pomona. "We once had trouble getting enough players for the team. Now we have too many for everyone to play."

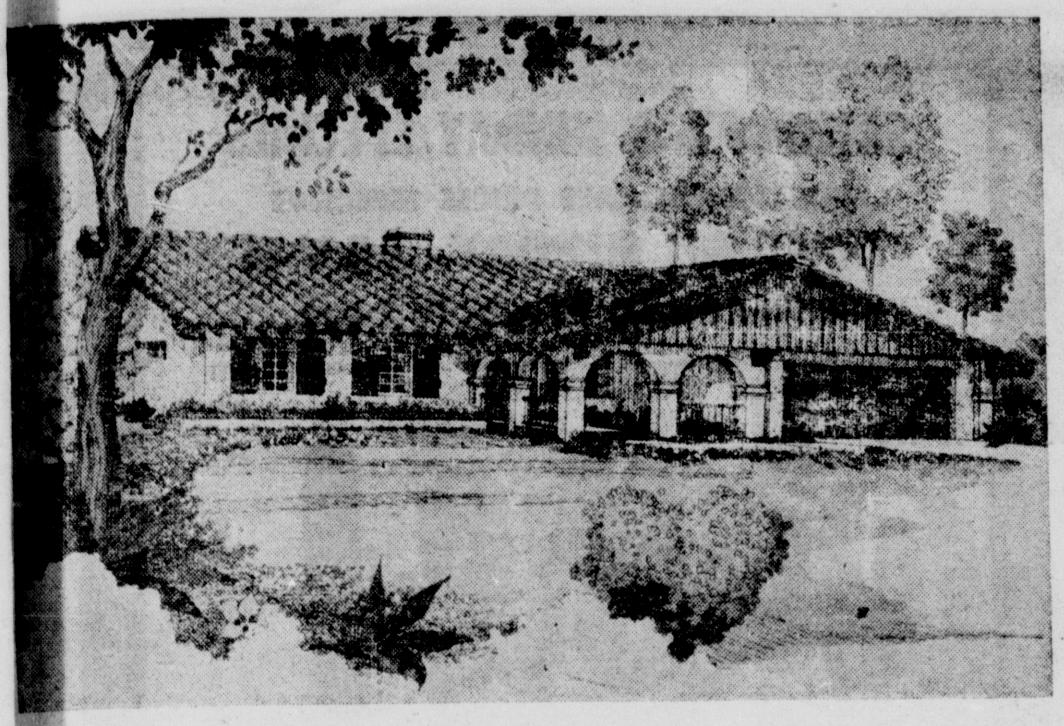

The local team indeed demonstrated the value of a depth in talent this year. It's the league co-champion for 1973 with Victorville.

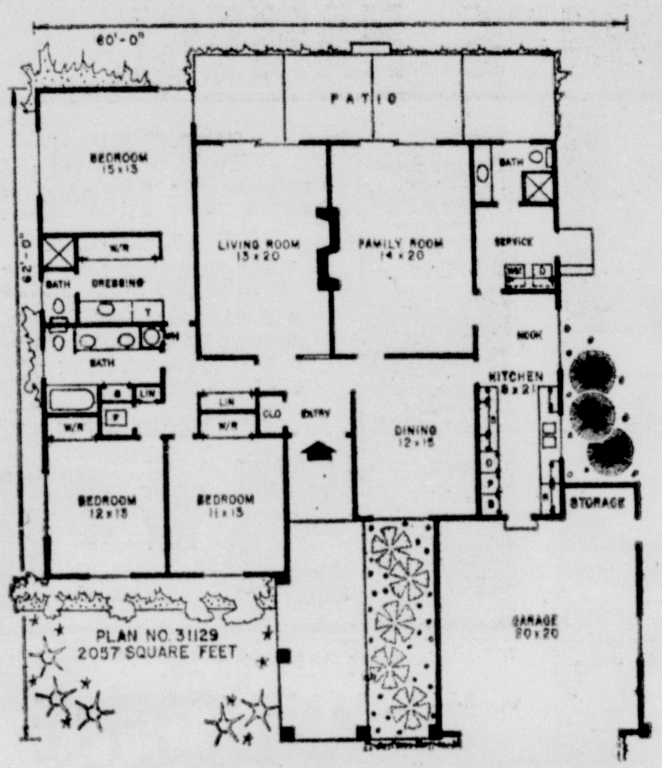

As a tennis player for many years, Eubank finds no difficulty in explaining the tremendous surge in tennis' popularity in recent years.

"It's great physical activity and it keeps your mind alert. It's not like running or weight-lifting. It's fun," he said.

"People are finding out you can extend you're life, keep in shape, and really enjoy yourself, all at the same time with this sport," he added.

ON THE COVER — Doris Cromer follows through on a forehand cross-court shot during competition in the doubles league sponsored by the Claremont recreation department.

Perfect for a small lot

By HIAWATHA ESTES

Large family, small lot? Compact planning allows this spacious home to be constructed on a relatively small lot. In addition, there is plenty of design interest in both the floor plan and the exterior of this house — the kind that makes a home stand out in any neighborhood.

There are highlights in this plan that will turn a collection of rooms into a housewife's delight. There is sufficient variety in activity areas to satisfy the demands of the most exacting family.

From the roofed front porch, twin doors open to the wide entry and a guest closet. A partial wall separates the entry from the living room. Side-by-side fireplaces open to the living and family rooms. If preferred, one could be eliminated.

At the rear of this design, where privacy counts the most, it is very outdoor conscious. Such outdoor living contributes the maximum toward both fun and entertainment. Sliding glass doors living contributes the maximum toward both fun and entertainment. Sliding glass doors open from the living and family rooms to the wide patio as does a door from the master bedroom.

The generous size dining room can be used for large buffet suppers and more formal entertaining. Family meals can be served in the huge kitchen nook. A partial wall separates the nook from the family room. The service door has been located so traffic will not have to cross the nook. From the striking kitchen, with its abundance of closets, there is direct access to the garage.

With the pleasing Spanish-Mediterranean exterior, note how the arches at the roofed front porch have been reproduced in the garage door. A low planter, wooden shutters and ornamental railing are other exterior features.

This same basic exterior is also available in a four-bedroom floor plan, at a different price structure, and is illustrated in our book Distinctive Homes.

Complete working drawings for plan 31129 can be purchased for only $11.50 for the first set and $6.30 for each additional set ordered at the same time. This plan will be available at these special prices until Nov. 15, 1973. Please allow two to three weeks for delivery. A specification booklet is available for $1.05. A large reproduction rendering of the exterior is $1.05. The following home plan books are also available: Distinctive Homes-$1.31; Hallmark Homes-$1.31; Ranch & Modern Homes-$2.10. All six books-an $8.65 value for only $6.83. Orders for less than three books, please add an extra 20 cent per book for postage and handling. Prices include sales tax. Send all orders to: Hiawatha Estes, Box 404-PO Northridge, Calif. 91324.

Financing a mobile is a simple process

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — For newlyweds, the family on the move, for retirees, often the answer to housing is the so-called mobile home—although the term hardly does justice to today's product which may run to 24 by 60 feet.

Today's mobile home, far from the "trailer" of long ago, provides comforts and luxuries similar to those afforded by costlier site-built housing. And recent years have seen marked improvement, too, in the surroundings of most mobile homes.

"For many families," said Robert L. Wallace, vice president of C.I.T. Financial Services, Inc., "a well equipped and well built mobile home offers a real bargain. A conventional site-built house can't be bought for less than $20,000 in today's market. By contrast, the average mobile home sells for about $7,000 and this includes furniture, major appliances, carpeting and drapes.

Purchasing a mobile home, Wallace said is a simple procedure, with financing generally arranged by the dealer on an installment plan after a modest down payment.

"For example," Wallace said, "the purchaser of a $7,000 mobile home might pay approximately one-sixth down and take seven years or so to pay off the balance. The loan, typically, might carry an annual percentage rate of about 12 per cent, although rates vary. Insurance is required and the buyer, of course, either would have to own or rent a lot."

Where to locate a mobile home still is a problem in some areas. Zoning restrictions make it difficult some places, particularly in the suburbs where an individual might want to put his home on a building lot in established residential area.

However, Wallace said: "New parks for mobile homes are being developed at an amazing rate, and they're the kind of surroundings anyone would be proud to live in. Many have winding streets, well kept lawns and shrubs and plenty of shade trees. Lots for the individual homes are large enough for privacy and breathing space. Unlike the drab, cluttered 'trailer camps' of yesteryear, these attractively landscaped mobile home parks generally are located in good neighborhoods, convenient to schools and shopping."

Wide choice

The choice of homes—and furnishing styles—is wide. A new generation of king-size mobile homes known as "double-wides" results in a house 24 feet long and more than twice that long. These models are towed to the lot in two sections and bolted together.

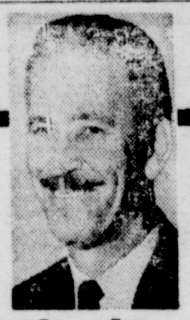

A buyer can select a three-bedroom, two-bath Colonial style mobile home with separate kitchen, dining room, 19-foot living room and attached garage. Shingled roofs, dormer-like gables, clapboard-style siding, decorative shutters and coach lanterns flanking a small masonry porch give these mobiles a definitely permanent look.

Furniture is built in and a mobile home can contain just about anything you'd have in a conventional home. For young folks starting out, it is a good way to have a livable home in a hurry. Maintenance is minimal.

Wallace said new mobile homes are eligible for Veterans Administration guaranteed financing. They must be at least 40 feet long, 10 feet wide and equipped for year around living, and they must be capable of being towed by a moving contractor.

Wallace said mobiles appeal particularly to young married
